MR. BRYAN AND THE BOERS.

Mr. Bryan, in response to the inquiry as to what he thought about inviting the Boers to come to America, says:

"The Boers are industrious and intelligent, and have shown themselves lovers of liberty. If they lose their fight for independence I hope they will come to the United States. I wish they could come soon enough to help save this country from the imperialism that is driving them from South Africa. A small part of the money now being expended on a war of conquest, would, if spent in reclaiming arid lands, make homes for all the Boers and thousands of our people besides. I wish there were more of them in this country. They could well take the place of a good many republicans who believe in the imperialistic policy of Great Britain."

Murat Halstead, in a late article, held that the Boers certainly have good points, but that Bryan is mistaken in their political character. They are the most brutal slave-holders the world has ever seen. They attempted to prevent Dr. Livingstone from speaking to native Africans of the black races, of Christ, threatened to kill him if he did, and tried to kill him for doing it. They would have assassinated him for doing missionary work, if it had not been that he was absent when they raided his home and destroyed his property, and they took the black children he was teaching and sold and whipped them into slavery.

According to Boer precedents in the Transvaal if they were transplanted to Nebraska or any other American state, no matter how small a minority they were in, they would disfranchise everybody else and impose nine-tenths of the taxation upon the majorities who would not be permitted to vote because they would overvote the Boers. But let us consider what would happen if Kruger and his people could be deported and transferred to the state of Mississippi. In that state the majority of the people are black. The Boers would not allow any of the blacks to vote, and would practically re-enslave them, and lash them to their tasks. They have been, during the war with the British, whipping the Kafirs with bull whips, forcing them to work on fortifications. So much for the black "niggers."

And if the Boers had their way in Mississippi as in the Transvaal they would enslave the whites also—take away their arms, refuse them any share of citizenship, tax them and assess them and rob them to enrich the Kruger family, and permit them no representation whatever. That is, the Boers would make white niggers out of the white people, and if an English-speaking person got into the legislature, he would not be heard in his own language, but if he broke silence it would have to be in Holland-Hottentot.

tot Dutch. According to Mr. Bryan, this is the highest development of human liberty. In truth the Transvaal Boer despotism was the most brutal, dirty and outrageous that existed on this planet, unless there may be a parallel found in some of the African savage tribes, and that is not likely.

There is a sixteen-to-one business here that may please Mr. Bryan. In the Transvaal there were twice as many Europeans—white men—as there were Boers, and there were thirty-two members of the Volksraad or popular house of congress. The two-thirds of the white people had no political power, were not permitted to be naturalized without a lapse of many years, and even then there were precautions against giving them even a fractional right of suffrage on any terms. This was because the Uitlanders were in the majority and paid the taxes. That is what they were utterly and hopelessly disfranchised for.

Sir Alfred Milner and Oom Paul met to discuss the situation at Bloemfontein, and were in session there a year ago. It was proposed by the English, to make peace, that the Volksraad should be increased to thirty-four members—two added—and that these should be chosen by the Uitlanders. Remember that the disarmed Uitlanders outnumbered the armed Boers two to one, and they asked to have one-sixteenth the number of representatives the Boers had. This was scornfully rejected by Kruger. As Sir Alfred Milner proposed the fractional representation of the majority of white men should even reach the number of four after some time, the "strangers," as Oom Paul called the majority of white men, would have at least had four members of the Volksraad to thirty-two Boers, and then the political capacity of an Uitlander would have been one-sixteenth that of a Boer—sixteen to one again.

Suppose when gold was discovered in California the Mexicans had been in political control, backed by force of arms in that country, and the Americans had in the course of years become twice as numerous in California as the Mexicans, and had been refused a shadow of representation when taxed cruelly and most extortionately, and corruptly, as the Uitlanders were by the Boers—how long would the Americans have endured so damnable a despotism?

Suppose the Boers were transported to Nebraska and their own African naturalization system was applied to them. Why, they would be eternally disfranchised! Is that the sort of "liberty" our naturalized citizens approve? Is the easy and welcome freedom with which they obtain citizenship the "imperialism" that Mr. Bryan would guard against? Mr. Bryan does not seem to be intentionally falsifying. He is simply an ignoramus about the affairs of the world, including those of his own country, and the unceasing energy with which he takes his countrymen into the confidences of his indurated misinformation has become a nightmare mitigated by the grotesque until it is funny.

SHAPING THE LINES FOR 1900.

This has been an eventful week in national politics. Much has been done by both the great parties of the country to shape the lines for the battle of 1900.

It is no longer a disputed question that William Jennings Bryan will be the unanimous nominee of the democratic convention for president, and recent political events indicate that a very large proportion of the sound money democrats who opposed Bryan four years ago, will give him faithful if not enthusiastic support. Bryan's popularity with the rank and file of the democratic party is so general and so positively inspired to give aggressive support to his cause, that all who look for future fellowship with democracy will follow in favoring Bryan.

The two most important democratic state conventions of the year have just been held in New York and Maryland. Both of those states voted against Bryan by overwhelming majorities, and neither could be carried against McKinley with the cheap money issue accepted as vital in the struggle. The conventions of both states declared in favor of Bryan's nomination for president, and both practically discarded the free silver or cheap money issue. This important action of an apparently united democracy in both Maryland and New York, will be likely to impress the national convention with the necessity of conserving the Chicago platform of 1896, and making the new questions of the day the vital issues of the battle.

It is now evident to all intelligent and

Wash first with cold water, then wash thoroughly inside and out with hot water, in which enough of Gold Dust Washing Powder has been dissolved to make a good suds. Finish by rinsing with scalding water; wipe dry and set out, with right side up, in the fresh air and sunlight, and they will be clean and sweet.

dispassionate observers of the political situation that the democrats of the country will be much less divided in the support of Bryan in the coming contest than they were four years ago, and the republicans, to win in the coming struggle, must win on their own strength rather than on the weakness of the democracy. The question of cheap money, involving the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, is a past issue in point of fact whether or not the democrats shall commit the folly of reviving it in their platform at Kansas City.

The country feared cheap money and repudiation four years ago, but there is no reason whatever to fear it now. Our financial policy is settled, and no popular judgment given in the coming national battle could in any way change it. The business interests of the country will, therefore, not be disturbed by the money issue, and the democrats will only weaken themselves by exhibiting a lack of political sagacity if they shall revive the now irrevocably settled money dispute that absolutely controlled the contest of 1896.

The lines of the two great parties are now pretty well shaped, and the democrats will certainly be in a stronger position than was anticipated when the present congress met in December last. They have the advantage of an aggressive campaign before them, with the republicans compelled to accept the defensive because of the failure of congress to legislate on the trust issue, the Nicaragua canal, the war taxes, the Philippines and other questions which will be more or less factors in the national battle.

The republicans have the advantage of a prosperous country; of having established a sound financial system that is now unalterable, and in having a party whose achievements write some of the most brilliant chapters in the annals of the Nation; but with all these advantages, those who assume that the great national battle of 1900 will not be one of the most earnest and possibly one of the most doubtful struggles of our national history, do not intelligently appreciate political conditions.
