Voters' Pamphlet Space Cost Rises

Parents of bouncing young initiative laws will have to pay about $55 per page to boost the merits of their offspring in the voters' pamphlet issued by the secretary of state before the November elections. This is the word given out by Secretary Olcott who has been figuring on the next edition of this popular work.

This edition is likely to have a considerably larger circulation than the last one had, and will therefore have more value to the framers of measures who want to tell about them through this medium.

At the last election the number of registered voters was about 305,000 in the state. The registration before the spring primaries was about 230,000. This year the primary registration was 260,000, and it is reasonably expected that the total before November will run to more than 325,000.

Warning is given not to send any arguments yet, nor for many weeks yet. The secretary of state is merely trying at present to get an idea of the size and scope of the pamphlet in order to figure on its probable cost. Bids will be asked for the printing probably in August, and the pamphlet not issued until in September.

Movies Are Great Ad for Celebration

Motion pictures taken recently of Lithia park crowds on Sunday, of Buffalo Vernon, Fred Herrin, Monte Briggs, and others in wild west stunts of the round-up grounds and features around Ashland are being shown in motion picture theatres throughout the state. The following comment is from the Roseburg Review:

"In connection with the regular program at the Antlers theatre Saturday evening, there were produced a number of films depicting scenes at Ashland and vicinity. The pictures of the celebrated Lithia park were exceptionally fine and resulted in much favorable comment by the audience.

"The pictures are being displayed in many Oregon theatres in connection with a campaign launched recently for the purpose of advertising the Rogue River Round-up, to be held there on July 4, 5 and 6."

HEARD AND OVERHEARD.

Mr. Greer, after having come through the recall election a little to the good, says: "We could have as easily beaten them eight hundred as sixty, had we had the votes."

Little Gerald Millican, four-year-old son of H. H. Millican, was being interrogated by a group of club ladies concerning the death of his dog, which had come to an untimely end under the wheels of a car. Someone asked him if it was a Ford, the youngster replying, "No, it was an automobile."

FAMOUS NEW YORK BAND COMES TO CHAUTAUQUA

THE acquisition of the New York City Marine Band for "Band Day" of the Chautauqua is an epoch marker in the history of Chautauqua musical attractions. In New York city, where all the famous bands are heard every year, the New York City Marine Band is one of the most popular. This band presents an entirely different program from that of other bands. They play many of the naval airs and patriotic marches used by all United States government bands. They hit the plumb line of individual taste in music. Everybody who hears this band will have separately and collectively heard exactly what they wanted most to hear. That means the music that every one loves.

Talks With Screen-Struck Girls

Beatriz Michelena

"Please," says the girl who writes me from Boise, Idaho, "don't think me foolish because I want to be a motion picture actress."

A good many other girls have addressed me with practically this same plea, and so I am taking this opportunity of assuring them all that I think none of them foolish.

In fact, that I think no one foolish for having a laudable ambition. Of course, behind this desire to become a motion picture actress there may be foolish or unworthy motives. It may all come from the delusion that there is much money to be made in the profession at little expenditure in honest work; or it may be a false glamor that makes appeal. I am sure that some girls wish to become screen actresses merely to satisfy a silly vanity. They are the sort that dote on being noticed and are forever dressing and flouncing and strutting in a manner most apt to make them conspicuous. Worse still, there are some girls who have looked to pictures as an open gateway to bright lights and a so-called gaiety of life that is not altogether to be safely scrutinized.

These types of girls, however, are not seriously ambitious to become motion picture actresses. They may think they are, but as a matter of fact they merely regard the profession as a means to a less worthy end. Although they are foolish, this is quite apart from any desire to become a screen actress.

The truly ambitious girl is the one that regards picture acting as a calling well worth her best endeavors. With her it is not the means to something else, but the end, in and of itself, toward which her best efforts are to be untiringly directed.

She sees that pictures embody a great art and is willing to labor and sacrifice that she may make some contribution to it, and it is this contribution and not its reward that counts first with her.

To the casual glance of a too unappreciative world she may have failed. Her sacrifices may seem to have been for naught and her contribution misdirected. However, in so far as her ambition was laudable and she true to her ideal, she was not foolish. It does not always take fame nor recognized success to prove wisdom.

Vining Brings Remarkable Picture

When Prof. Irving Vining returned from New York city he brought back with him a copy of a photograph which has caused quite a sensation in the east and has been called the most wonderful photograph ever taken. The photograph is enlarged from a very small snapshot which at first view appears to be just an ordinary snow scene. Close inspection reveals a likeness of our Saviour outlined by the branches of a tree in such a manner as to appear almost as if sketched. There was no faking attached to the picture. Mr. Vining's copy is on exhibition in the window of Whited's Jewelry store.

Mr. Reed's Statement.

The election is over and we have all had our say, and doubtless many of us said too much. Now let us get down to business and give to the affairs of the city the very best service we are able to render. The welfare of the town ought to be above the personal ambitions of any man, and the fact that we have differences of opinion is no indication that we are not loyal citizens. I want to express my thanks for the generous vote given me and pledge my unqualified support to the springs project and every undertaking that is for the best interest of the people.

Colonel Thinks C.A.C. Will Go to Border

That the coast artillery companies of the state troops will undoubtedly be mobilized and sent to the Mexican border in case war is declared, is the word brought back from the Clackamas mobilization camp by Colonel C. C. Hammond, commanding the coast artillery corps, says the Eugene Register.

Colonel Hammond visited the camp all day Sunday and conferred with leaders of the state troops as well as with regular army officers. The coast artillery has received orders to recruit each company up to war strength, which is over 100 men. The companies now have 65 or 70 men each.

Colonel Hammond said that among the number of cities that have applied for the additional coast artillery companies of the O. N. G., Marshfield, Astoria, Tillamook and Forest Grove are favored by the war department for the reason that they are nearest to the coast and in case of a war with a nation that has a navy they could be sent to the coast very quickly. Klamath Falls, Grants Pass and other inland cities have applied for a company each.

The military authorities of the state are allowing none of the coast artillery company members to transfer to the infantry companies at Clackamas, neither are the infantry companies allowed to recruit in coast artillery towns.

Roseburg Crowds Coming for Fourth

Roseburg Review: With the Fourth of July only a week away, many Roseburg people are already making their plans to pass the national holiday at various distant points.

From information gathered about the city, it appears probable that a majority of Roseburg people who contemplate leaving here for the Fourth will go to Ashland, where they will participate in the celebration attendant upon the formal opening of the celebrated Lithia springs there. The Ashland people are making elaborate preparations for the celebration and all who attend the event are promised a good time. The Ashland park, which is probably one of the most picturesque spots in Oregon, will be placed at the disposal of campers who expect to remain there during the three days of festivities. Most of the Roseburg people who expect to pass the Fourth at Ashland will make the trip by automobile, while not a few others will go there by train.

The People's Forum

A Testimonial.

San Francisco, Cal., June 21.
Editor Tidings, Ashland, Ore.
Dear Sir: A testimonial: I stayed up until 11:40 the other night," said a Portland-San Francisco passenger, "so as to get some of Ashland's Lithia water. Several glasses worked a miracle in relieving my stomach trouble."

It will thus be seen that Ashland is not going to the rear despite the Wolfish, malicious attack on Greer.

We of the Ashland-San Francisco colony, readers of the Tidings and Record, cannot but note the difference between constructive and destructive spirit, and hope Greer will win out and the others be the tail-enders.

Win or lose, here's our best regards.
ENUFF SED.

Mrs. Ralph Loshier and children, Ardath and Bernita, of Portland, are here visiting the Emery and Watson families. They will stay until after the celebration. Mr. Loshier will be down Sunday.
