TWO WAYS OF DOING BUSINESS.

Hutchinson (Kan.) News.

It is difficult to understand how any intelligent man who remembers the business and industrial conditions under the Wilson tariff can for a moment desire to go back to Democratic rule. Mr. Bryan, as can be shown by his speech delivered in congress when that measure was before that body, was one of the most vicious and rampant free-traders in the house; he supported the Wilson bill, although it did not go far enough in tariff reduction to suit him, yet it was the best he could do. He fully agreed with the Democratic tariff plank of 1892, that all protection was unconstitutional, and thought the party was cowardly and unfaithful in not coming up to the full limit of its pledge. While he is not saying very much about the tariff this year and it is almost entirely ignored by the platform, Mr. Bryan is just as violent and uncompromising an enemy of all protection legislation as he was in 1894.

There is not a farmer or business man in Kansas who does not remember what happened after the enactment of the Wilson law. It at once resulted in a suspension of all manufacturing operations, throwing men and women out of employment by the hundred thousand. The mercantile interests suffered equally with the industrial, and railroad earnings were reduced to the minimum. Confidence in industrial securities was destroyed, dividends were wiped out, capital and savings were driven into hiding in deposit vaults, a panic on the New York stock exchange took place, the Chicago exchange suspended, and people all over the country were bankrupted by thousands. Europe began to unload our securities upon us without warning and without mercy, and to meet our obligations the treasury reserve was several times depleted and each time replenished by the issuance of emergency bonds. The drains upon the treasury commenced almost upon the day of Cleveland's second inauguration and caused such an alarm that he called a special session of his Democratic congress in August to consider measures of relief, the outcome of which was the repeal of the silver purchasing clause, followed at the regular session by the enactment of the most destructive tariff ever devised by man, but which Mr. Bryan did not consider destructive enough.

How quickly the change came when Mr. Cleveland retired and a Republican president and congress came into power. Within less than a year the manufacturing interests had revived and were secure, confidence was restored in commercial circles, the farmers found the returns from the farm profitable, everybody found work who wanted work, wages increased, stocks began to rise, and the treasury reserve, which had been kept up by repeated loans by the Democratic administration, exceeded the limits required by law. Within three years the commerce of the Nation distanced all records. American securities again came into demand and were readily taken by our own people, the balance of trade in our favor surpassed all records, we were able to lend money to pay the cost of a war, to take a Russian loan of $280,000,000, and our last and proudest transaction was the loaning of $25,000,000 to the British government, after being for many years a debtor to that country and people. We have changed in three years from a debtor to a creditor nation. These have been three years of McKinley, who had been called the "advance agent of prosperity." Democrats used to sneer at this appellation and Mr. Bryan ridiculed it, but the agent has surpassed the most sanguine expectations. In the entire history of nations no such industrial, commercial and financial prosperity and progress can be cited as during these three years of William McKinley.

With such a record is it any wonder that thousands of men in Kansas who have not voted a Republican ticket for years will this year cast their votes for a continuation of these conditions and the man and party that have brought these conditions about? There is no partisan politics in such a vote. It is simply business, and the man who does it only shows good judgment, good business sense. Mr. Bryan says he is willing that every man who has enjoyed his share of prosperity shall vote for McKinley. This is nothing but a bluff. Under such an agreement Mr. Bryan himself would be compelled to vote for McKinley. By such an agreement Mr. Bryan admits that every farmer who has sold a pound of beef or pork, a bushel of wheat or corn, a pound of butter or poultry, should vote for McKinley. This is Mr. Bryan's own agreement, and he should not complain if the farmers of Kansas take advantage of it. Besides, it is business, and just now the farmers of Kansas and the merchants and business men of her cities, towns and villages are in politics for business. George Plumb, of Lyons county, who was nominated by the Populists and Democrats for representative, declined the nomination for "business reasons"—he announced that he should vote for McKinley and Roosevelt. He could not have given a better reason for declining a fusion nomination or refusing to vote for the fusion ticket than that he had made business arrangements which prevented.

Kansans this year will make voting a business and will carry the state for business this year.

WHY THEY OPPOSE BRYAN.

Here are a number of paragraphs taken by the Chicago Tribune from reasons given by prominent men for leaving Bryan to support McKinley:

McKinley's administration has brought prosperity.

Bryan represents too many political parties.

He will not fuse with the Democrats.

McKinley has made a good president.

Bryanism is like rainbow chasing.

Is opposed to free silver and favors expansion.

Four years have shown the Republicans were right.

Bryan's cry of anti-imperialism is treason.

He is in favor of expansion.

The Republican party was proven right in 1896.

He is what Bryan calls an "imperialist."

McKinley has given good administration.

He cannot swallow the Kansas City platform.

Bryan has disrupted the Democratic party.

"Imperialism" is a bugaboo, and he dislikes 16 to 1.

Free silver has proved to be a mistake.

Democrats cannot assume responsibility for Bryan.

Bryan would degrade the American flag.

McKinley has promoted soldiers from the ranks.

McKinley is a better man than Bryan ever can be.

The Kansas City platform is un-American on expansion.

Democrats carry elections by unlawful means.

Present prosperity and opposition to free silver.

McKinley's administration has brought prosperity.

Present Democratic party is Populistic.

Business has improved since 1896.

Bryanism is not Democracy.

Bryan's position on expansion is wrong.

McKinley promises the better administration.

Democrats at Kansas City were cowardly on silver.

McKinley's administration has helped the farmers.

The Republican party is now the only patriotic one.

McKinley is right on the Philippine question.

Democrats cannot consistently fuse with the Populists.

Is an expansionist and sound money man.

Cannot support Bryan under present conditions.

Convinced McKinley is right on the money question.

Has had enough of anti-patriotic utterances.

"The anti-expansion argument is thinner than cheese cloth."

Democracy has no longer a definite policy.

The present attitude of the Democratic party is not patriotic.

McKinley's administration has brought prosperity to the country.

Bryan's course has encouraged Aguinaldo in rebellion.

He has grown tired of Bryanism. Does not wish to see the American flag hauled down.

He is convinced now free silver was a fake.

The Republican party runs the country on correct principles.

The Republican is the party of progress.

He is an expansionist and honest-money man.

He is opposed to 16 to 1.

Bryan, if elected, could not manage his discordant fusion party.

McKinley's administration has produced prosperity.

It is exasperating to one who knows Foley's Honey and Tar, and knows what it will do, to have a dealer recommend something else as "just the same" or "just as good" for colds, coughs, croup, la grippe, etc. CHAS. ROGERS, Druggist.
