Four district superintendents of the Methodist conference of Oregon met in Ashland Monday to lay plans for the next conference, which meets in Lebanon September 27. The superintendents are J. T. Abbott of Eugene district, J. W. McDougall of Portland district, H. J. Van Fossen of Klamath district. The Oregon conference over which they serve covers all of Oregon west of the Cascades and includes also Klamath and Lake counties. They met here by invitation of Rev. Van Fossen. They departed for their homes Tuesday. Rev. Abbott spoke at the Methodist church Sunday morning and Rev. McDougall in the evening. They had the pleasure while here of meeting Dr. Loveland of the First Methodist church of Portland and Dr. Feese of the Patton church of Portland, who were en route to Klamath Falls for a hunting and fishing trip, accompanied by Henry Jennings of the Methodist Book Concern of Chicago. They were piloted by Judge Baldwin of Klamath Falls.

D. S. Halfhill of this city has passed the entrance examination and will go to the naval training school at San Francisco. Eight other Jackson county boys also passed the examinations.

Mrs. Nils Ahlstrom, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Jack Adams, her two children and Miss Jennie Bates, left Wednesday morning for a two weeks' vacation at Coquille and Marshfield.

Mrs. Ella B. Mills has returned after a two months' visit in Los Angeles, San Diego and other California resort cities and beaches. En route home she stopped at Berkeley to visit her son Victor, who is attending the University of California.

Carrol Wagner drove down from the Wagner-Carter camp on Rogue river Tuesday and returned Wednesday. He reports everybody to be enjoying themselves at the camp. Irving Vining is now up there and Mrs. Eubanks returned with Carrol. Miss Lydia McCall is back at the postoffice after a stay at the camp.

Miss Floy Cambers will again teach in Utah, beginning with the fall term. Her assignment this year will be in the city schools of Provo, the third largest town in the state, with a population of 10,000 in the Denver and Rio Grande and San Pedro and Los Angeles railways. The state university is also located there.

On last Saturday the Bungalow did the largest kitchen business, with the exception of the Fourth of July, since it has been opened. The remarkable part of the day was the fact, according to employes, that only one person recognized as a familiar face was assuaged.

David W. Hazen in the Monday issue of the Portland Telegram has a three-column article dealing with the faded glories of Jacksonville, illustrated by a photo taken of the city in 1872. The keynote of the article is that it has more people in its cemetery than its corporate being, due to waiting for the Southern Pacific to come.

At an early date the Baby Beavers of Portland will play Klamath Falls for the championship of the state. By winning Sunday from Salem the Portland team clinched the honor for the northern division, and Klamath Falls already has the southern honors corralled. The Portland team wants to play the game on neutral ground, and there is a possibility that Medford will be selected. Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Adelberg of Marysville, Cal., unexpectedly recognized O. T. Bergner as an old friend while stopping here while en route north this week, and remained several days as the guests of the Bergners. Mr. Adelberg is manager of the Liberty theatre at Marysville. The visitors are greatly pleased with Ashland and especially the park, and are coming here next summer to camp through their vacation.

The Klamath and Weed baseball teams will play at Weed next Sunday in what promises to be the hottest contested game of the year in this section, and a number of Ashland and Medford fans will go to the lumber town to see the game. Bigbee will pitch for Klamath Falls, and Tuerck for Weed. Weed has announced its intention of betting $2000 on its team and with that much money up there will not be much back talk.

Elder Taylor G. Bunch, formerly president of the Southern Oregon Association of Seventh Day Adventists, stopped off in Grants Pass and preached to a large and appreciative audience at the Adventist Church Thursday night, says the Grants Pass Courier. Mr. Bunch went on to Medford and Ashland Friday afternoon and returned to Roseburg to conduct a Sunday evening service at the camp meeting held in that city. Mr. Bunch will return to Boise, Idaho, his present home, having been transferred from the Southern Oregon to the Idaho conference, which will be his field for the next two years.

Miss May Benedict, while visiting her sister, Mrs. W. A. Cooper, on Dead Indian last week, had the pleasure of visiting Mr. Milam's homestead, also the Stoner and Neil ranches. Mr. Milam has a small log cabin on his homestead with this greeting over the door, "Welcome to the Milam ranch." Mt. Pitt shows up in all its beauty from Mr. Milam's back porch. Everything was in order around the premises except the spring, where several herds of cattle had apparently been washing their feet. The Stoner, Milam and Sullivan ranches are quite different from the Neil and Lindsay ranches, where level country and large pines are the prominent features. The former places are situated in glades not far from the summit of the mountain and are surrounded mostly by large white firs.

They pronounce our beautiful Lithia park as being by far the most attractive stopping place they have found on their trip. After spending some time in the park and making a short visit to their old friends on Liberty street, they started on their homeward journey, having already spent two weeks of their vacation.

"GOOD SHOES"

may be routed to see the scenic beauties of Oregon, Washington and Idaho will be worked out at another meeting at Seattle, September 6.

This will be attended by Mark Woodruff, Frank Branch Riley and John B. Yeon, by invitation. Other Portland men will also be in attendance.

It is a concentrated effort instead of scattered fire that is planned. Publicity has been given the Columbia highway, the Rainier National park, and Crater Lake, among the headliners on the new scenic bill, but each has tried to fight its own battles in competition with Yellowstone park and the California resorts. Now for the first time a route that will include a visit to these headliners and the many side trips as well will be worked out. It is realized that an eastern passenger agent is only human after all. For years he has been selling tickets for a trip which has featured a visit to Yellowstone park.

He knows every detail of the trip by long experience and every piece of information requested is at his tongue's end. The Yellowstone trip has been satisfactory and is a definite matter requiring little explanation aside from the printed literature. Part of the new campaign will be to educate the ticket sellers of the east in the attractions of the new route farther west.

George E. Hardy, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and C. C. Overmire, president of the Portland Automobile club, attended the Seattle meeting, called by the Georgian Circuit association. The Washington people recognize the value of the Columbia river highway as a part of the new tourist ticket route, and seek the co-operation of Portland in bringing the scenic headlines of the Pacific Northwest before the east and middle west. Frank Branch Riley has been asked to speak before the resort owners, hotel proprietors, railroad and automobile men at the September meeting. The form to be taken by the prospective advertising campaign will be decided at this meeting.

California interests say the tourist trade is bringing $200,000,000 of new money annually into that state; Colorado considers half that sum is spent in its Rocky mountain district each year by tourists; Oregon is getting less than $5,000,000 of tourist money each year at present.

Medford Alumni Hop.

Invitations have been received in the city for a dance to be given by the Medford high school alumni at the armory in that city on Tuesday, August 22.

Neal Neibecker of Dunsmuir was an Ashland visitor Sunday. Conductor J. H. Swaggart, who was injured Thursday and who is now in the Southern Pacific hospital in San Francisco, is reported to be improving.

Miss Bertha Selby and sister Elsie of Dunsmuir spent the week-end with their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Selby.

Northwest Unites To Win Tourists

Portland Telegram: Linking together all the big tourist attractions of the Pacific Northwest and making a definite route at a known cost so that the eastern sightseer may more easily be shown why he should visit the three corner states is the new advertising plan decided upon at a meeting in Seattle Saturday attended by Portland men who are planning to take a leading part in the new campaign for more tourist trade.

Detailed plans for showing eastern passenger agents how conveniently prospective travelers for pleasure
