For President

WILLIAM McKinley, Of Ohio.

For Vice-President

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, Of New York.

England now bewails her lack of a submarine navy. Perhaps she could buy Spain's cheap.

General Chaffee is evidently not one of those awful imperialists or he would never advise the withdrawal of the American troops from China while a solitary Boxer is still alive.

With a war with the French approaching, the Boers still unwhipped, the powers sending warships to Shanghai to thwart British plans, and the Americans sending coal to Newcastle, Great Britain seems to be in hard luck.

It's perfectly dreadful the way these foreign nations are hobnobbing with us since we became an empire. Here's England, and then Russia, asking us kindly, like good old pals, to give them a little cash loan, and then old autocratic Kaiser Wilhelm comes along and asks for the loan of San Francisco as a naval base. Can't some of our empire-haters put a stop to these disgraceful familiarities?

The power of the press was never better exemplified than in the present British war scare, the result of bitter attacks upon England by the French press and English retaliation in kind. France was decidedly surly last winter, but the papers toned down considerably with the opening of the exposition, that nothing might occur to mar its success. Now, as the end of the great show draws near, the press again opens fire, and the British government calls out the naval reserves and makes other preparations for war.

HILL WANTS A NEW PORT.

William E. Curtis, Washington correspondent of the Chicago Record, recently had an interview with President James J. Hill, during which the latter rehearsed his well-known plans to keep the Northern Pacific out of Great Northern territory and to secure a share of the Oriental trade. It would appear, however, that Mr. Hill has not yet determined where his Pacific coast terminals will be, for in writing of the interview, Mr. Curtis says: "Mr. Hill had gone west with a party of capitalists from New York on a mission which excites the interest of the Puget sound people. It is supposed that they are looking after some projected enterprises at Everett and other points along the coast in which the Standard Oil men are interested, but they keep their secrets and nothing will be known of their intentions until they are ready to declare them.

"There is also a great deal of anxiety among the dwellers on Puget sound to ascertain where Mr. Hill intends to locate the terminals of his Pacific steamship lines, for which the four big vessels are now being constructed at New London, Conn. It looks very much as if Seattle would be the place, for the Great Northern people have invested several million dollars in buying water-front property and constructing docks and warehouses, but even in the face of that many people have an idea that Mr. Hill would build a new port of his own. They say that his policy and disposition. He wants to control everything around him, and they point to the fact that he has bought several of the harbor privileges along the coast, at Everett, Fairhaven and other points, and that he would not have done so if he did not intend to utilize them. The new ships will not be completed for two years. In the meantime the Great Northern railroad will continue its traffic arrangement with the Nippon Yusen Kaisha Steamship Company of Japan."

Every day it grows more and more certain that Everett or Fairhaven is to become the future rival of Tacoma. It is not impossible, however, that Mr. Hill may conclude to join the Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and Burlington in establishing terminals at Tacoma, where there is room for all—Tacoma News.
