of the Filipinos. General Otis was positively of the opinion that the American forces in the Philippines at present were sufficient for all needs. Of course, he said, General MacArthur's present army could not furnish a guard to protect every Filipino household in the Ladrones; to do that would require a force of no less than 200,000 troops, and even then the task would occupy years. As a matter of fact, he said, Spain had spent several centuries in the effort to stamp out the Ladrones in the Philippine group, and there was reason to believe that those brigands are scarcely more numerous now than they were during the Spanish occupation, when the islands were nominally at peace with Spain. General Otis was confident, however, that conditions would steadily improve and that little by little these robber bands would be driven away. Meanwhile, he admitted that it was often dangerous for Filipinos of the better class, whose interests naturally lay in American sovereignty, to admit their preferences, for they were subject in of property and to persecution, instithat case to assassination, to the loss ican states, and such preliminary degated by various elements in the population to whom American occupation was obnoxious.

PORTLAND'S GOT BERL BERL

Evening Telegram. Beri beri is in Portland. Many peo-ple confound this disease with the bubonic plague, but beri beri is far from being such a dangerous illness. Beri beri is a disease very prevalent in the Philippines and throughout the Orient generally. Occasionally a vessel from Chinese ports arrives at this country with sickness on board, as was evidenced here a few weeks ago. The isease, like others, is sometimes fatal but by pursuing proper precautions and scientific treatment its victims frequently survive. So far as known, no white people have had beri beri in Portland, although a physician states that members of the Second Oregon may have brought germs of the disease home with them. Thus far, it is believed, beri beri has afflicted only Japanese, but Chinese may have had it also. Japanese laborers, engaged in construction work in railroad camps, are particularly subject to this importation from the Orient, and are, apparently, its only vic-tims. This, however, is not known defi-

As to the nature of the sickness, all As to the nature of the sickness, all doctors do not agree. One declares positively that it is highly contagious; in fact, as infectious as smallpox; or at any rate as dangerous as typhoid fever. According to the descriptions given, it is caused by somewhat similar conditions to those producing typhoid. Other local medical men assert, confidently, that berl berl is not con ragious to any extent, and consequently such cases need not be reported, as is necessary with scarlet fever, dyph-theria, typhiod, smallpox, scarletina, whooping-cough and other aliments known to cause infection.

Bad sanitary conditions are presumably responsible for beri beri, and some say that only people who eat rice are subject to its ravages. In the Oirent sanitary conditions are unknown, and the same rule prevails in railroad camps with Japanese population. Japs working on the railroads take no pre-cautions to guard their health. They live in huts of the most primitive character. Some merely dig a hole in the ground and cover the top with bows and bark, in lieu of a better roof. Their food is meager and poorly cooked, albeit Japs are rapidly acquiring a reputation in families as artists in the culinary line.

Living under such conditions and cating such unhealthy food, it is no wonder the Japanese laborers become a prey to the dreaded beri beri. Physicians for the railroads have acquired a familiarity with the disease, owing to frequent cases, and they are in a position to treat it intelligently and according to reports, have invariably brought their patients back to health. At all events, there is not a single instance in the death records showing that death was caused by beri beri. A physician states that one of his colleagues had, at one time recently, seven cases of beri beri in the hospi-

The matter has been brought to the attention of Health Commissioner J. P. Menefec and City Physician C. H. Wheeler. Dr. Wheeler states emphatically that beri beri is not a centagious disease, in the meaning of the word as and kindred diseases, and that there is no occasion to apprehend danger if sanltary measures of the simplest sort are
