Big Community Sing Lithia Park Monday

Every person in the Rogue River valley who can sing is especially invited to Ashland next Monday night to participate in the great community sing which will open the twenty-eighth annual session of the Southern Oregon Chautauqua festivities. And every person who does not think he can sing is urged to come also, because when he gets here he will find out he can sing, and will go away with perhaps the dream of his life realized.

Walter Jenkins is coming to lead this great songfest. Don't you know Walter Jenkins? If you don't, then for goodness sake, don't fail to come Monday night, and you'll sing when you get here, if you never did before. This is a foreordained fact.

Beginning at 8.30 o'clock at Lithia park the greatest community sing ever held in the Rogue River valley is expected to be staged. Leading this will be Walter Jenkins, the noted song leader of Portland who is to have charge of the singing during Chautauqua. The Ashland band, the members of the National Guard of Ashland and Medford will be present, and naturally every citizen of Ashland will be on the spot promptly at the time set.

But more than this is expected. Every person in the Rogue River valley who feels the natural thanksgiving in their hearts for the glorious ending of the black years of war are urged to come to Ashland Monday night and enter into the lovefeast of song which will be given at that time. This is the logical expression of joy, and assuredly Walter Jenkins will be able to bring it forth at this time.

Wednesday evening every car in Ashland and the nearby community will be commanded to go to Medford where a like community sing will be held. Ashland and Medford have joined hands in making these social events the biggest, happiest, noisiest songfests ever held in the valley, and everyone in the intervening spaces will miss the times of their lives if they fail to be present in Ashland Monday night and in Medford Wednesday night.

The hour will be Monday evening, 8.30 sharp, and the place Lithia park. Don't miss the great event of the week.

Returning Airplane Passed Over City

Lieut. Peters, the aviator who left Portland after the Rose Festival in June and toured Eastern Oregon, passed over Ashland Tuesday afternoon in his Curtiss bi-plane. Word had been received in Medford that the plane would land in that city at noon to take on gas and oil, so Ashland residents were on the lookout. The visitors arrived in Medford at about 2:35, however, and made the landing at Gore field, after which it started on its homeward flight to Mather Field, Sacramento, passing over here about 3 o'clock. The plane was flying quite low over Ashland and could be plainly seen and heard. It apparently took on speed after the city limits were passed and very soon vanished into the ether towards the south.

Fisher Laundry Changes Hands

Last week a business deal was made whereby the Fisher Laundry operated by E. L. Fisher passed into the hands of F. E. French, formerly of Kalispell, Montana. The latter will take possession on August 18. Mr. French recently disposed of his laundry plant in Kalispell and started with his wife on an automobile tour ending in San Diego, Calif. Their route took them thru Washington and Oregon, and on reaching Ashland they stopped over night, here, camping in the auto park. They were so enchanted with this city that they immediately investigated the possibilities of locating in this vicinity, and before leaving came to an agreement with Mr. Fisher to take over the plant.

Mr. French is an expert laundryman of many years' experience, and will give the business his close personal attention. Mr. Fisher has given excellent service during his reign at the local plant and has made many friends while in business here. He has made no definite plans for the future, after retiring from the laundry here.

FOUNTAINS DID GOOD BUSINESS THE FOURTH

According to reports over $160 were taken in at the slot machines stationed at the several drinking fountains in the park during the Fourth of July celebration last week. This sum was made up with nickels and assumed the appearance of a good sized bunch of coin when assembled together for deposit at a local bank.

TEST VOTE SHOWS "DRYS" HAVE LARGE MAJORITY

Prohibitionists in the house Tuesday won the first test vote on prohibition enforcement legislation. By a vote of 229 to 56 immediate consideration of the enforcement bill was ordered, as demanded by drys. The action was taken by adopting the resolution of the sub-committee.

Runaway Children Found In Portland

Juanita and Buster Tull, 13 and 12 years of age respectively, have been missing from their home in Medford since Sunday evening, and their mother, Mrs. Ella Tull, feared for a time that they had been kidnapped. An unknown woman, it was rumored, had been attracted to the children at the roundup here last week, and it is claimed she offered Juanita a position as a movie actress. It was at first thought she had taken them to Venice, Calif., but a long distance telephone message from Portland notified Sheriff Terrill that the children had been picked up in Portland. On concluding his investigations Sheriff Terrill is convinced the children ran away from home to that city.

Old First Company After War Records

Members of the Old First company O. A. C., who were organized in Ashland before the entrance of the United States into the world war, are accumulating the war records of the members to preserve for future reference. Pictures of every member who went out from this famous company and served in any department during the war will also be obtained to be entered into this history. This history will be of inestimable value to future generations when the great, great grandchildren of the World War veterans search thru dusty archives to trace their eligibility to join the Sons and Daughters of the American Legion.

Another important project under consideration by the members of the old First company will be placing of some suitable memento in honor of the boys from Ashland who did not return from the war.

Vice-Pres. McCormick Recreates Here

E. O. McCormick, Vice President of the Southern Pacific Company, and sons Henry and E. O., Jr., are spending the week here, fishing and recreating. Thursday they made the trip to Mount Ashland and the rest of the week will visit the mines in this vicinity and fish the streams. Mr. McCormick says this is one of the best places on the coast to visit this time of year. The boys and Mrs. McCormick will spend the month of August here and the boys will do some hunting.

General Superintendent Lathrop of the S. P. Company came in from San Francisco, Wednesday, and spent the past few days in Ashland together with Superintendent Dyer of Portland.

Charles Wimer of Myrtle Creek was a recent visitor in Ashland.

Fatal Automobile Accident On High Drive

One man was killed and another badly injured Wednesday evening when an automobile overturned on the Glenview Drive. Joseph P. Hendricks, an employe in the Southern Pacific roundhouse, was almost instantly killed, while C. R. D. Jones, an S. P. engineer and owner of the car, suffered a broken rib and serious bruises. The automobile is practically a total wreck.

The accident occurred about 7:30 o'clock when Mr. Jones, shortly before going out on the road, took Mr. Hendricks out for a little ride with him in his car. According to Mr. Jones' statement on reaching the high drive Mr. Hendricks reached over and took the wheel from the former's grasp with the statement that he would show Mr. Jones how to drive. In the transaction before the latter could recover possession of the wheel the car headed directly over the bank where it turned over four times before striking a tree 100 feet down which finally stopped its wild plunge.

Mr. Hendricks was thrown from the car about half way down to where it lodged, while Mr. Jones miraculously clung to the car and lighted with wreck when the car was halted. Despite his injuries he managed to reach his companion, whom he found with his skull crushed and in a dying condition, and death resulted in a very short time.

EX-KAISER TO BE BROUGHT TO LONDON FOR TRIAL

The agreement of the allied council for the former kaiser to be tried in London was tacit, but is regarded as binding. Premier Lloyd George suggested London as the place to hold the trial, and none objected.

As soon as help arrived Mr. Jones was taken to his home, while the body of the unfortunate man who had lost his life in the casualty was removed to Stock's undertaking parlors to await the arrival of relatives.

Joseph P. Hendricks had been a resident of this section for about ten years, a number of which he had been associated with his brother, J. Frank Hendricks, in conducting a wood yard near the Wagner springs east of Ashland. For the past two years he had been employed in the local roundhouse. He was about 55 years of age and is survived by his parents and a sister in Iowa, his brother, J. Frank Hendricks, two daughters and a son living in Sacramento. The latter, Harold, had come to Ashland last week to visit his father and is still here. The daughters are Miss Georgie Hendricks and Mrs. G. L. Kuhn, who were notified of the death of their father and arrived from Sacramento last evening.

Funeral services over the body of the unfortunate man will be held from the Stock undertaking parlors Saturday afternoon, with interment in Mountain View cemetery. An inquest is expected to be held this afternoon.

The body was taken to her home at the Indian reservation in Klamath county Wednesday, and was accompanied by the other members of the family. Sylvia was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Crowley of the Klamath agency and was a bright young girl of much popularity among her neighbors and friends.

President Finds Big Tasks Ahead

President Wilson, returning to the United States this week, is confronted with many important issues.

A great number of bills are on his desk at the White House awaiting signature. In addition, he is expected to name a charge d'affaires for the American embassy in Berlin, consult with Secretary Redfield with regard to resumption of commercial relations with Germany, after the trading-with-the-enemy law expires upon proclamation of peace; take action on the persistently reported desire of Secretary Baker to retire; to decide when demobilization will be ended and war prohibition will be lifted and take a hand in plans for returning the railroads to their owners.

Among the bills before him are the sundry civil, army and navy, general deficiency, the act returning telegraph systems to their owners and the agricultural appropriation bill. The latter contains the clause repealing the daylight saving. Petitions have been received against this repeal. The president's attitude toward it is not known.

Immediately upon his return to Washington he is expected to call an important meeting at which for the first time in months he will discuss domestic affairs with his official advisers.

Early decision is looked for on the question whether peace may be proclaimed at once or not until after the senate has ratified the peace treaty.

Demands for removal of Postmaster General Burleson, some of which have taken the form of petitions, are not believed likely to move the president to action.

Friends of Eugene V. Debs and other imprisoned radicals are expected to soon take their appeals to the White House.

The 1920 presidential campaign is already beginning to loom and some expression from the president as to a third term may be forthcoming, some observers believe. An utterance he made in a speech in Paris has been taken in some quarters here as being a hint that he did not want another term.

Germans Ratified The Peace Treaty

A dispatch from Weimar, Germany, Wednesday states that a resolution ratifying the peace treaty was adopted by the German national assembly by a vote of 209 to 115. The German national assembly was the first elective body in any country which signed the treaty to adopt the ratifying resolution.

Ratification by Germany will cause the allies to raise the blockade and lift commercial censorship on communications with Germany. The signing of the peace treaty has caused the department of justice to decide that most German and Austrian enemy aliens now on parole may be released from all obligations.

Friday, July 18, is the opening day of the 28th annual meeting of the Southern Oregon Chautauqua, and the coming session promises to be of greater interest than usual. The great, stirring features of the world war are brought to our attention by those writers and speakers who have been there. For instance, coming on the first afternoon, July 18, is Dr. Joseph Clare, of Petrograd, who was pastor of the British and American church and lived in the Russian capital during the war and the days of revolution. Lest you become wearied with thinking of these great tragic events, music and fun are interspersed, so on the same opening afternoon the McDonough-Eagleston Co. furnish a musical fun program. It has just been decided that opening day, Billy Sunday, and picnic day will be the best day to make Service Men's Day, so the city of Ashland and the Chautauqua association extend to all service men of Jackson county the freedom of the city and of the Chautauqua on this day. All service men will be expected to take seats on the great stage and join in the great Victory chorus led by Walter Jenkins, the camp community song leader. The big event of the day will be the address by Billy Sunday in the evening.

Saturday, July 19, will be a musical and splendid program all day with the splendid Fillion Concert Party headed by Ferdinand Fillion, the famous French violinist, also Fern Goltra, lyric soprano and former member of the Chicago Grand Opera Co. Dr. A. D. Carpenter, eminent scientist, gives us a great lecture on "World's in the Making." In the evening we are to have a very able and distinguished gentleman who has been the right hand man to Herbert Hoover, in Europe. Edward P. Traut, who takes us right into the problems which are before us in the lecture, "And Now What?" Please remember that we are to sandwich in the greatest bit of singing ever heard in Ashland, Walter Jenkins, the war camp song leader being here all the time.

Sunday, July 20. We can't tell you all about Sunday yet. It's to be a big Sunday, with the Camp Lewis.

Milburn Harvey Is President Of Class

Among the graduates of the Santa Ana, Calif., school, is Milburn Harvey, grandson of Mrs. A. R. Gregory and Mrs. A. L. Harvey of this city. Milburn was one of the presidents of the class of 112 students and has been prominent in student affairs during the course. Among the graduating exercises June 26, was the planting of a deodar tree by the east entrance of the administration building of the high school, in which Milburn Harvey, president of the class, threw in the dirt around the deodar tree, selected as the class tree, and turned the shovel over to Douglas Keech, president of the junior class, and charged him with the care of the tree for the coming year.

Other ceremonies consisted of the placing of a bronze tablet upon the walls of the school upon which were engraved the names of eight former high school students and one former instructor who died while in the service of their country. The tablet was covered with a beautiful silk American flag. Milburn Harvey, president of the senior class, in an address of dedication, declared that the sacrifices made by those whose lives were given must forever be an inspiration to every high school student, not only those of today but those who hereafter attend that school.

Milburn with his mother, is spending the summer in Ashland and expects to enter the Stanford law school next year.

L. L. Mullt, vice president of the Northwestern National bank of Portland, spent the past few days in Ashland, visiting his mother and sons, who are spending the summer here.
