S. P. Buys Eleven New Locomotives

The Southern Pacific company has placed an order for eleven additional locomotives for delivery this year in time to assist in the heavy crop movement. The new engines will be the largest single locomotives on the system, only exceeded in size and power by the huge Mallets, which are really a combination of two engines.

Designed particularly for increased hauling capacity at high speed, the new locomotives will enable the Southern Pacific to expedite freight service and better handle passenger trains on grade.

The necessity for meeting the national crisis has compelled the railroads to purchase their material in the highest market the country has ever known.

For example, the locomotives just ordered will cost the Southern Pacific company $50,000 each, an increase in cost over 1913 of 50 per cent. Similarly, now freight cars which the railroads are hurrying to completion cost 100 per cent more than they did a few years ago. Every item which is included in the task of equipping the railroads to face the greatest activity they have ever known, will represent the crest in the high cost of living wave. Being the heaviest purchasers in the country the railroads will suffer more than the individual from the unprecedented high prices. The difference is that where the individual merchant may increase the price of his products accordingly, the railroads are held to an income that is not increasing.

The United States government is to start construction of a great fleet of "sea fitness" in shipyards along the Pacific coast.
