You have admired the clean-cut, immaculate appearing professional type, properly dressed sort of man, haven't you? You can have just as good appearance if properly clothed by the old reliable tailoring house, Paulserud & Barrett.

Rev. H. A. Carnahan and family and Miss Georgia Thorne, who accompanied them, returned last Thursday evening from a five weeks' trip to Crescent City and the coast. The trip was made with a team and wagon, and they report an exceedingly pleasant vacation.

It is true that clothes often tell the type of man. If one's clothes appear slovenly and ill fitting we naturally think that man is slovenly in his habits, and that he is careless and irresponsible. If you are one of the people who have fallen into this rut, "buck up," and start right with a good suit from Paulserud & Barrett.

A rare incident happened the other day, when C. W. Nims had to hire a plumber to disconnect his water pipes to extract a five-inch trout from behind the water tap inlet. The trout had in some unaccountable way got past the screens in the creek and had a nice swim down through the city pipes, finally ending up in a blockage of the water faucet.

City Soda Water Free

(From the Portland Oregonian.)

The city of Ashland, in southern Oregon, with its forty or more lithia, soda and sulphur springs and the beautiful scenery along the Rogue river, is beginning to realize that it is the natural center for the tourist travel to that section of the state, and $175,000 has been raised by bond issue to develop the springs and provide parks and playgrounds for the visitors.

The city has acquired mineral springs and has undertaken a big project in connection with the utilization of their waters. Lithia, soda and sulphur waters will be piped into the city and dispensed, free to all, in the new Lithia park. Twenty-one miles of three and four inch pipe will be used in the project.

Sulphur Water Is Connected

The sulphur water pipe line to the city is now completely connected to the point where the carbonating station will be erected. Water will probably run through the pipe tomorrow for a trial. Everything is complete, with the exception that the cement at the spring needs to harden a little more. The sulphur water flows to the city by gravity force.

The ditch lines to the gas well are almost all dug, only a few crossings being incomplete. The gas from the Cunningham well is a heavier-than-air gas, and will have to be forced to the city by a compressor.

Material for the buildings and piping yet to be used are on the road as fast as trains can carry them here.

The Commercial Club requests the names and addresses of parties who are considering coming to the coast this summer. We wish to send them literature and give them a good conception of Oregon. 74-1f

Encouragement Is Given in Letter

Mayor Johnson received a letter last Friday, which ought to inspire confidence in any one of the possibilities of Ashland. It was from T. L. Martin, a prominent attorney of Boise, Idaho, and member of the law firm of Martin & Martin of that place. We print the letter in full below:

"Mr. Johnson, Mayor, Ashland, Ore. Dear Sir: About the 15th of July my family and myself had the pleasure of enjoying the hospitality of your city by camping in your public camp ground. I returned to Boise about ten days ago and intended writing you sooner, but have been prevented from doing so until this morning.

"I remember you stated the evening we arrived in Ashland that in all our travels we would find nothing which equalled the park your city has provided for automobile tourists. On our trip we traveled about 2,500 miles, and our experience verified your statement.

"You and your associates are to be commended for the public enterprise which your city is showing. Any traveler will be impressed with the enterprise and earnestness of you men who are in charge of affairs. You have struck the keynote of success, and that is, make the stranger feel welcome. We saw many larger places, but we saw none more beautiful or hospitable.

"I don't know what the population of Ashland is, but I do know that such enterprise and hospitality as you men are showing to strangers will cause it to grow, and it will eventually be as large as city as the resources of the surrounding country will justify.

"Wishing you gentlemen success, and assuring you that the night spent in your public park was one of the most enjoyable on our trip, I am, "Respectfully yours, "T. L. MARTIN."

American Trade Has Increased

It has been announced in Washington that America's shipping for foreign trade has increased over 700,000 tons over last year, despite the stories of the demoralization of commerce through untoward legislation.

"Our tonnage nearly equals that of the French and Norwegian flags," says the report.

Don't send your boy to school with ill-fitting, ready-made clothes, when you can get a made-to-measure suit, with a distinctive and finished appearance, at Paulserud & Barrett's for the same price.

Motorists Are Invited

(From the Walla Walla, Wash., Bulletin.)

One of the most complete parks in the west for motorists who desire to camp out while on their trips has just been completed by the citizens of Ashland, Ore., at a cost of many thousand dollars. Ashland is on the Pacific highway, and is the location of a large number of healthful springs. The construction of the camp grounds for motorists is one of the steps they are taking to make the city a well-known watering place.

An invitation was received today by the Commercial Club to all members and citizens of Walla Walla passing through Ashland this summer on their way to the exposition, or any other time, to make use of the park.

A brief description of this unique park, which is probably the only municipally owned park of its kind in this part of the country, is given as follows:

"In order to take care of the touring motorists who desire to camp out, we have prepared one of the most complete camp grounds on the Pacific coast, in our new Lithia park. Individual camping places, with plenty of room to park cars and erect tents; private tables, where one may have the privacy of home, will be found in a pleasant grove on the banks of the beautiful Ashland creek. Facilities for cooking with gas and private lockers for food are provided in the 'kitchenette.'

"This camp ground is free of charge to all who desire to use it. We extend a hearty and cordial invitation to all the members of your organization. We ask only that you make yourselves known to us, so that we may have the pleasure of exchanging greetings with you."

There are over forty lithia and sulphur springs in the vicinity of Ashland, and the people of that city are spending $175,000 this year, with the idea of making Ashland one of the great watering places on the coast.

Buy a Basket Of Peaches

Not to be outdone by Chicago, where a "buy a basket of peaches" week was held earlier in the month, New York is to enter on a similar campaign this week. The country is having a bumper peach crop this year. Consequently the farmers and various state agricultural authorities who are anxious to see it moved in record time and the normal peach consumption largely increased, are behind the movement. The peach crop in 39 states amounts to 60,000,000 bushels, which means that 20,000,000 families in the United States will have to buy three bushels each, if the whole crop is to be disposed of this fall. Otherwise as in years past a large percentage of the yield will be fed to the hogs or left to rot on the ground. This movement it is hoped will cut down this wastage to a minimum. To help the campaign along and increase the interest of housewives in preserving this delicious fruit, the New York state agricultural department has one of its canning specialists lecturing daily, over a gas range at various centers where women meet on the intricacies of the peach-preserving process.

DON'T

let your children attending school eat noon lunches that are un-nourishing and un-palatable. They want variety in their food and tasty things.

In putting up their lunches each day, drop in some nutritious graham wafers, an orange, a slice of pineapple, and alternate with some of the thousand good things that we carry. Some sandwiches with centers consisting of slices of our fine bacons and hams, fried crisp, is tasty and nutritious.

These hints about lunches apply equally well to auto picnickers.
