WILSON CONSIDERING

H. C. L. PROBLEMS
President Wilson is giving "deep and very thoughtful consideration" to the high cost of living, it was announced at the White House and all branches of the government are at work.

The president is understood to have been deeply impressed by the statement presented to him by Warren S. Stone, chief of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, describing the unrest over the country because of the decreased purchasing power of the dollar.

In this connection, it became known recently that the Order of Railway Trainmen had presented to the railroad administration a statement similar to that of the engineers setting forth that the trainmen must have increased wages unless immediate steps were taken to reduce living costs.

First steps in the federal government's attempt to reduce the high cost of living were taken last week with the inauguration of a plan for the sale of $125,000,000 worth of army food stocks direct to the people with every postmaster and mail carrier over the country acting as a salesman.

While this program was being put into effect, President Wilson had before him a statement from the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, which declared that "conscienceless profiteering by the great interests who have secured control of all the necessities of life" had brought about such conditions that the engineers felt they must demand increased wages unless living expenses speedily were reduced.

At the department of justice investigations into the causes of increased living costs were under way with particular attention being given to the question of whether producers had combined in violation of law to raise prices of necessities.

Meantime, there was pending in the house a resolution proposing that the federal trade commission investigate rising costs of coffee, sugar, shoes and clothing.

Sec'y Baker Favors Compulsory Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Maintenance of one field army with a war strength of 1,250,000 men is proposed in a bill establishing a permanent military policy which was sent to congress today by Secretary Baker.

The active force of this army would be 510,000 regulars while the remainder would be young men who had taken a three months' military training course, which would be compulsory for all 19 year old youths. This reserve strength would be used to fill out the twenty infantry divisions and cavalry divisions into which it is proposed to divide the regular army.

The plan for registering youths of 19 years is the same, with slight modifications, as that applied during the war under the selective service act. The average number of boys of 19 to be found qualified for training each year would be approximately 600,000. This number from the last annual class to have been trained will be held ready for immediate mobilization at all times.

The universal military plan would be put in effect in Hawaii and Porto Rico, as well as in the continental United States. During training youths would receive no pay but all expense would be borne by the government. The government would pay to dependants an amount equal to the average monthly amount received by them for support for the preceding six months, provided this did not exceed $50 a month.

H. J. Boyd took a party consisting of Mrs. Geo. H. Way, Miss Stearns and Dr. Mattie Shaw and son to Crater Lake this morning in his taxi. They expect to be gone several days.

Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Wallsten are back from a two weeks' vacation spent at Long Beach and Los Angeles.

Col. May Resigned Head of 3rd O. I.

A dispatch from Salem Saturday stated that the governor's office had received a letter from Colonel May requesting that he be relieved from all responsibility regarding the 3rd Oregon regiment. The adjutant general said that Colonel May had been urged to wait a few days before making his resignation effective and reconsider his determination to resign.

"He has agreed to wait a few days," said the adjutant general.

Staffin's letter to the governor reads in part:

"To the best of our knowledge and belief Colonel May was the only colonel of infantry in the state of Oregon who could qualify without examination. Owing to his excellent record abroad, where among seven colonels engaged in the same work he was the only colonel who, because of his skill and efficiency, retained his command. He was therefore ordered from the unassigned list back to command of his regiment to function as colonel thereof until federal recognition could be secured for the entire regiment.

"In spite of the fact that this officer was the only officer who could qualify, and in spite of the fact that his military experience with the national guard and regular army covers more than 30 years and in spite of the fact that it was only at the request of these headquarters that he consented to perform the arduous duties incident to the final preparation of this regiment for federal approval, a portion of the press of this state, apparently controlled by very few disgruntled officers and individuals, attacked him so shamelessly, he requested of us that he be relieved of all responsibility whatever regarding this regiment. As a result there is no regimental organization in this state and Oregon has only 11 separate companies.

"Regarding Major J. Francis Drake, who was recognized by the federal government at major quartermaster corps in the fall of 1917, these headquarters desire to state that Major Drake, these headquarters, and his many friends were untiring in their efforts to induce the war department to employ this officer either at home or abroad, as they should see fit, but without success. Throughout this war, Major Drake has been untiring in his efforts in behalf of the military establishment of the state, serving actively as commanding officer of the battalion of infantry located in Portland.

"Again it is a source of keen regret to these headquarters that this officer should be so falsely accused by a portion of the press on account of difficulties that arose between himself and a press representative, while Major Drake was a member of the school board of the city of Portland."
