PURCHASE OF W. S. S. BIG HELP TO NATION

The nation is preparing for the observance of a war savings stamp pledge day, June 28, on which date it is expected to pledge itself to the purchase of $15,000,000 worth of war savings stamps before January 1, 1919. Every man, woman and child in the state is supposed to have at least $20 worth of war stamps by that date, if Oregon is to maintain its record in support of war financing propositions.

and every time you exchange your sixteen thrift stamps for a war savings stamp, you are in a really big way contributing to the strength of your country and its cause. That is only part of what you are doing, however.

In an equally big way you are contributing to your own strength, for you are laying up money in the safest possible way and at a good rate of interest.

You are learning the first lesson of success—saving. Really you are doing more for yourself than you are doing for your country, and yet your country gets the benefit of it just as if you were not doing anything at all for yourself.

So of all the twin benefits that ever came walking down the trail of time, this little green stamp is the most remarkable.

At one and the same time it defends and teaches—helps to defend us against a foe insistent upon taking from us the most precious thing we have, and helps to teach us the lesson that we must learn in order to keep and really use these precious things after we have driven off the devils who are trying to take them from us.

It gives to two parties at the same time.

It gives to the government and it gives to you. It spends for the government and it saves for you. It enables a person to eat his cake and still have it—and that is a very remarkable thing.

For it helps to provide the money that protects your property and your life and at the same time that money and more will come back to you at the end of a few years.

So it comes that the thrift stamp is a very wonderful thing, and on this day, which is set aside to emphasize its value, every man, woman and child in the nation should get acquainted with its numerous and unusual advantages by buying one or more.

YEAST BREAD CALL FOR USE OF WHEAT

In response to many inquiries as to why bakeries and logging camps, along with hospitals, are made exceptions in the agreement which the food administration has asked all flour dealers to enter into, discontinuing the sale of wheat flour through the month of June or longer periods, H. H. Haynes, chief of the baking division for the food administration in Oregon, explains:

Logging camps and bakeries are already under federal license and regulation, which curtails their use of white flour substantially and necessitates the use of a heavy percentage of substitutes. That is one phase of the matter.

Many persons wonder why, if the housewife is expected to make wheatless breads, the baker is not also asked to do so. The answer will be obvious to anyone who will give the matter a little consideration, and here is another phase of the situation:

There are many formulas for quick breads that call for absolutely no wheat, and these are available to the housewife, whose product is eaten hot or at least while fresh. Such breads are made with baking powder or soda. But these breads will not do for the baker, who must produce a loaf that will "stand up" under repeated handlings, transportation to the retail dealer, and delivery from retailer to consumer, arriving in good condition and palatable to the taste.

Extensive experiments have shown that baking powder or soda loaves cannot be depended upon to meet these difficulties. Therefore, we must make yeast breads, and it is difficult to make a yeast bread without a considerable percentage of wheat flour.

Bakers are now making it successfully with two-thirds the volume made up of substitutes. Some of our bakers have produced successful loaves with a higher substitute content. Our bakers' chemists are continuously experimenting in the effort to still further cut down the wheat flour percentage—and at the same time produce an acceptable commercial loaf. The problem is not an easy one. Our bakers are all co-operating with the food administration in a splendid spirit and are doing all that is practicable to cut down their consumption of white flour.

Conditions in the logging camps are similar to those of the bakeries, and that is why they are, with the bakeries and hospitals, made exceptions in the food administration's request.

POCKETBOOKS ARE HARD HIT BY UNCLE SAMUEL

War taxes took $56,070,000 from the pockets of the American people in February, or $251,890,000 in the eight months since July 1. These figures, reported by the internal revenue bureau, are the tax increases for those periods over the same periods of the year previous, and represent substantially the result of heavier war levies.

BEST IN THE LONG RUN
Who Began Trench Warfare?
THE trench, which always encircled the Roman castra, or camp, was brought to France by Julius Caesar and used by him on the very battlefield where to-day the Allies and the Huns have 25,000 miles of trenches.
With rings of trenches, gradually drawn smaller, probably the first modern trench warfare, the Turks in 1657 took Candia.
Vauban, builder of Verdun, in 1673 employed the first parallel trenches, the system of the present war.
Defeat, not foresight, turned the Germans to trench warfare. But Goodrich never had to dig in.
Since twenty-two years ago Goodrich manufactured the first American pneumatic automobile tire, Goodrich has driven ahead to the big, graceful, masterful—
GOODRICH SERVICE VALUE TIRES
But whether Goodrich was revolutionizing tire manufacture by bringing forth the first American clincher tire—
Or originating the one practical non-skid, the cross-bar, safety-tread, or tough black tread rubber—
Goodrich built tires to one end—SERVICE VALUE—what they are worth to the motorist on his car and on the road in COMFORT of an easier riding car—ECONOMY in gasoline saved,—and LONG MILEAGE.
Small difference whether you buy GOODRICH SILVERTOWN CORDS, or BLACK SAFETY TREADS, you get SERVICE VALUE TIRES.

The majority of these were not cities but country districts.

Iowa, a typical agricultural state, was the first to subscribe its quota and was followed by Oregon, Arkansas, Kentucky, and other states in which agriculture is the leading industry.

It is impossible to give accurate figures but it is estimated that while only 2 per cent of the farming population of the United States subscribed to the first and second loans, probably ten times as many subscribed to the third. The significance is increased by the facts that the heavy subscription was made at a season when the farmers are ordinarily on the borrowing and not on the lending and investment side of the market, and when the farms of the country are speeded up to the limit.

This wide distribution of the third loan among the whole people shows that the body of the nation has become aroused and gone into action—that the sense of duty and the necessity for individual support of the country has permeated the whole people. Secretary McAdoo may justly be enthused over the result and call it the soundest national financing in the world. Every Liberty bond holder is an active force backing the government.

Our soldiers in France and our allies are heartened and strengthened by the knowledge that 17,000,000 American citizens are backing them with their money, and our enemies must learn with fear and dread of this great reserve force upon which their adversaries can rely.

To keep the good work up the American people must adopt scientific saving methods: save money, save materials, save labor, and save time. Thus we will bring the war to an earlier and victorious close and save the lives of American soldiers, and save our rights and our liberties and save the world to democracy, justice and civilization.

FARMERS RALLIED TO SUPPORT OF COUNTRY
Next to the aggregate number of subscriptions perhaps the most striking feature of the Third Liberty loan was the support given it by the farming and rural populations of the country. Not only did the farmers purchase liberally of the bonds, but the rural communities as a rule were more prompt in completing their quotas of the loan than the larger cities. More than 20,000 communities in the United States subscribed or oversubscribed their quotas, many of them on the first day of the campaign.
