PRESIDENT OF SENATE.

Salem Statesman.

The election of Chas. W. Fulton to the presidency of the senate is a just recognition of clean ability and manly worth. Mr. Fulton is a man who carries his heart on his sleeve and is consequently easy prey to designing, shrewd time-servers. There is no deceit or chicanery about his methods or practices. If he champions the cause of a measure or of a friend he does so openly and squarely, without subterfuge or circumlocution, and the friend or the measure needs no detective to follow his tracks to test his loyalty. These characteristics are also indicative of his course as a presiding officer. His appointments and his decisions, while they may not always meet universal approbation, will be made with an honesty of purpose that will disarm unfavorable criticism. President Fulton has and deserves the confidence of the younger forces of Oregon Republicanism and therewith wins victory against powerful influences.

Mr. Fulton's opponent, Hon. W. E. Howe, of Yamhill, is another clean, strong man, but is not so well known throughout the state. He is a solid business man and property owner at Carlton and will be one of the recognized leaders of the upper house during the session.

Mr. Fulton has served from Clatsop county in the senate several times and was president in 1893.
