For each person in the United States the amount of money in circulation is $24.12. In 1896 the figure was $21.53. An increase of over 20 per cent in the per capita within four years, making due allowance for increased population, should satisfy any one except a populist who wants paper money to trundle around by the wagon load. More than $2,000,000,000 of money are now circulating in this country, the increase in four years reaching $492,000,000. All these dollars are recognized throughout the world as equivalent to gold. Four years ago the gold circulating in the United States was $489,000,000. Now it is $785,000,000, an increase of 60 per cent. Has silver fallen back? Not a bit of it. The amount of silver and silver certificates in circulation has increased in four years from $558,000,000 to $631,000,000. For the first time the money circulation has passed the $2,000,000,000 mark, and every dollar is worth 100 cents in gold. Here is a republican triumph of great magnitude, so large, in fact, that the democratic papers never refer to it. They advocate free coinage as the only road to an increased volume of money. But in less than four years after the Chicago platform was offered to the people as the true system of finance the circulation has increased by nearly $500,000,000. The paramount democratic issue in 1896 was, as events have demonstrated, a huge blunder, an absolute reversal of everything that could insure the prosperity of the country. It takes nerve in the presidential candidate who led that cause to come forward again and offer his views on public questions as worthy of confidence. Sound judgment in a leader is essential. If he has been identified with a radical error, one proved beyond question, he can not be trusted to point the way in other issues. What Bryan declared was the worst financial policy is unmistakably the best.

The desperate straits of the Eastern democracy over the continued ascendancy of the Bryanistic element of the party appears from the suggestion in a New York dispatch published this morning of a certain obscure son of General George B. McClellan as a candidate for vice-president on the ticket with Bryan, expressly because he is known not to be in favor of the Chicago platform. How any man acquainted with the historic record of the old democratic party could abide such fraud and be led to support such a ticket the dispatch does not say, but that the suggestion is made in all earnestness proves the utter hopelessness of Eastern democrats as to the presidential contest, unless some way is found to counteract Bryan and the effect of his platform as already adopted at Lincoln and affirmed and enlarged by the Sioux City convention at which he was nominated the other day. The fact is, not one of the Eastern democratic leaders believes in Bryan or in his policy. They know that Indiana, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, New York and Connecticut will all vote for a republican candidate for president against Bryan and Bryanism, and they are bowing to the mastery of the wild Western revolutionist simply because they are ready to suffer the Bryan ills rather than fly to others they know not of. There is no heart, no soul and no honesty in the support of Bryan by the democratic leaders of the debatable states outside of the South, and it is marvelous that the once great democratic party has not leaders big enough in ability and numbers, to save the party from Bryanism. The Bryan platform that the democratic convention must accept unless it shall exhibit sufficient courage to assert democracy over Bryanism in the national convention, is simply an awkwardly framed combination of clap-trap political utterances. The only vital feature in it is its pronounced sympathy with Aguinaldo and his murderous insurgents in the Philippines, who would have abandoned the hopeless contest long since but for like treasonable utterances conveyed to them from this country. The only inspiration they now have to continue the murder of our brave troops by stealth and surprise while avoiding battle, is the hope that Bryan will be the next president and recognize their independence. This declaration will become a stench in the nostrils of every patriotic American citizen. The conservative democratic elements have hoped that the cheap money, repudiation vagary of 1896, that appealed with some force to conditions of poverty and general prostration of business, would be abandoned or subordinated in the campaign of 1900; but there is no one thing more distinctly emphasized in the Bryan platform that he democracy must now accept, than the independent and unlimited free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, thus proposing to load the government with the guarantee of new hundreds of millions of 45-cent dollars, which must be maintained by the people at par with gold. There is no business or industrial interest that now demands it; on the contrary all have every interest in opposing it, and the emphatic reassertion of the free silver craze is simply "wild and woolly" Western politics run mad.

COMPARATIVE FINANCES.

Post-Intelligencer.

Vernon, B. C., May 12, 1900.

To the Editor: Please inform a subscriber through your paper how the finances of the United States stood when Grover Cleveland took his seat both terms and when both terms closed. Some people here argue that he was very successful as far as finance and making a good government for the poor people were concerned.

GEORGE W. PARKE.

Grover Cleveland was elected president in 1884 and again in 1892. He took his seat on March 4, 1885 and 1893. President Harrison was inaugurated March 4, 1889, and President McKinley March 4, 1897. The total interest-bearing debt of the United States on the 30th of June of each of those years was as follows:

1885	$1,196,150,950
1889	829,850,990
1893	583,029,330
1897	849,365,130

In Cleveland's last administration $262,000,000 of bonds were issued to maintain specie payments and to cover the treasury deficits caused by democratic tariff legislation. A more striking showing is presented in the following statement, made in the United States senate recently by Mr. Gallinger, of New Hampshire:

1890	Nothing
1891	Nothing
1892	Nothing
1893	Nothing
Total	Nothing

The Cleveland administration borrowed as follows:

1894 (February)	$ 50,000,000
Interest, 10 years, 5 per cent	25,000,000
1894 (November)	50,000,000
Interest, 9½ years, 4 per cent	23,750,000
1895	62,315,400
Interest, 30 years, 4 per cent	74,778,480
1896	100,000,000
Interest, 29 years, 4 per cent	116,000,000
Total	$501,843,880

The total receipts of the government in 1893, the last year in which the republican policy of the Harrison administration was in effect, were $461,715,562. The next year, under democratic control, they dropped to $372,802,498. In 1898, the first full year of McKinley's administration, the total revenues reached $494,333,954. In 1899, under the operation of the war revenue act, they had increased to $619,982,604. The total expenditures were $459,374,888 in 1893 and $448,439,622 in 1897.

Any one can cipher out for himself the comparative financial success of President Cleveland and the republican executives who succeeded him. But the figures tell only a small part of the story. At the close of Mr. Cleveland's last administration the treasury was practically bankrupt. There was a heavy annual deficit. The gold reserve was made good only by bond sales. Panic had cut down the financial institutions of the country, while workingmen were out of employment everywhere. Today the prosperity of the United States and its people is the wonder and admiration of the world.

BALDWIN'S
HEALTH TABLETS.

A most valuable scientific and thoroughly reliable remedy in all forms of constipation, dyspepsia, intestinal fermentation and sluggishness of the liver.

Medical statistics conclusively prove that at least 90 per cent of the American people are afflicted with some faulty action of the secretory glands of the stomach, intestines or liver. Thoughtful people do not use calomel, blue mass, or griping cathartics for constipation in this enlightened age.

The new remedy, Baldwin's Health Tablets, is a true Liver Tonic and gentle laxative, hence a positive cure for constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, sickheadache, dizziness, etc. The most obstinate cases yield to these small tablets.

R. W. Tansill, the Chicago millionaire cigar man (of Tansill's Punch 5c cigar fame), says:

"Baldwin's Health Tablets are the best remedy for constipation, biliousness and torpid liver I have ever used."

Sergeant Frank De Vere of Battery K, Third Artillery, Regular Army, U. S. A., says: "I gained twenty-five pounds on my last trip to Manila, and not a day of sickness, by using Baldwin's Health Tablets—the best remedy for constipation I ever used. They regulate the bowels and make a man feel good." Tablets cost 25 cents.

Send a 2-cent stamp to the E. L. Baldwin Co., San Francisco, for medical manual for self treatment.
