The water commission met in regular session last night with a bare quorum present. Only routine business was transacted, the most important of which was the auditing of the monthly pay roll. Several matters pending before the board were not considered, owing to the absence of members as it was desired to have a full board pass upon them.

The republican central committee has rented the office formerly occupied by Elmore, Sanborn & Co., on Bond street, and will open campaign headquarters during the coming week. All voters from the country will find the latest political information obtainable at their command and are expected to call and "swap" views.

The fish catch is slowly improving both in the number and size of the fish caught. The cloudy weather of the past two or three days has been welcomed by the fishermen who hope for a day or two of rain. The recent experience of the fishermen who have lost their nets by deliberately placing them in the ship channels is serving as a warning to their fellows and it is probable that but few more nets will be lost.

Now that the Fourth of July celebration project has been given a good start, it is the duty of the committee appointed to see that interest in the matter is not allowed to die out. Once get all the citizens interested in the Fourth of July celebration and the rest will be easy. It is to be hoped the committee will not attempt to justify any delay by the old excuse of "plenty of time." Plenty of time is needed to do a thing right.

If the business men want to get an idea of what can be done in the way of bringing people to Astoria this summer on Sunday excursions, let them keep an eye on the excursion that comes from Portland next Sunday. A few thousand dollars a month, outside money, put into the coffers of the small merchants of the city for the next three or four months, is not going to bankrupt any of the wholesale houses. It can be got if Astorians only go after it.

Attention is called by C. H. Cooper to the regular periodical visit to Astoria of Mr. Rolfe, the expert cutter for the firm of Strauss Bros., Chicago. Mr. Rolfe can be found at Cooper's store on next Monday and Tuesday, where he will be pleased to exhibit the latest fabrics in men's suiting. Mr. Rolfe does his own measuring and designing, and his presence affords a rare opportunity for those who appreciate fashionably made and perfectly fitting garments. Mr. Rolfe can suit any taste and accommodate any sized pocket-book. The citizens of Astoria generally are invited to call and inspect his line of goods, whether they desire to purchase or not.

The advance sale of seats for the delightful drama, "Knobs o' Tennessee" opens at Griffin & Reed's this morning, and no doubt Fisher's will be crowded on Monday evening to witness the performance. "Knobs o' Tennessee" is a charming romantic Southern drama, with some admirably wrought situations and is finely staged. It was greeted with flattering success last season and is winning additional laurels this season. Mr. Robert Germain, leading man, has a role that suits him most admirably. He appears as a warm-hearted moon-shiner and carries the audience with him from the very start. He is ably supported by Miss Alice Marble, J. H. Browne and a strong and carefully selected cast.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Democrats Object to the Independent Pill but Must Swallow It—A Few Comments.

The old line democrats who were nominated on the "citizens" ticket, are strenuously objecting to being compelled to go before the people as independent candidates. It was a bitter pill for the "old hickory" to swallow when the democratic party was practically wiped out and they were denied a straight out democratic nomination and compelled to accept a "citizens" nomination, but the independent pill is too bitter to swallow.

Somehow there is associated with the name "independent" in politics the idea that the candidate is either a holder, or has been told by all the regular parties "to take his clothes and go."

The political independent and the political outcast are synonymous in the mind of the average voter. He has no use for either. He belongs to some party, no matter what one, and is willing to vote for the men that party endorses, but the average voter does not want to support, and, as a general thing, will not support a candidate that has only his own endorsement as to his fitness and worth for the place to which he aspires.

Yesterday several of the not-nominated democrats on the "citizens" ticket, who are being transformed into independents by petition of their friends, kicked over the traces.

They wanted a place on the ballot as democrats and proposed to have it, if they could get it, regardless of the petitions making them independents. They speedily ascertained, however, that this could not be. The democratic party in Clatsop county voluntarily extinguished itself when it adjourned its convention, without having made any nominations, and endorsing what they had done as "citizens," politically, or nothing, and unfortunately for them the law steps in and says they are nothing so far as getting their candidates on the ballot is concerned.

Then the democrats running for office who want to be democrats, but are allowed by the law to be nothing but independents, not even "citizens," tried another plan to avoid going on the ballot under the heading they detest. They alleged that the so-called "citizens" convention, although it was merely a mass meeting, was legally formed, had over a hundred legal voters present who took part in the deliberations and hence, had a right to party designations on the ballot.

Again, for the benefit of the unfortunate who want to run for office under any old name except that of "independent," the section of the law applicable to their case is quoted below.

"It is hard. It's might hard on the old Jeffersonian-Jackson contingent but it can't be helped. They are "independents" on the ballot or else they don't go on it. Here is the law.

"A convention of delegates, within the meaning of this act, is an organized body of not less than one hundred electors of the state or electoral district for which the nomination is made."

It will be readily seen that even if the "citizens" party had existed heretofore and had cast the necessary vote, it failed to make legal nominations because there was not a hundred votes cast for any candidate at the assembly or mass meeting of citizens which made the nominations. It's too bad, democrats, too bad, but it can't be helped, and this, too, coming right on top of the fusion dose you had to take last election.

To the Astorian—I notice as an item of news in your paper this morning that I am severely criticised. Will you please publish the name of my critic? I am sure that the Astorian will not lend its columns to those who attack in the dark.

However, before the matter goes any further, and this is probably all that ever need be said, I will state that if there are any citizens of Clatsop county who cannot conscientiously vote for a man for the office of school superintendent, because he has an independent opinion, and does not hesitate to express it, none will be more willing than I to accord them the liberty of the American citizen. Even more, I respect and honor any one who votes perhaps against inclination to emphasize what he considers an important truth.

I do not suppose that any large number of our people consider the expression of a sympathy that was at least generous, if not deemed wise, (and upon the Philippine question there is room for honest difference of opinion) as a serious offense. However, if I am mistaken in this, and find upon your published authority, not upon the hearsay of some imaginative reporter, that there is a large body of my fellow citizens ready to the polls to make me a martyr to free thought and free speech in Clatsop county, I am perhaps as available as any one for this distinction, and will prepare for the worst. May I again ask, in conclusion, for the name of my critic? H. S. LYMAN, Astoria, May 4, 1900.

The "imaginative reporter," like John Doe, is made to bear the burden of a multitude of sins not of his commission. Mr. Lyman asks for the name of his "critic." The Astorian distinctly stated that there were "critics," or more correctly, "objectors," to Mr. Lyman's views concerning the relative merits of George Washington and Aguinaldo. That is true. Not one, but at least a half dozen voters were in a crowd and were asked to sign the petitions making the "citizens" nominees independents. They signed all the petitions except Mr. Lyman's and then explained why they did not sign his. A little inquiry, caused by this incident, developed others who objected, not so much to Mr. Lyman's attitude on the Philippine question, which was not the basis of criticism, but to his relative estimate of the rebel leader and "the Father of Our Country." For a newspaper to attempt to furnish the names of every person who criticizes a candidate for public office, would be an absurdity even beyond the wildest dreams of an "imaginative reporter."

The vacancy on the republican ticket for constable of Astoria precinct has been filled by the central committee by the nomination of William Chalmers, a well-known resident, who will unquestionably poll a large vote.

Those who intend to run as independents for county offices and who have not filed their petitions as yet, had better hurry up as only a few days remain in which this can be done. No one need fear of being politically homeless running independent this year, for they will find all sorts and kinds of political outcasts in the crowd. Some have been driven from only one party, others from all parties and still others have been shanghaied from their party and put aboard the leaky independent craft. Misery loves company and additions to the independent ranks are gladly welcomed, no matter from what political coop they have escaped or been driven.

What's the matter with a little red fire, a brass band and a grand opening of the campaign. Still hunts are all right in their way but they don't reach far enough. If you want to reach all the voters you must get out in the open and let them know where to find you.

The county central committee of the late lamented "citizens" party will meet tomorrow. The first business transacted by the committee will be to find out "where they are at."

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Fish Thief Awaiting Trial Stabs Himself in the County Jail.

About supper time last night, Under Sheriff Grant in walking about the corridor of the county jail noticed spots of blood on the floor. Almost at the same moment he noticed that something was wrong with Charles Bacon, the man held for trial in the justice court a day or two ago for stealing fish from one of the Association's canneries.

Accosting Bacon, the under sheriff finally got him to admit that he had tried to kill himself. An examination of the man showed that, using a piece broken from the blade of a pair of scissors as a weapon, Bacon had inflicted a stab just over his heart. While the scissors blade had not penetrated the lung cavity, and the wound was therefore not dangerous, Bacon was weak from the loss of blood. A physician was called and dressed the wound.

To Sheriff Linville, Bacon said he had become despondent over the prospect of serving a long term in prison and concluded to end his troubles. The sheriff believes that the man is trying to work the sympathy dodge or tried to injure himself just enough to cause his removal to some hospital from which he might later on make his escape. Had he been in earnest, the broken scissors blade furnished him with a weapon amply strong and sharp enough to have accomplished his purpose.

Sheriff Linville also believes that Bacon is an old offender and that he is wanted somewhere else and is afraid his arrest here will lead to his whereabouts becoming known. At any rate everything has been taken from Bacon and his cell that might furnish him with the means of ending his life, although his jailers are satisfied he had and has no intention of doing anything desperate.

ITCHING LIMBS

And All Forms of Itching, Scaly Humors Are Instantly Relieved and Speedily Cured by CUTICURA.

The itching and burning I suffered in my feet and limbs for three years were terrible. At night they were worse and would keep me awake a greater part of the night. I consulted doctor after doctor, as I was travelling on the road most of my time, also one of our city doctors. None of the doctors knew what the trouble was. I got a lot of the different samples of the medicines I had been using. I found them of so many different kinds that I concluded that I would have to go to a Cincinnati hospital before I would get relief. I had frequently been urged to try CUTICURA REMEDIES, but I had no faith in them. My wife finally prevailed upon me to try them. Presto! What a change! I am now cured, and it is a permanent cure. I feel like kicking some doctor or myself for suffering three years when I could have used CUTICURA REMEDIES.

NO MORE WHISKEY SCOWS.

Government Refuses to License the Floating Craft to Sell Liquor—Must Be Moved Ashore.

The revenue department has made a new ruling regarding the sale of liquor on scows on the Columbia. For years there have been a number of scows anchored along the river at points convenient to the fishermen, where the latter could procure liquor by the quart. The scows have been kept in the river owing to the difficulty and danger in making landings along the shore, but under the new ruling mentioned the floating wholesale liquor houses will have to take dry land or go out of business.

The ruling was brought about by the payment of his internal revenue license by Cosma Constantine, who has a scow in the river off Tenas Illibe Island. Constantine paid the license to City Auditor Nelson who forwarded the money to Collector of Internal Revenue Dunne at Portland, who returned the money yesterday with the information that no license to sell liquor would be granted to scows anchored in the river. This means that they will have to pull their floating houses out on the shore and put foundations under them. The fishermen say that this rule will settle the scow trade as they prefer to come to Astoria rather than take the chances of making a landing on the river bank.
