It is a source of regret to many republicans in Oregon that the Oregonian sees fit to continue its criticisms of the president, to the point often of misrepresenting the motives and refusing to give him the credit he deserves for many official acts which have called forth the most unstinted praise from life-long political opponents among other party leaders and democratic papers. The Oregonian does this regardless of its own admissions that no other candidate will be thought of for president at the Philadelphia convention and that the democrats are equally certain to nominate no one but Bryan at the Kansas City meeting. What possible object the Oregonian can have in the continuance of this policy it is hard to understand. Certainly that paper does not want to see Bryan elected, for whatever it may honestly believe as to the deficiencies of McKinley it cannot look upon the election of Bryan in any light but that of a public calamity. Yet, day after day, both in the columns of the Oregonian and its evening contemporary, the Telegram, the same blind and carping criticism of the president is continued, with never one word of commendation for any of his public acts, no matter how meritorious. There never was a time when the election of a republican president was so important to Oregon and the whole Pacific coast. There was never a time when the election of a democratic president would prove so utterly disastrous to the business interests and future prospects of the Pacific coast. If for no other reason than that the republican party is committed to the policy of commercial expansion, and whoever its president and however unworthy in a personal sense he might be, he must carry out the demands and principles of that party—if for no other reason than that the democratic party will be committed by the adoption of its platform at Kansas City, and doubly so committed by the selection of its leader, against the policy of expansion, especially in the direction which alone can benefit the Pacific coast—it would look like every intelligent and influential paper in this section would be earnestly enlisted thus far in advance of the convention in securing all possible support for the republican candidate for president. Yet the Oregonian, while professing to oppose Mr. Bryan and his unpatriotic and even revolutionary theories, is lending him aid every day to the fullest extent of its influence and power by creating dissatisfaction with McKinley among the Oregon members of its own party. There is reason to fear the republican leaders of this state do not realize the capacity for mischief in this direction of the Portland papers. Republicans right here in Clatsop county have been heard to express dissatisfaction with the president, who, when asked, were unable to assign any reason for their objections. It is plain that this state of feeling is due to no other cause than the unjust and unwise aspersions the Oregonian has so long and persistently sought to cast upon his administration. We reprint this morning an article from a prominent Eastern paper on a recent speech of the president, which every republican in Clatsop county should read in the light of some things the Oregonian has lately had to say about him. The article will be found below, and is copied from one of the strongest and stanchest democratic papers in the country—the Philadelphia Times. It is a tribute which should make every republican as proud of the president as the writer of the article and the democratic paper in which it is published is evidently proud of him. It should be republished in the country press throughout Oregon. It should be kept standing before the people, and especially the republicans of Oregon. It will do much to offset the feeling of dissatisfaction which the Oregonian has created. It will throw a light upon the president's policies and purposes which will be a new revelation of his character to many republican readers of the Oregonian. The Clatsop county central committee should see that the article and others like it are given a wide circulation in this county. The republican party in Oregon unfortunately stands in need of the circulation of just such campaign literature.

Young Girls

How easy it is for young girls to go into the "decline." They eat less and less, become paler and paler and can hardly drag through the day. They are on the steady downward course. Iron does them no good; strychnine and bitters all fail. They need a food that will nourish them better, and a medicine that will correct their disease.

Scott's Emulsion

is both of these, elegantly and permanently combined. The Cod-Liver Oil makes the blood richer, and this gives better color to the face. The hypophosphites of lime and soda act as a strong tonic to the nerves. Soon the weight increases, the digestion improves and health returns.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Philadelphia Times.

Mr. McKinley's speech at the Ohio dinner in New York was a broad and earnest appeal for faith in the nation's ability to meet the new responsibilities which it cannot shirk, as it has always met the duties that have arisen in its history. He does not shut his eyes to the gravity of the problem that has grown out of an unavoidable and unregrettable war. "No phrase or catchword," he well says, "can cancel the sacred obligation it involves. No use of epithets, no aspersion of motives by those who differ will contribute to that sober judgment so essential to right conclusions."

The dinner was not an occasion for a public declaration of policy or a party appeal of any kind, and it is not as a party man that the president does or can appeal to the public conscience at this time. Some words of congratulation he has upon results achieved that are in the nature of an answer to the grumblers. "We will soon have legislative assurance of the continuance of the gold standard with which to measure our exchanges and we have the open door in the East through which to market our products. We are neither in alliance nor antagonism, nor entanglement with any foreign power, but are on terms of amity and cordiality with all. We buy from all of them and sell to all of them and our sales exceeded our purchases in the past two years by over one billion dollars."

This is beyond a doubt a true statement of our present international relations, and nothing could more forcibly illustrate the change which events have wrought in our commercial and economic attitude than the disappearance of the "home market" idea of the author of the McKinley tariff. Broadened conditions bring broader views. "The country is well to do; its people for the most part are happy and contented. They have good times and are on good terms with the nations of the world." Yet there are some who seem "to thrive best upon bad times," and when good times overtake them, "feel constrained to put us on bad terms with the rest of mankind." This is the only reference the president made or needed to make to one large class of disappointed agitators and narrow obstructionists who do not and cannot represent the sentiment of their countrymen.

He dwells upon some aspects of the recent war which showed how bravely the country always meets new emergencies. "Partisanship can hold few of us against solemn public duty," and the stars on the flag that has been sustained by the hearts of all the people "are only those of radiant hope." There can be—and this is another of the salient phrases of the president's speech—"there can be no imperialism. Those who have faith in the republic are against it. So that there is universal abhorrence for it and unanimous opposition to it." The only difference is that "those who do not agree with us have no confidence in the virtue or capacity or high purpose or good faith of this free people as a civilizing agency." But the century of free government the American people have enjoyed has not made them faithless or irresolute; it has the better fitted them to establish liberty and justice and good government wherever the responsibility has come to them. "We have the new care and cannot shift it," is the president conclusion; "and breaking up the camp of ease and isolation, let us bravely and hopefully and soberly continue the march of faithful service and falter not until the work is done."

The whole spirit of the speech is calm and brave, earnest and patriotic. Without a doubt it voices the common sentiment of the country. It will not silence the faithless and faltering and those who see only evil in the progress of the world, or those who see their own advantage in opposition; but it was a speech that was proper to be made at this time and it will do very much to reassure any faint hearts that are candid and sincere and to keep the discussion of public policies on a plane of serious dignity and good sense. A nation cannot preserve its institutions by standing still, by refusing hard tasks, by clinging to the preconceptions or the sentimental maxims of the past. Mr. McKinley himself has revised many of his old opinions in these three years, but his grasp of essential principles is stronger than it was before. His present appeal is for confidence not in himself but in the judgment and the adaptability of the American people, a judgment that can always be trusted in a great emergency when guided by a high and hopeful ideal.

"Housework is hard work without Gold Dust"

To Clean Matting

Few things can be used to clean matting; salt and soda have been used, but experience has taught that the best way is to have the matting thoroughly swept, and then go over it with a solution of warm water with dissolved in it; it is best to use a woolen cloth; a tablespoonful of Gold Dust Washing Powder to a quart of water is the proportion, wring the cloth almost dry and rub quickly, but the moment the water gets dirty, change it for fresh; then follow the wet cloth with a dry one. This will clean it perfectly.

COMMERCIAL STREET IMPROVEMENT.

Notice is Hereby Given, That the Common Council of the City of Astoria has determined to and intends to improve all that portion of Commercial street in that part of the city of Astoria, Clatsop county, state of Oregon, as laid out and recorded by Joh McClure, from the west line of Tenth street to the west line of Eighth street to the full width thereof and on the established grade thereof, by removing all the old sills and planking and replacing with new stringers and planking the same with sound fir planking 4x12 inches, and with the construction of sidewalks and gutters on both sides of said portion of street. The said improvement as to its construction in matters of detail and the material to be used, except as hereinbefore stated, shall be in accordance with the provisions of Ordinance No. 1901, of the city of Astoria, entitled "An Ordinance in relation to the improvements of streets," approved the 3rd day of January, 1895, except that the lumber to be used therein may be of any color of good sound fir lumber, and said improvement to be made strictly in accordance with the specifications therefor to be deposited with the auditor and police judge of said city by the city surveyor.

The costs and expenses of said improvement shall be defrayed by special assessment upon the lots, lands and premises fronting upon and adjacent to said portion of said street proposed to be improved and such other lands as in the opinion of the council will be benefited by said proposed improvement which said lots, lands and premises so fronting upon, adjacent to and benefited by said proposed improvement, which constitute all the lands benefited by said proposed improvement, are hereby included within a special assessment district hereby established for said improvement and to be assessed to defray the costs and expenses of making the same as specially benefited by the same and described as follows to-wit: Beginning at the northeast corner of lot five (5) in block number twenty-five (25) and running thence west on a straight line to the northwest corner of lot eight (8) in block twenty-four (24), thence south on the west line of blocks twenty-four (24) and twenty-seven (27) to the southwest corner of lot number one (1) in block twenty-seven (27), thence east on a straight line to the southeast corner of lot four (4) in block twenty-six (26) thence north on the east line of blocks 26 and 25 to the point of beginning and containing lots 5, 6, 7 and 8 in block 24, lots 5, 6, 7 and 8, in block 25, lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 in block 26, and lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 in block 27.

This notice is published in the Daily Astorian for eight days in pursuance to a resolution duly adopted by the common council of the City of Astoria on the 5th day of March, 1900, the first publication of this notice being on Thursday, March 14, 1900.

Mr. J. Sheer, Sedalia, Mo., saved his child's life by One Minute Cough Cure. Doctors had given her up to die with croup. It's an infallible cure for coughs, colds, grippe, pneumonia, bronchitis and throat and lung troubles. Relieves at once. Charles Rogers.

Despair is the conclusion of fools.

As a cure for rheumatism Chamberlain's Pain Balm is gaining a wide reputation. D. B. Johnston, of Richmond, Ind., has been troubled with that ailment since 1862. In speaking of it he says: "I never found anything that would relieve me until I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It acts like magic with me. My foot was swollen and paining me very much, but one good application of Pain Balm relieved me. For sale by Charles Rogers.

A SURE CURE FOR CROUP.

Twenty-five Years' Constant Use Without a Failure.

The first indication of croup is hoarseness, and in a child subject to that disease it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness if a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is used in many thousands of homes in this broad land and never disappoints the anxious mothers. We have have yet to learn of a single instance in which it has not proved effectual.
