Fail to "Look Out For the Cars"

Five hundred and twenty-five vehicle drivers on the Pacific Coast did their best to break into a railroad crossing accident in the two years ending June 30, 1915, despite the fact that gates were down and warning bells ringing. This is shown in a report of the Southern Pacific company which reveals that during the period mentioned 525 crossing gates were broken by drivers who risked life and limb for speed and carelessness.

The gamble taken by the drivers is obvious. To be broken the gates had to be down and the gates are down only when trains are approaching. The railroad company spends over $100,000 annually to operate and maintain crossing gates but feels that the active cooperation of motorists and other vehicle drivers is imperative if crossing accidents are to be minimized.

Recently the Southern Pacific had observations taken at various crossings throughout the state to observe how careful drivers were in approaching the tracks. Of 17,021 motor vehicles observed, 11,836 drivers or 69 1/2 per cent looked neither way before crossing the tracks; 2.7 per cent looked one way only and but 27.8 per cent looked in both directions. The almost incredible number of 3,301 or 19.3 per cent of the total number of drivers observed ran over the crossing at a reckless rate of speed. But 35 drivers stopped their machines before crossing the tracks to see that no trains were approaching.

John Barrymore in "The Incurable Duke" Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at the Vining presented a type of comedy which was a decided relief from the slapstick stuff and pleased the audience much.

Skovgaard, the Danish violinist, who will appear at the Vining Saturday night, is remembered by many who heard him in Ashland a couple of years ago as being absolutely the best violinist ever heard here. The prices for the evening, 35 and 50 cents, which are lower than have been offered for this attraction in any other city in the United States, gives everyone an opportunity to hear the best music which it will be the privilege of an Ashland audience to hear. A pianist of national fame and the Metropolitan singers will round out a program worthy many times the price. Ashland appreciates good attractions and should give this one a full house.

Eccentric Miner Takes Vacation

After 30 years of rigorous living in the hills, years spent in prospecting and ultimately discovering and developing the second largest zinc mine in the United States, Callahan has gone to Honolulu for the winter.

He has carried hundreds of tons of rock out of the old Callahan tunnel in a wheelbarrow. Single-handed he built a road up the rocky bed of Nine Mile canyon. For weeks he toiled alone up the canyon when the other prospectors had deserted the hills. But these were care free times compared with the present. Dividends on the 70,000 shares of Interstate-Callahan stock owned by Callahan amounted last year to approximately $350,000. His holdings could readily be sold for $1,500,000.

"Why don't you sell out and enjoy life," he was asked recently at Wallace Idaho.

"What could I do with the money?" was the reply of the millionaire who continues to live in his cabin on Nine Mile.

Frequently he goes to Spokane, thinking that he will revel in the excitement of the city. But two or three days out of the Coeur d'Alenes is the limit of his endurance. At the receipt of the $2,000 dividend in August, Callahan is said to have taken his old associates of prospecting days around to the clothing stores and to have fitted them out with new suits. But this did not dispose of a half day's salary. Unlike the early days of toil and poverty, Callahan is not without proffers of assistance in distributing his riches. He is reported to have complained more than once of being driven off the streets of Wallace by the pressure of former acquaintances, who took opportunity to negotiate loans ranging from $5 to $1000.

Rose Slips For Oregon Schools

University of Oregon, Eugene, Jan. 10.—Five thousand Frau Karl Druschki rose slips set out last summer and now well rooted, await the call of the public and private high schools of Oregon. Upon request a reasonable number will be sent free to each.

Last year 2500 slips were sent out to schools in lots averaging 20. Requests numbered about 125, nearly all from high schools. The university has no objection to second requests from schools that secured slips in 1915, since the offer probably will be made annually so that schools may build up permanent Frau Karl Druschki hedges.

Last year's slips grew in almost every instance.

Grants Pass people state line they started with $200,000 bond issue will be completed by Twohy Bros., who have taken it over to Crescent City, California.

THE MOVIES

Empress vaudeville tonight at the Vining theatre. The headline feature is Tom Powell's famous minstrels with their own band, street parade, orchestra, screamingly funny acts centered around a skit, "Hotel de Luxe". Five other acts. Tightwire, marimbaphones, the singing five, Betty Clark in sidesplitting monologue. The biggest Empress show on the circuit. The advance sale points toward a sold-out house tonight, so get there early. Curtain at 8:30 sharp.

A six-piece orchestra under the direction of Carl Loveland, will render an orchestral concert beginning at 7:15 every Sunday evening at the Vining and will play during the entire program of pictures. This added attraction was put on for the first time last Sunday and was exceptionally well received. The Sunday night orchestra should make Sunday one of the biggest nights at the Vining theatre.

After tonight the Empress vaudeville will be shown on Wednesday instead of Thursday night every week. Keep this in mind and get your seat reservations early.

Mary Pickford at Vining This Week

Mary Pickford, the idol of the screen, comes to Ashland at the Vining theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday nights of this week in a screen adaptation of the greatest of all of Frances Hodgson Burnett's great dramatic successes, "Esmeralda."

Whether in Esmeralda's quiet, simple little home on the farm, or in the whirl of society life in a large metropolis, she is the master of every situation with which the appealing drama confronts her. Not only because it is much unlike anything else she has ever done before, but also because of "Esmeralda's" quiet, simple little home on the farm, or in the whirl of society life in a large metropolis, she is the master of every situation with which the appealing drama confronts her. Not only because it is much unlike anything else she has ever done before, but also because of "Esmeralda's" quiet, simple little home on the farm, or in the whirl of society life in a large metropolis, she is the master of every situation with which the appealing drama confronts her.

The story is so generally well known that it is perhaps unnecessary to more than briefly indicate its motif. This is based upon the separation of the simple little Esmeralda and her sweetheart by the unexpected finding of a fortune in ore on the farm and the suddenly developed ambitions of her mother, who becomes uncontrollably society stricken when she learns of her wealth.

Now Esmeralda is made to believe that her lover is dead, so that she can consent to marry a designing marquis and how the sudden arrival of her sweetheart interrupts the gorgeous wedding forms the climax of a story, forceful with the power of realism, but at all times quiet and simple in its construction as are the lives of the people it depicts themselves.

Valuable Booklet Of Cleaning Rules

We are in receipt of what appears to be a very valuable booklet from the Oregon Agricultural college. The booklet is put out by the domestic science department and written by Ruth McNary Smith. The title Methods of Cleaning, is merely indicative of the hundreds of methods of cleaning everything from floors to woolen sweaters which are outlined in the book. The bulletin will be sent free upon request to any person in Oregon. Address the extension service of the Oregon Agricultural college, Corvallis, Oregon.

Wonderful Concert At Popular Prices

The acme of all that is the best in music will be offered to Ashland Saturday evening, January 15, when Skovgaard, the great Scandinavian violinist, appears at the Vining theatre with a company of six artists from the Metropolitan opera company of New York.

By much persuasion Manager Bergener was able to get the attraction for Ashland with lower admission prices than at any place in the United States.

Thirty-five and 50 cents will be the admission charges and every man, woman and child in Ashland has an opportunity to hear one of the greatest violinists of the present age, and should avail themselves of the opportunity. Fifty and seventy-five cents has been the least ever charged elsewhere, and $2.00 is the big city price.

The program of selections by the violinist and the singers will cover a wide range from the most classical to the popular music of today and is sure to delight everyone.

Skovgaard has a genuine Stradivarius violin for which he paid $13,000 and which now would probably bring much more if on the market.

Skovgaard never tires his audience with long classical compositions; he chooses his program in such a manner that he can have an opportunity to show people, both the marvelous tone he can entice from his wonderful violin, as well as his great technique.

The past two years have been the most successful in Skovgaard's career. He has not only captured London and Berlin with his preeminent performances of the masterpieces of the violin, but the British Isles and Germany as well.

He was brought directly from Berlin by Walter Damrosch, of the New York Symphony orchestra, where he played a series of solos and captured the metropolis of America.
