AMERICA'S PRIDE

Ashland's Old First Company To Head Parade

The old First company, the first and only local organization of volunteers who answered to a man the call of their government to go out and fight for their country, will head the parade tomorrow in their battle-worn uniforms thru which they served during the world war. Leading this aggregation of brave men will be their former captain, Major C. A. Malone, and the hearts of Ashland citizens will thrill with gratitude when they see these men again in formation as they did the last time that early Sunday morning in July, 1918, when they entrained for Fort Stevens to start out on their great adventure.

At a talkfest held in the armory Tuesday night after the meeting called to organize the Post of American Legion, Major Malone asked the men of the old First company to enter the parade tomorrow in full uniform. Every man who went out with the old First company, whether he saw service on the fields of France or wherever their duties called them, were asked to respond, and what Major Malone asks, no man will refuse, for no man ever led a company who is so dearly beloved by his men as the old First company's former commander.

All members of Ashland's old First company have received military orders to meet at the armory Friday morning at 9:45 sharp, in full uniform and head the big parade. In order to show the love and gratitude Ashland has for her heroes in the great sacrifice they have made for her and their country, the very mountains should reverberate with the cheers of welcome that greet their appearance on the streets.

John Rigg, the returned Y. M. C. A. secretary who spent seven months in France, gave an address in the Medford Methodist church last Sunday morning.

WORLD WAR VETERANS MEET TO ORGANIZE

About forty world war veterans were present at the armory Tuesday evening at the meeting called to discuss the organization of a local post of the American Legion, a national movement to weld all men in the United States service into a fraternity to establish patriotism and stability for the government. Lynn D. Mowat presided at this meeting, with A. M. Throne acting as secretary.

Letters concerning the Legion and the temporary constitution for the organization as adopted at the St. Louis caucus were read to the assemblage, and a motion made by Dr. Gordon MacCracken to form a temporary organization of the Legion was carried.

A nominating committee consisting of Howard Barrett, Millard Grubb and W. M. Briggs made the following selection of temporary officers who were also elected: President, C. A. Malone; vice president, Dr. Gordon MacCracken; secretary, L. D. Mowat; treasurer, A. Bert Freeman; Executive committee, D. M. Spencer, John E. Enders, A. M. Throne, Beecher Danford, H. O. Butterfield.

After matters of organization were discussed the executive committee was instructed to get in touch with state officials in regard to a charter, etc., and as soon as preliminary arrangements are completed a mass meeting will be appointed at which every man in the service during the world war is asked to be present and join in the local post.

Adrian Wolf returned this week from Philadelphia where he had received his discharge from the navy in which he had been serving during the world war.

Local Telephone Girls Walked Out Tuesday

PROGRAM THIS YEAR OF UNUSUAL MERIT

The list of speakers who will appear in Ashland during the seven days commencing July 18th, is to say the least a marvellous achievement for the local Chautauqua association. The attractions furnished by the Ellison-White Co. are up to their usual standard and in addition to these we are to have Billy Sunday who will give his address on the evening of the opening day, July 18. William Jennings Bryan will speak the afternoon of July 22. Walter Jenkins, Song Leader, will be here the entire period and will inaugurate a great chorus for stimulating and arousing the song spirit.

One of the lecturers who is achieving great success, especially among business men and those desirous for the advancement of true civic pride, is Edward F. Trefz, an associate with Mr. Herbert Hoover in war work. The name of Ida Tarbell is a well known one to all magazine readers and now after a long period of work in all parts of the war zone Miss Tarbell comes home to talk with the American people about it. She will undoubtedly have one of the largest audiences of the session.

There are other noted names: Dr. Joseph Clare of London and Petrograd; Dr. A. D. Carpenter, the Scientist, and Miss R. Louise Fitch, who has written the book, "Madam France," and is a captivating and interesting speaker. And "Private Peat," the boy soldier whose book has already gone over the million mark and who has brought the war story home to the hearts of the people.

The musical attractions are also superior this season. The Lewis Military Quartet composed of the pick of trained voices at the Camp

At 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the local telephone operators went out on a strike and all telephone service in and out of the city was shut off that night and Wednesday forenoon. By noon, however, District Superintendent Van Houtte arrived from Eugene with three operators who went to work at once, and since then the office service has been uninterrupted.

According to the operators the reasons for striking is that the company will not allow maximum pay until after five years' service, while the operators ask for this after three years.

A new wage scale was presented by the company in June and was accepted by the employees. They had originally held out for $4 a day, but agreed to accept $3.11 a day. They also ask the minimum scale to be raised to $2 a day, and for double time on Sundays and holidays, and two weeks vacation at half pay.

In the afternoon a number of the Medford operators came up to confer with the Ashland operators, but no new developments have occurred.

assures a quartet par excellence; Mary Adel Hays, a truly great soprano and company in concert; the Apollo Concert Co., whose reputation is well known; the great Czechoslovak Band with Madame Cafarella, a wonderful singer; The Rezniers—The Recital Artists, and others constitute a marvellous list of musical talent.

Two other prime attractions are Elsie Mae Gordon, a charming impersonator, and Edwin M. Whitney of Boston, who will give a great reading on Sunday night. Subject, "Turn to the Right."

Sunday will be especially enjoyable from a musical standpoint with splendid chorus singing and the Lewis Quartette all day.

Auto Show Postponed For a Day

The auto show, announced to be held in the park Thursday morning has been postponed until Friday morning, as the participants were not ready. The grounds are being artistically decorated and the show is beginning to be put in shape.

Vining Theatre Adds Attractions

The Vining Theatre has been undergoing many improvements recently that has added much to the beauty of this noted play house. Manager O. T. Bergner has added a number of flower boxes, hanging baskets and potted plants over the front of the building that present an artistic and attractive touch to the exterior of the Theatre Beautiful.
