THE ONE-ATTEMPT MAN OR WOMAN

who, for example, publishes a Want ad once, and if it does not bring the result desired decides that "advertising does not pay," should study the practical results, in all lines of endeavor, of perseverance. The law of "try again" is as potent in want advertising as in any other effort or enterprise.

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY STORIES—And every story a good one. They are entertaining, but that is not all you can say about them. You know there is hardly a periodical published that is not full of time-wasting stories, but not a single story in The Youth's Companion is a time waster. Take the stories of C. A. Stephens. It would be hard to pick out one from which you cannot learn something useful and yet entertaining. Some of The Companion stories refresh your knowledge of geography; some tell you the mysteries of chemistry; some reveal the secrets of forestry and of general farming. They cover a wide range. They are chosen with an eye to the possible likings of every member of a Companion family—stories of vigorous action and stirring adventure for boys, stories of college life and domestic vicissitudes for girls, stories that range all the way from sheer drollery to deep seriousness for men and women. There are no stories quite like those in The Companion, and you get 250 of them, and a lot besides, for $2.00. If you are not familiar with The Companion as it is today, let us send you sample copies and the "Forecast" for 1916. The Youth's Companion and Semi-Weekly Tidings one full year, $3.50.

Student Teachers Visit Schools

Margaret Hodgson, Helen Moore, Lois Northland, Harry Reigel and John Anderson visited the Soda Springs school Friday morning and the Murphy school Friday afternoon. The means of conveyance was the Ford belonging to Margaret's father. They started from town, as usual, fifteen minutes late, but by dint of most wonderful manipulation of the steering wheel and other paraphernalia Margaret succeeded in getting the party to the house on time. (Also, Harry did most excellent service in cranking the car every time the engine "died." The only worry of the would-be teachers was that while they were in the school the pigs would climb up and get the lunch with which the back seat was filled. Indeed, this worried them so much that, after a time, Harry was designated to go out and find out how the lunch was faring. He returned with a long face and grabbed a pencil and wrote a note to the girls (they did not dare whisper), saying that he caught two rascals in the act of carrying off the car-lunch and all. When he tried to drive them off they turned on him and he barely escaped with his life to the school house. Now this for some reason struck the girls as funny and they all three snorted out. The teacher was at that moment hearing, with not a little pride, her prize reading class. Of course she thought they were laughing at her class and so looked a few daggers, broadswords and other infernal appliances at them. She was not pacified until recess, when the affair was explained to her. During recess they "teetered" and "swang." The school is equipped with a swing, seesaw, horizontal bar and vaulting standards. They also have a manual training department. They left the school in time to reach the lithia springs by noon.

Again Harry made himself useful in regard to the crank on the Ford and gates which obstructed the way. At the spring they built a fire and roasted some "weenies." And these along with sandwiches, salad, pickles, "thermos" coffee and oranges made up the lunch. There was nothing the matter with the quantity of the lunch and everyone ate until there was no more available room and then stopped. After dinner they discovered that they could not get across the creek here and would have to go back and come in another way. This they did, although it was a rather perilous undertaking because the road looked like the ocean in a sou'wester. They finally reached the school in safety, however.

The Murphy school is located in the old Murphy house. This is its second year and it is doing fine work. Thelma Throne, its teacher, is an Ashland graduate, and has practically made the school. The building was in bad repair and it took quite a lot of work to get it into shape, but now it looks pretty nice in the inside. The coming teachers visited here all afternoon. At recess the boys wanted the male visitors to come out and play "blackman" with them. This they did, and really surprised themselves with the slowness of their gait compared with that of these heavy-shoed youths of the country.

When school was out they found a good place, built a fire, roasted the rest of the "weenies" and ate the remainder of the provender. After everything was cleaned up there was nothing further to stay for, so they drifted back to Ashland.

Statement of the Ownership, Management, Circulation, Etc., Required by the Act of Congress of August 21, 1912.

Before me, a notary public in and for the state and county aforesaid, personally appeared Bert R. Greer, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the editor and manager of the Ashland Tidings, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are: Publisher, Ashland Printing Company (Incorporated), Ashland, Oregon. Editor, Bert R. Greer, Ashland, Oregon. Managing editor, none. Business manager, Bert R. Greer, Ashland, Oregon.

2. That the owners are: Ashland Printing Company (Incorporated), Ashland, Oregon; Bert R. Greer, Ashland, Oregon; C. E. Starkey, Ashland, Oregon; Vivian Greer, Ashland, Oregon; Durham Hall, Los Angeles, Cal.; C. E. Harris, Tucson, Ariz.; Harry H. Hall, Los Angeles, Cal.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages or other securities are: None.

Glass of Water Envelopes.

The glass of water envelopes are now on sale at Poley's drug store and East Side Pharmacy at the same price as at the Tidings office. Citizens should buy these envelopes and use them on all their correspondence. It is a small contribution to so great a cause as the establishment of Ashland as a resort of consequence. Every citizen owes that much to the cause. Buy and use the glass of water envelopes in all your correspondence. The future of Ashland will be determined largely by the force each citizen puts behind its enterprise.

"Carmen" was as great a success financially as it was otherwise. The total receipts were about $110, which makes a gain of about $60. This is not quite as much as that made by "The Bohemian Girl," but the expenses were greater this time. The scenery and other things were more elaborate and therefore more expensive than those used in "The Bohemian Girl." The total gate receipts were really greater this year than last.

The Senior class pins are here at last. They have been waiting anxiously for them for some time. The pins are of a "near-circular" shape. A large old English A stands out across the middle of it. The small letters H and S are placed on either side of the A. And below are the Roman numerals XVI, signifying the year of graduation. The letters are of old gold and stand out from a black background. Taken all together, they make a very attractive pin—one that the members of the class can wear with pride.

The following sentence was given out in teachers' training class in connection with the grammar work: Destiny may make you a school teacher.

The Rogue is to be off the press by May 1, and will probably be placed on sale about the 5th.

The juniors have challenged the school to a track meet, to be held May 14. Of course it was accepted. It would not seem natural if they did not do some fool stunt like that during the year. The only fault one can find with them, however, is that they refuse to allow the P. G.s to enter. They say that it is possible for them to be swamped by numbers (a thing which we are very much surprised to hear them say). I suppose they are afraid that some P. G. will come out and enter a race in which there are only three contestants (counting himself), walk around the course, and take third place, which counts for points. However, in spite of all these defects, we will hope that they are not defeated too badly, especially as they are entirely innocent of their shortcomings.

If a grade pupil asks you to buy a ticket to the Ellison art exhibit to be held at the armory next Wednesday and Thursday, buy it. The children are working to get a picture for their room. Two pictures are to be given away—one to the grade in each school which sells the highest number of tickets. The exhibit will no doubt be well worth visiting anyway.

The track enthusiasts are hard at work for the Junior vs. School track meet. This will also help out the work for the big meet to be held at Medford.

Things are looking up in the art room. All the best work done during the year, somewhere in the room. It almost fills up the walls. Some very fine work is shown, too—both high school and grade. There is some talent in the school that really deserves to be developed. And the art department is doing all it can to help these people. The time taken in visiting this display would not be mis-spent, and I am sure that Miss Harris, the art teacher, would be glad to show anyone the pictures.

The seniors have decided on the play they are to give. The cast has been chosen, and the work of putting on the play has been started. The name of the play is "Miss Hobbs." It is (of course) a humorous love story. The cast is as follows: "Wolf Kings-earl," Harry Reigel; "Persival Kings-earl," Aubrey Redifer; "George Jesson," Raymond Badger; "Captain Sands," Ralph Harris; "Charles," Elbert Farlow; "Mrs. Kings-earl," Helen Dickerson; "Miss Susan Abbey," Myra Gunter; "Millicent Farey," Helen Moore; "Miss Hobbs," Mary Weisenburger. The play is to be directed by Miss Van Housen.

Some of the teachers went up to the park Friday evening to play tennis. They seem to be rather "out of luck" at the high school. They can only play on Saturday mornings.

Baseball is not going as fast as it started. There are still a few faithfuls coming out to practice every evening, but most are not so enthusiastic as when they started. The main trouble is a lack of material. There does not seem to be enough material in school for both baseball and track—hardly enough for one. There would be no trouble in getting a series of games with Grants Pass this year to play off the tie that was.

Edna Dahuff visited at the Bellevue school Friday afternoon and Margaret Hodgson, Helen Moore, Lois Northland, Harry Reigel and John Anderson visited the Soda Springs school Friday morning and the Murphy school Friday afternoon.

Home Products Week

This week has been proclaimed a home products week. We ought to have fifty-two such weeks in every year.

Of course some people say that they can not see how the community would be benefited by their buying an eastern-made article of their home merchant, especially if he is charging a higher price than it would cost to lay the same article down here from some out-of-town merchant.

But everyone can see how the town and community would be benefited if each person would buy home-made and home-grown products whenever possible.

It is the policy of the Ashland Mills to buy as much of their grain and hay in this valley as possible.

Hence, if you really want to keep your money at home buy your flour and feed at the mill. Most of it is grown in this valley and manufactured in Ashland.

We have again reduced most of our prices so that you may immediately realize how profitable it is to buy home products.
