The old vault in the building at the corner of Oak and Main streets, which is to be occupied by F. H. Mann, of Napa, Cal., was torn out this week and proved to be of very solid construction. Reinforced concrete is harder to take out than to put in, according to the workman on the job. The vault was put in when the Citizens Savings bank occupied the building.

New Civic Club Home Near Park

The members of the city council seem favorably inclined toward granting the request of the Civic Improvement Club for land for a club house, tennis courts and the like. The club will be asked to definitely outline the amount of land wanted and the city attorney will investigate the legal phases of the matter. The location considered by the council and favored by the clubwomen is a part of the newly purchased land on the west side of Park avenue to the west of the city park. At Tuesday's council meeting the councilmen engaged in a lengthy discussion over whether the land should be deeded or leased to the club, and this phase of the matter will be investigated. It is understood that when the land is obtained the club ladies will start an energetic campaign to build a beautiful home. As yet plans for financing the building are immature, but with the well-known proclivity of the club ladies to get what they go after, a Civic Improvement Club home looms as one of the coming additions to the park vicinity.
