Tacoma News,

President McKinley gave an effectual wise "third serm" talk which followed Senator Depew's and Congressman Grosvenor's remarks on the subject General Grant would have been wise had he nipped all third term talk in the bud in anticipation of the work which was done to secure his nomination in 1880. No man could have a stronger hold on the affections and confidence of the people, or a more devoted and loval following in the ranks of his own party than had President Grant. Three hundred and six delegates to the Republican national convention in 1880 voted for his nomination to the last.

It was not distrust or dislike of Gra: but it was oppsition to the idea of a third term that defeated him for the nomination. The men who gloried in their devotion to Grant and constituted the "Old Guard" of 1880-who die bu never surrender-were mistaken intheir devotion to General Grant's Political fortunes. The split in the Republican party which resulted from the breach created by the third term movement was not to be easily healed. Roscoe wart Republicans of New York and Blaine's inveterate enemy, fell into line blood between the "stalwarts" and the I never knew that love was blind "half breeds" broke our again when She murmured: "Yes," President Garfield nominated H. Robertson for collector of the port of New York. Conkling and Platt reprolonged fight to regain their seats the excitement, murdered the president and advanced a stalwart leader to the

But the factional fight was not ended. President Arthur and the stalwart wing of the party favored the nomination of Charles J. Folger, secretary of thtreasury, for governor of New York, age stamp being stuck on the letter He was nominated but the half breeds remained aswy from the polls and the Democratic mayor of Buffalo was elected governor of New York by 192,000 majority. The next presidential election came along. Ex-Secretary Blaine, petite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I feit as 1888 was nominated. Grover Cleveland well as I ever did in my life." Weak had been elemed governor of New York sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their by Blaine's friends in the Republican party-or at least his majority had been multiplied many times by them. Two years later he was elected presiden; by the third term for General Grant. It only took 500 of their votes to defear Conkling's old enemy and turn the electoral vote of New York state into the Democratic column,

The Republican party—or rather a Acts like magic on sprains bruises, outs, sores, scalds, burns, boils, ulcers. Perfect healer of skin disases and piles. The Republican party-or rather a third term idea and such was the result! President McKinley and his advisers in the cabinet have learned wisdom by the experience of their predecessors. It anarchy" may be placed to their credit.

It may be said in this connection that the sentiment in this country is strongly against the dictation of nomination by an administration. This country is so far from being an empire that any show at dictation or infringement of the prerogatives of the people is certain to be resented. There is no likelihood that Pa Morgan must bustle if he would President McKinley or his cabinet will throw their influence in favor of any candidate for the next Republican presidential nomination. It would hurt more Have met and concocted a Sky-scraper than it would help any man to be picked out now as an "administration" can didate. It is too early to discuss presidential prospects or candidates yes President McKinley has wisely announced his own purpose in respect to the nomination. He would decline it cured. f tendered. It will not be tendered, and his prompt and manly statement should have the effect of saving both him and his party from his over-nealous friends. They could and would doubtless do both him and his party and the country infinite barm by advocating a radical departure from precedent by nominating him for a third term. Third-term talk is now effectually squelched.
