FOR RENT
 "FURNISHED HOUSE FOR RENT WITH USE OF PIANO"—I wanted a furnished house of six rooms. I could not use five and I did not want eight. Six rooms was what I wanted, and here was an ad in the newspaper: "Furnished house for rent with use of piano." But how many rooms? If this house was six rooms, then the advertisement lost half of its efficiency because it did not read "Six-room furnished house to rent with use of piano." Was the house modern? The ad did not tell it. If so, why did not the ad read "Six-room modern furnished house for rent with use of piano"? It would have been just as easy. Then was the house just furnished, or "well furnished"? If so, then why not this ad: "Well-furnished six-room modern house with use of piano"? I did not have an automobile and wanted close in. This ad did not tell me that, so instead of answering it I waited till I came to town. A real estate agent got hold of me and rented me another house. Later I discovered the one advertised would have suited me better. It was a "well-furnished, six-room, modern house, close in, with use of piano." Why didn't the ad say so and get the tenant?

Raise Rabbits to Increase the Meat Supply.

Rabbits, which have proved a valuable source of food in Europe during the present war, may well be raised more extensively in America by way of reducing the drain on the ordinary meat supply, according to biologists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The business of growing rabbits, the specialists point out, can be carried on by youths and adults not engaged in military or other national service, or in regular industrial employment. The animals may be raised in back yards of cities and towns as well as on farms.

The Belgian hare, says a statement by the United States Department of Agriculture, breeds rapidly, matures quickly, and produces a palatable and highly nutritious meat. The cost of production is less than that of any other meat, not excepting poultry. The supply can be greatly increased within a few months, without requiring space that may be needed for the production of crops. Practical experience has demonstrated that rabbit meat can be produced in unlimited quantities at a cost of about 6 cents a pound; and by utilizing lawn cuttings and other vegetation that would otherwise be wasted, the cost can be made even lower.

The Belgian and Flemish Giant rabbits are recommended for meat production, as the ordinary tame rabbit is smaller and develops more slowly. Stock of Belgian hares may be bought from breeders in nearly all the states at $1 to $3 each. They may occasionally be had from pet stock dealers. Fancy pedigreed stock is not required for meat production. Rabbits are easily kept. They eat hay, grass, lawn cuttings and green vegetation of many kinds. Females should be allowed to breed when eight or ten months old, and during the year should raise four litters of about six young each. Well fed, the young reach marketable size when three to four months old and average from five to six pounds live weight.

The Department of Agriculture has published a bulletin on raising rabbits which will be helpful to those who wish to engage in this pursuit.

Harold Bunce, who has been employed in the Park garage for the past few months, has accepted a position with a crew of government surveyors who are at present at work on Brush mountain in the Dead Indian district. He expects to be on the job until Thanksgiving.

An Appreciated Local Auto Jehu.
 A man need not be an Andrew Carnegie or even a minor philanthropist in order to be of use to his fellow man or fellow woman, in his life. There is not a man, woman or child living that can not, in their several spheres, make the world the better for their living in it, and it can be truly said that the small rather than the great, things of our earthly pilgrimage furnish the truest tests of individual character. The man, passing in a vehicle of any sort, with a single seat unoccupied and addressing a pedestrian in these words, "Sir, may I have the pleasure of your company?" is one of God's true gentlemen and a fellow well met, the world over.

Ashland possesses in Mr. Irving Finley a gentleman of this very type. A much respected citizen, with a thoroughly democratic spirit pervading his every act, Mr. Finley has, for many a long day, placed himself and his auto—without money and without price—unreservedly at the services of all in need of a genuine lift on our well-paved public highways. It matters not who may be the recipients of his kind deeds. The maimed, the halt and the blind share alike in his paternal good will, and the boy or girl has yet to be named in the Ashland public schools or out of them who have not at one time or other planked themselves resignedly either on the front or back seat of Mr. Finley's well-balanced and skillfully manipulated car.

Every trotter, globe or otherwise, has a kind word for Mr. Finley and admires unostentatious and self-sacrificing spirit. He has never been known to overload or overback to the point of going over a precipice of startling dimensions, and no individual carrying a weight of over 250 solid pounds is particularly welcomed on board a car that is so well driven and so honestly cared for, as never likely to outlive its actual usefulness in Ashland. A weight (all told) of 1,100 pounds is the limit of Mr. Finley's working aspirations and, sometimes, perspiring situations, Mr. Finley, you and your auto are strictly "in it" for many a day yet, and "don't you forget it."

H. G. G.

Desmond Gill and William McMillan, who have been employed as call boys in the local Southern Pacific yards for the past few months, are enjoying a few weeks' vacation in San Francisco. They expect to return in time to start school next month.

Marl Weisenburger, the popular dispenser at Butler's, has left her position for a few weeks while she spends her vacation. She expects to spend a few days' visit with friends in Eugene soon. Queritta Brown has taken her position during her absence.
