In the deeds the consideration was given as $5, but the revenue stamps went to show that the purchase price for each claim was $500. The deeds were closed in Portland, from which place the deeds were forwarded to the recorder, by John A. Du Bois, who represents a Pennsylvania company.

The identity of the man found in the fishing boat which was washed ashore on Long beach a few days ago has been discovered. "Lighthouse" Nelson, a well known character among fishermen, has been arrested by Chief Hall and is now confined in jail. It appears that Nelson and a companion shipped on the lumber schooner Addenda, lying at Knappton, and the following day went ashore and stole the boat with the intention of sailing around to Gray's harbor. After getting outside the Heads the boat was capsized and afterwards was washed ashore, its only occupant being Nelson. Nelson refuses to give any information so far as to the fate of his companion, but he was undoubtedly drowned. As soon as the owner of the boat files complaint against him, Nelson will be given a hearing in the justice court.

There is little improvement in the run of fall fish. Some of the seiners from up the river were in the city yesterday employing men. They say that men are hard to find, and consequently many of the seines are being operated shorthanded. Much complaint is made regarding the encroachments of the trappers on seining grounds, especially those located on the Oregon side of the river. The Oregon law permits piling to be driven anywhere, providing the channel is kept clear. The only regulation trappers on the Oregon side have to comply with is that traps shall be driven 90 feet apart. It is said that even this restriction has been violated and that traps are being driven at a much closer distance in many places along the river. The seiners and gillnetters aver that they have called the attention of Fish Commissioner Reed to this infraction of the law without avail. On the Washington side, trappers are prohibited from driving piling in navigable waters. The law, however, while not entirely obeyed, has been sufficient to confine traps to the edge of the channel where no interference is possible with gillnet-
