There are a number of improvements being made in various parts of the city that in a smaller place would be considered quite noteworthy. Residences and storehouses are being erected, stores enlarged and many other evidences of progress and growth strike the eye of a stroller 'round town.

The captains of the two German ships, the Neck and the Carl, have made a bet as to which will arrive in Europe first. The Neck arrived from Portland a few days ago and the Carl arrived yesterday. Both are wheat laden and they will probably be towed to sea today.

At a special meeting of the Portland chamber of commerce, held yesterday afternoon, a special committee was appointed to investigate the report that the Union Pacific company is contemplating an extension of the O. R. & N. road to the Sound. The committee is composed of some of Portland's most distinguished and energetic business men, and it is said to be the determination of the Portland chamber to sift the intentions and policy of the Union Pacific to the bottom. There is much concern throughout all ranks of business men over the situation.

There is some money up in Astoria on the Columbia-Shamrock race, but the betting does not keep pace with the interest aroused. So far as known, the amounts placed are small and no odds given, although the Columbia followers are in a large majority, as is natural. According to the reports, eastern critics are inclined to believe that the races attempted to be sailed so far show the Shamrock to be the better boat, but local experts say that, judging from the bulletin, if there has been anything to indicate what the boats can do in a good breeze, it is in favor of the Columbia.

At the regular meeting of Holy Ranch, No. 19, United Modern Vigilantes, the election of officers for the ensuing year was held, with the following results: Leader, C. C. Brower; vesta, Mrs. R. J. Voeth; aide, R. C. Voeth; vesta aide, Mrs. S. B. Slade; scribe, M. B. Bozorth; treasurer, D. R. Campbell; enterpriser, Mrs. M. B. Bozorth; scout, J. L. Crandall; examiner, Dr. H. L. Henderson; guard, Mrs. J. L. Henderson; outer guard, I. A. Haaven; approver, W. J. Cook. Considerable business was transacted and several new members received, while prospects are good for a number of initiations at the next meeting.

The boys who broke into Nick Clinton's tool chest and stole, threw away or destroyed a number of tools, have been discovered. Chief of Police Hallock has been quietly looking up the culprits since the matter was reported, and yesterday arrested half a dozen youngsters whose ages range from 6 to 12 years. Some of them were mixed up in the Cedar street school affair. Their youthfulness makes the case a difficult one to handle. Their former trouble evidently has taught them nothing, and there are two or three other gangs in town on the look-out for mischief. The case will be tried before Justice Hughes.

Mrs. W. W. Parker will leave in a few days for Southern California to reside. Mrs. Parker has long been known in Astoria as a leader in charitable and temperance work, and was secretary and treasurer of the Rescue club for many years after its organization. She was one of the first members of the club. Dr. O. B. Estes was its president at that time, and much good was accomplished by their combined efforts. The property belonging to the club, including a piano, chairs, etc., will be turned over to the W. C. T. U. The directors and trustees of the club, as well as all others interested, are requested to meet at the office of Dr. Estes tomorrow evening for the purpose of formally turning over the property.

Under an execution issued from the circuit court of Multnomah county, the stock of lumber, saw and tugboat belonging to the H. B. Borthwick Lumber company were seized by Sheriff Linville yesterday. The judgment is in favor of Jas. T. Watson, trustee, and the Commercial National bank of Portland, and is for $38,766.03, plus $25.00 attorney's fees and for costs. A number of defendants, including H. B. Borthwick and Borthwick & Fane are named in the judgment. The execution was not levied with the purpose to tie up or embarrass the affairs of the Borthwick Lumber company, but was taken as a formal action to keep the judgment alive and protect the interests of the several interested parties. The mill at Goble and the Astoria yard will be operated as usual.

At the special meeting of the council Wednesday night, the action of City Treasurer Carney in refusing to pay compound interest on warrants held by J. F. Hamilton was upheld by the council. City Attorney Allen, in giving an opinion on the subject, stated that while Mr. Carney was correct from a commercial standpoint, Mr. Hamilton is technically right. Mr. Carney, however, refused to pay Mr. Hamilton the difference in dispute until authorized so to do by the council. The opinion of the city attorney settles the matter so far as the city treasurer is concerned, unless Mr. Hamilton or the holders of similar warrants bring suit in the courts, a course not considered likely. Mr. Carney has maintained from the beginning that his method of computing interest on warrants where partial payments were made was the proper one, and precisely the same system followed by the commercial houses and banks of the city. A resolution was passed by the council directing the city treasurer to adhere to this method of paying interest on warrants.

WASHINGTON BOYS GET BIG GREETING

WERE LANDED YESTERDAY

Will Remain at Presidio for Some Days Before Returning Home—Banqueted by Minnesotians.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—The First Washington volunteers and the other soldiers who arrived here yesterday from Manila on the transport Pennsylvania, were landed this morning and marched to the ferry building, where breakfast was served to them under the direction of the citizens' reception committee. The soldiers were given a fine reception. After breakfast they were again mustered into line and marched to the Presidio. Their route took them through the business section of the city, and all along the line they were received with wild hurrahs, the blowing of whistles and the firing of cannons.

The new arrivals were escorted to the Presidio by the Presidio band, two batteries of the Third artillery, and troop G of the Sixth cavalry. On Van Ness avenue the regiment was reviewed by General Shafter, Governor Rogers of Washington and Governor Stanley of Kansas.

The camp for the Washingtons had been prepared for them in advance, and on arrival at the reservation very little had to be done to make the men comfortable. The soldiers will remain here for some time. Arrangements have been made to take them to their northern homes in special trains provided by Levi Ankeny, the Walla Walla millionaire, who has a son in the regiment.

While the speech-making was in progress at the ferries, a committee of ladies from Washington were attending to the wants of the soldiers at the breakfast table and decorating them with flowers. After breakfast the men reported back to the transport to get their arms, and shortly afterward the command to march was sounded.

The procession was led by the Third artillery band and two companies of heavy artillery. The governor of Washington, visiting citizens of Washington and city representatives followed in carriages.

Then came the First Washington band, the drum corps and the volunteers. The soldiers wore their blue fatigue uniforms. In the rifles of the men had been placed bouquets of roses and pinks. The men appeared to be in excellent condition, and marched like veterans. The Third artillery and two troops of cavalry followed the volunteers.

The entrance to the Presidio was reached a few minutes after noon, and the men were given permission, immediately upon their arrival at the camp, to attend to their luggage and rest in the tents.

The Washington soldiers will remain in camp for several weeks before going north to their homes.

The First Montana regiment played host to the returning Washington volunteers at the Presidio today.

The entire returning regiment was given luncheon in the camp of the boys of the middle Northwest. Each company of enlisted men entertained the company of corresponding letter in the Washington regiment, the banquet being spread in the company mess rooms.

The officers of the Montana regiment entertained the officers of the visiting regiment in their mess hall.

HOW THE CORSET CAME.

Catherine de Medici first introduced the corset into France. Her example, however, was not followed by Mary Stuart or Diana Poitiers, though it was imitated by all the ladies of the French court that it was utterly indispensable to the beauty of the female infancy and was fashionable more after the style of a knight's charras than anything else. The framework was made entirely of iron, and the velvet which decorated the exterior only served to hide a frightful and cumbersome article of toiture. This state of things, so ruinous to health and personal convenience, could not last long, and the artizans of those days gave much time and thought toward rendering the metal more light and pliable. The corset found great favor in the eyes of Louis XIV., but in the following reign it was threatened with entire banishment from the toilet. Fashion took a rural and simple turn, many of the court celebrities being guided by the taste of Boucher, in whose pictures many of them appear as shepherds and shepherdesses. When the painter departed, however, fashion returned once more to the eccentricities and extravagancies of former times. Corsets were again forgotten during the revolution, being practically tabooed by the fashionable world. The beauties of the day went in for classical fashions. Roman dress being held in especial esteem. The empire did away with the classic fashions, but did not take the corset back into favor. High waists were all the vogue, and the more décollete a costume the more fashionable it was considered. With the fall of the empire came the fall of the waists, and then, as a matter of course, the return to the corset followed.
