to Mr. Piper's own story, the turkey hatched glass eggs and all, the glass producing a bottle of moonshine whiskey and a corkscrew.

Mr. Piper has secured Hank Yancey to vouch for the story, but so far no one has vouched for Hank, The turkey is not for sale.

There is talk of a picnic dinner for the last day of school, and some field sports, both of which sound about right to us. Of course, we could make graduating orations, if we wanted to, and have a regular good time, but we'd lots rather do this other. Suppose it's just the nature of the animal that makes this so.

Miss Mabel Moore is conducting the eighth grade final examinations. Two young ladies, friends of Miss Skeen, spent the day with us Thursday. We enjoyed their visit and hope they enjoyed it as well. Our senior class exhibits signs of nervousness the last two days. There is a reason. The following pupils were neither late nor absent last month: Harden, Lova Buchanan, Bernice Kenyon, Emmet Harden, Albert Eske, Earl Brown, Wilbur Beagle, Frank Harden, Edgar Buchanan, Bernice Kelts, Kee Buchanan, Ruth Eske, Gladys Kenyon, Katle Buchanan and Aletha Gray. C. A. Brown is able to be back in the field at work, but is not wholly recovered from his recent illness.

If the Belleview school fails to get a certificate as a standard school, it is going to be on account of irregular attendance. A few parents seem to fail to realize the importance of sending their children every day when it is possible for them to come. We know positively of cases of tardiness and absences that could have been avoided. We as teachers will take our share of the blame, and say if we were able to make the school of sufficient interest, every child would be here every day possible. Of course, too, sickness and other unavoidable causes have contributed to the delin-
