May Robson in "The Making Over of Mrs. Matt," coming to the Vining Wednesday, May 17.

Vining Offerings Of the Week

Tonight.
 This Monday evening a new company with a new star will be shown at the Vining. This is Helen Ware in "Secret Love," a film adaptation of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's widely read novel, "The Lass of the Lowries." The scene of the play is laid in the Lancaster coal mining country, and a rugged plot and thrilling action makes the play out rival the book in gripping the heart interest.

Tuesday.
 Constance Collier, the internationally noted London star, in the role of witty, tender, strong-minded grand opera idol especially suited to her great personal beauty and artistic strength, will be presented for the first time upon the screen by Oliver Morosco on the Paramount program in "The Tongues of Men," which comes to the Vining Tuesday. The young rector of an aristocratic church denounces from the pulpit the grand opera "Zaporah" and the corrupting influence exerted by the woman who sings it, notwithstanding the fact he has never witnessed the performance. The visit of the outraged prima donna to her own vestry room to discuss the attack, the revelation of her really splendid personality and sincerity, and the sentimental outcome it works with the young rector makes one of the crispest stories the screen has seen in years. It is a thing that might have been expected from so clever a title as "The Tongues of Men." Forrest Stanley makes a handsome picture as the young cleric who is broad enough to listen to reason.

Wednesday.
 The kind of romance which you used to laugh and cry over. Little touches of real life and a lovable girl as the central figure, Vivian Martin, a charming little star, comes to the Vining Wednesday in "Merely Mary Ann." This picture is a masterpiece. It is one of the few really great motion pictures which were written for the screen by a real artist. The story is a sweet romance of the beautiful housemaid who became a rich society leader, her trials and tribulations.
