TIME FOR FIRST CODLING MOTH SPRAY
Codling moth have been emerging during the past few days and from all indications the first brood will string out for at least six weeks, for we find all stages of development at the present time. It will not be possible to control the first brood with one application of spray. All fruits should be covered next week May 19th to 24th in the floor of the valley. Ashland and Eagle Point districts will be a little later. Pears that have not been sprayed with arsenate of lead this season should receive the first attention, then pass on to the apples.

The secret of codling moth control is in the thoroughness of the application at this time. You cannot be too thoro and it will pay you to spend more time and be sure to get results with this spray. If you have just completed spraying for the ten day application spray, it will not be necessary to make this application until two weeks after your last spray.

Use arsenate of lead, six pounds powder or twelve pounds of paste. It is not necessary to use lime and sulphur at this time except in special cases. As an experiment on part of your orchard try distillate oil emulsion, one gallon to the hundred as a spreader in your regular arsenate sprays.

Dated May 16, 1919.

BEES STRONG FOR CITY LITHIA WATER
Even the bees like Ashland lithia water. This was observed by E. E. Smith of Rocca street, a local bee fancier who has established a bee colony in that section of the city. Mr. Smith is a stranger to Ashland, having come here this spring from the east, thinking that this section would be an ideal location to raise bees on account of the orchards and alfalfa fields, and quantities of other flowers that abound here. He is well versed in bee lore and is a close observer of their habits.

It is Mr. Smith's custom to place a plate of salt and water where bees can reach it. In order for the latter to feed their young. Recently Mr. Smith noticed that the bees, instead
