BIG BODY OF SNOW AT CRATER LAKE
 H. E. Momyer, park ranger of the Crater Lake National Park, reports that there was 12 feet of soft snow at the park headquarters the first of the month. According to the estimate of Alex Sparrow, the park supervisor, this body of snow has undoubtedly been increased, as there has been much stormy weather since March 1, and this will indicate a later time for opening the park season. Last year the season was opened June 18; which is quite early for that resort. The snow, however, on March 1 last year was only 7 1/2 feet at headquarters. Mr. Momyer stated that the snow and stormy weather had been so severe in February that it had been impossible to reach the lake in February.
