The trial of Constant Jansen, charged with taking money from Matt Kennan was held in Justice Brower's court yesterday afternoon. After the difference in time he would have to serve if found guilty by either of the charges was explained to him Jansen concluded to plead guilty to larceny. He was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail. The evidence against Jansen was very incomplete, but as he would have to remain in jail for at least 30 days before his case would come up before the grand jury he wisely concluded to plead guilty.

"Repair work on the Jetty at Fort Stevens, under the direction of Superintendent Hekardt, is progressing at a rapid rate. Orders have been placed for over 1,000,000 feet of lumber, to be used in reconstructing the trestle, and several carloads of rails have been ordered for use in relaying the track. The work is giving employment to a large number of laborers, and the new town of Hammond, which is close by the fort, is receiving daily additions to its population. By the time a further appropriation is available, the plant and approaches to the Jetty will again be in good order, and ready to handle the work of making permanent improvements."—Oregonian.

The advance guard of the big log drive of Spaulding Bros, has commenced to pass Independence and will reach Salem in a week or ten days. The drive comprises 8,000,000 feet, and is composed of white fir and balsam logs, and destined for the Oregon City paper mills. Three shows are required for the accommodation of the men and horses, besides numerous small boats. The drive is necessarily slow as the logs get into slough and on the gravel bars, and much time is consumed in getting them back into the channel. At this city provision is being made to prevent the lodging on the gravel bars and in the river slough at this point. A log boom has been established in the river parallel to the huge gravel bar opposite the city. Last year, in the absence of such a boom, innumerable logs lodged on the river bars and in shallow water, requiring several days to again float the drive, which was nearly as large as the one now being conducted down the river.—Salem Statesman.

William Roche, a fisherman, had all kinds of money Thursday night and wanted every one to know it. He was followed by some men who were quite anxious to relieve him of it. Officer Wright overheard a conversation between the men who were plotting to rob Roche, so he concluded to hold him in the jail over night until sober enough to take care of his money. Yesterday noon Roche became obstreperous. Everything in the cell where he was confined shows how boisterous he was. He was transferred to another cell and performed the same acts. After sobering down, he was told that he was indebted to the city not only $5 for his foolishness, but also had some damages to settle. This he did and was permitted to depart in peace.

The following copy of forest fire law is now being sent out by Game and Forester Protector Quimby: "Any person maliciously kindling a fire on his own or other land, which shall injure the personal property or wooded timber lands of any other person, shall be punished by a fine not less than $20 nor more than $100, or by imprisonment not less than three months nor more than twelve months. Kindling a fire without malice on any land without consent of the owner, which shall spread and damage any property or wood or timber land not his own, not less than $10 nor more than $100 and costs. Entering upon lands of another person for the purpose of hunting or fishing, and without the consent of the owner, kindling any fire thereon, not less than $10 nor more than $100. If kindled maliciously, not less than $50 nor more than $250, or by imprisonment not less than three months nor more than twelve months. Willfully setting fire to any wooded country or forest, not more than $1,000 or imprisonment not exceeding one year or both. Section 21. The said game and forestry warden, or any sheriff, deputy sheriff or constable, may without warrant arrest any person violating any of the status now or hereafter enacted and in force at the time, for the protection of game, game birds, song birds and forests, or any of them, and take such person before any court having jurisdiction, who shall proceed without delay to hear, try and determine the matter, and give and enter judgment according to the allegations and proofs."

In order to secure statements regarding the resources, possibilities and future of the Pacific Northwest, the Minneapolis, Minnesota, Times, recently issued a Northwest-Orient edition, devoted principally to the states of the Pacific slope and to their trade with the Orient, the governors of these states and mayors of the principal cities and presidents of the chambers of commerce were addressed and asked to submit statements regarding the country and the conditions to be found by home-seekers, many of whom are coming this way. Among others, Governor T. T. Geer, of Oregon, was addressed for a statement on Oregon's resources and future—perhaps no man in Oregon is better able to give information on this subject—and his statement, together with a good half-tone picture of Oregon's chief executive, appears in that issue of the Minneapolis Times. Governor Geer says: "The outlook for business conditions in Oregon next year seems at this time to be good. The present one has been fairly satisfactory, and with the exception of wheat and hops, prices for our staple productions have been remunerative. Oregon produces more wool than any other state in the union and the price at present, per pound, is above 20 cents higher than it has been before since the panic of 1893. Buyers express a willingness now to engage wool at that figure for next spring. The increasing trade, which our new possessions in the Philippines will undoubtedly stimulate, will be a permanent factor in building up this coast, which, so far as natural conditions go, is equal, if not superior, to any other portion of the country. A frank statement of the requirements of our state necessitates the remark that nothing would tend so rapidly toward the development of its natural resources as an influx of that class of immigration that would come prepared to inaugurate manufacturing enterprises in various lines. The field in Oregon for this kind of investment is a large one, for without doubt, considering the great variety of raw material that abounds here, we import a greater quantity of manufactured articles than any other state in the Union, population considered. The attention of Eastern capitalists has already been drawn very prominently, during the past year, to the possibilities of our state in this regard, and it is believed that our growth and prosperity will from this time forward, be steady and permanent. Our principal drawback is from the sparse population incident to all new countries, and our future is regarded by our most conservative people as very satisfactory."—Albany Herald.
