Forest Service Buys New Lookout Houses

District Forester George H. Cecil of Portland has just placed an order with the Mill Made Construction Company of Portland for ready-cut material for three standard lookout houses to be erected at the summits of Mt. McLoughlin, Diamond Peak and Rustler peak on the Crater national forest, in July.

These houses are twelve feet square with a cupola six feet square. Both cupola and main part of the building have windows running all the way around. The lower part of the house is the lookout man's living quarters, while the cupola contains the Osborne fire finder, maps and other lookout equipment.

The success in quickly discovering forest fires from lookouts stationed on Mount Hood and other high peaks has turned the attention of foresters to this form of fire protection work.

Besides the three houses to be erected on the Crater forest this season, lookout houses will also be placed on several other prominent peaks in Oregon and Washington. Material for a house on St. Helens on the Columbia national forest was taken nearly to the summit last fall, and will be set up as soon as it is possible to use the Spirit Lake road.

Mt. Adams, also on the Columbia forest, will have a lookout station on its summit this summer, as the material is all ready to be transported up the mountain. This station will be about one thousand feet higher than the one on Mt. Hood, and will give protection to a large area of valuable timber.

Bandon—Cleaning and grading of the last six miles of the Bandon-Curry county coast road was begun at an estimated cost of $40,000.

Astoria—Standard Oil Company to establish a distributing station costing $150,000.

Corvallis—Contract let for a new college library, to cost $83,300.
