The parties offered bond to Dr. East to appear to the launch before the yellow flag had been lowered.

Fish Warden Van Dusen returned yesterday from a trip along the coast. He reports the condition of the Astoria fishery to be excellent and a further inspection is being made by Expert F. C. Brown. It is quite probable that the fishery on the river and harbor attractions commenced in the early fall.

A bill passed at the last session of the Washington legislature, providing ten hours a day for women clerks, goes into effect tomorrow. Besides other lines of work, the law includes women employed in mercantile establishments, laundries, hotels or restaurants. The law makes it a misdemeanor for an employer to require more than ten hours a day from any female employee.

A machinist formerly employed in the Astoria Iron Works stated yesterday that there was no probability of the strike being settled. As the strikers understand the situation President Fox will follow the lead of the Metal Trades Association, and will make whatever concession they agree upon. The machinist declares that they will not return to work unless all of their demands are fully granted.

The following is reprinted from the Seattle Daily Times: "Another vessel is to be added to the Sound fleet. The steamer Astorian, undergoing repairs at Astoria, is to be purchased by the United States government. A permit to purchase has been granted to purchase the vessel for the sum of $24,000. The name of the purchaser is at present withheld. The Astorian is a handsome steamer. Her actual value is estimated to be between $30,000 and $40,000. She will make the second vessel brought from Astoria and placed on the Sound run within the past two months."

War between the shepherds and cattlemen of the Northwest has ebbed and flows to have many exciting phases. A sheep raiser from Utah, reports that many sheep in Wyoming have already been killed by masked men. He estimates that the ranges of Washington, Idaho, Oregon, Utah, Wyoming and Montana now contain upward of a million sheep more than the range will sustain. They must be sold or starved. This condition results from the big influx of settlers in the states named and the rapid increase in the sheep herds.

The Tacoma Ledger says: "Salmon are showing up well at the straits. Within the past few days, it is stated, there has been a noticeable improvement in the showing and fishermen are feeling good over the outlook. Many say that the conditions prevailing on the Columbia river, where there has been a dearth of fish, will have no effect here and these are looking forward to a good run. There is about the same amount of web in the Sound waters as here was at this time last year. During the season it is stated there will be less, it being the opinion of fishermen that the run will be so good that all the web of last year will not be needed."

The University of California proposes to offer a special dairy course during the fall of 1901, beginning early in October and continuing for eight or ten weeks. The course will be especially designed for persons who wish to prepare themselves to manage and operate creameries, skimming stations, cheese factories and such ranch dairies as use modern machinery. The instruction given will consist of practical work in operating dairy machinery, in butter and cheese making and in testing milk for fat and adulterations. Lectures and recitations will also be given on milk and its various products, breed of dairy cattle and principles of breeding animals, feeding animals, dairy chemistry, dairy bacteriology and veterinary science. An announcement giving detailed information in regard to the dairy school will be issued about August first.

According to recent advices from Manila, the transport Kintuck, which loaded horses, mules and a general cargo of supplies in Portland for the Philippines, reached its destination in safety. The following in reference to the Kintuck's arrival is taken from a Manila paper: "The United States transport Kintuck, Captain Long, arrived yesterday morning from Portland, Oregon, U. S. A. She made the passage in thirty days, leaving Portland on March 21. Arriving at Honolulu on the 29th, she horses and mules were allowed three days on shore, the ship proceeding April 3 for Manila. Captain Long reports very pleasant weather on the entire voyage. The Kintuck arrived at this port with 64 horses and 197 mules, losing only one horse and three mules on the voyage. Preparations were made to land all the stock at once, and Mr. Hall's corral looks once more as it did a year ago."

J. Jaspals, the belligerent Greek fish dealer, who claims kinship to the distinguished general of that name is again in trouble. Richard Welton, alleges that Jaspals threatened to assault him with a deadly weapon because the complainant protested against a noisy banquet which progressed into early morning hours, and disturbed the sleep of the neighborhood. Jaspals was before Justice of the Peace Brower yesterday and his bond was fixed at $20. He refused to put up the cash and as a result is now confined in the county jail.

In the opinion of District Attorney Chamberlain, of Multnomah county, the state has no case against Sylvester Pennoyer, Geo. W. McBride and Phil Mitchell, as the former state school board, to recover $30,000.00 shortage in the accounts of ex-Clerk George W. Davis. Mr. Chamberlain says that the statute of limitation has run, and also that the act of 1880 relieved the members of the board from personal liability for acts of the clerk. He asks why investigation by committee of former successive legislative bodies and clerks appointed to examine these books failed to discover the shortage, and says they were either unfit or else perhaps the clerks were selected because of political pull instead of qualifications to perform the work. He concludes by saying that he will file the complaint subject only to the conduct and control of the case by the attorney-general.

AMERICA ADVANCING.

American locomotives are hauling English trains, and the English trains and Englishmen are rolling over American steel rails. Our machinery is sold in the most remote parts of the world. Remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is gradually working its way to all parts of the globe where dyspepsia and indigestion thrive. Like all American products, it is honest, and does just what it claims to do. The most stubborn cases of constipation, biliousness, nervousness, liver and kidney troubles must yield to it. It is the most perfect remedy ever devised for weak stomachs. For its value it has been famous for its astonishing efficacy. It is a perfectly natural remedy, and there is nothing to equal it. EXPERT BROWN'S WORK.

What He Has Done in Inspecting the Hatchery Site.

F. C. Brown, field superintendent of the Oregon fish hatcheries, came in over the Drain route Tuesday and will spend about ten days in Coos county looking after the interests of the baby salmon, says the Coos Mail. Mr. Brown had charge of the hatchery at Coos river last season. This year he will be succeeded by his brother, Geo. A. Brown.

Racks are now being put in at the South Coos river hatchery, which is situated at the McKnight place at the head of navigation on the south fork. If suitable locations can be found, of which there is no doubt, racks will also be put in at the east and west forks of the north fork of Coos river. The eggs to be transplanted to the South Coos river hatchery. While here Mr. Brown will also look up a location for a hatchery on the north fork of the Coquille river. This hatchery will be intended almost exclusively for steel heads and silverides, as very few chinooks can find their way to those waters. Last year 150,000 salmon fry from the South Coos river hatchery were planted in the Coquille, and 250,000 were turned loose in Coos river. Over 500,000 eggs were taken at the racks and the loss was only about ten per cent. This year, barring an early freshet, it is expected that two or three million eggs will be taken, and a thirty-foot extension to the hatchery is contemplated. Seven or eight men are employed at the hatchery during the fishing season. The racks mentioned are for the purpose of stopping the upstream progress of the salmon, who then lie in the deep holes until the time for spawning comes, when they come out on the bars and are captured and the eggs secured. The young salmon are kept until about a year old, being fed on corn meal, meat, salmon etc., ground fine and are something over two inches in length when they are turned loose to shift for themselves. If a large catch is made this season, feeding ponds will be established, as only a limited number of fry can be accommodated in the hatcheries. There are now four fish hatcheries in the state, and it is the intention of Master Fish Warden H. G. Van Dusen to
