The Muro Observer says: A monument to Dr. McLoughlin at old Fort Vancouver, on the Columbia, is a topic now under discussion. He was a Grand Old Man. In early times always a help to the needy immigrant, and the Washington and Oregon pioneers owe it to his name that it is perpetuated in marble, upon the site of that old sacred ground where he was wont to meet them so opportunely.

Miss Ivy Barker, who will be the next regatta queen is the guest of Miss Lucille Cole over Sunday. Miss Barker started yesterday that she will announce her chaperones and maids within a day or two, the matter being delayed by the inclusion of some ladies to whom the honors were proffered. Miss Barker was met at the train yesterday by the regatta committee and was escorted by them to the Cole residence.

A security of cans at the co-operative cannery yesterday made it necessary to limit the boats to 500 pounds but at all the other canneries all the salmon offered were taken. The fish continue to enter the river in good numbers and whether the condition is due to artificial propagation or to other causes there is no denying the fact that the fish are better quality than have been seen at this time of the year for several years past.

The San Francisco strike is proving of benefit to the Sound cities and it is now announced that the government transport Warren will be outfitted at Tacoma, instead of going to San Francisco as has been the custom. The Warren will carry some 800 school teachers to the Philippines and the amount of money to be spent before sailing will be between $20,000 and $40,000. It is possible that the orders may be changed to permit the transport to sail from Tacoma.

The North Pacific Mill Company has assumed control and will make extensive improvements in the plant and extend the line of the road to the Columbia river, thereby altering the plan of putting logs in the slough, which has been the custom heretofore. It is reported that the line of road will penetrate the timber belt extending back into the hills toward Nehalem.

The Columbia will be tied up at Portland and remain there until the present difficulty is settled.

Driver Ed. Lewellyn, of the fire department, was arrested yesterday on complaint made by Water Bailiff Wickman charging him with throwing sawdust in the river contrary to the law. Later the name of Chief Stockton was submitted as the defendant and the case will be tried Monday. Fish Warden Van Dusen addressed a communication to the last meeting of the council calling attention to the practice of the fire department employees and asking that instructions be issued for its abatement.

Proceedings in attachment have been instituted by the creditors of the Globe, Nehalem & Pacific R. R. Company. The claims for labor, which come first, amount to $260; Dr. H. R. Cliff, company physician, $200; William L. Brewster, $422.27. The rolling stock and roadbed and also real estate have been covered by mortgages to the amount of $44,000. John A. Robelings Sons & Company have also filed papers in attachment for $23,848, and J. E. Hagelbine company for $34,610. Total indebtedness of record $22,248.82.

The fishing season, which closes next Thursday, has been a fat failure at this point, says the St. Helens Mist. Few, if any of the fishermen have made more than a living. The run of the natural product of fish amounted to almost nothing and while an unprecedented number of the artificial product have entered the mouth of the river, very few ascended any distance, as in the case of the smelt, which years ago ascended the Columbia as far as Lewis river, but of late years none has been known to come thus far. Artificial propagation may, undoubtedly, will be a grand thing so far as the fishing industry at the mouth of the river is concerned, but further than that there is room for grave doubt.

The state fish hatchery located on Wind river has been moved to the east side of the river and now occupies a site on George Miller's place. The work of moving the buildings across the river was commenced about three weeks ago and is now practically completed. The removal was made necessary on account of the water. They could not get running water at the old site and were obliged to keep up an expensive pumping plant that did not produce a satisfactory supply of water, at least it was liable to break down or get out of gear at any time and cause the loss of the entire season's work. At the new location the hatchery is abundantly supplied from a spring of pure water that can be operated at a great deal less than before.—Skamania County Pioneer.

The citizens of Tampa, Florida, have dealt promptly with the leaders of strikers whose actions threatened to destroy the prosperity of that flourishing place. A meeting was called to which the agitators were invited and they were then promptly seized and put on board of some vessel and taken to some unknown place with a warning not to attempt to return. A proclamation was also issued which says in part: "To the anarchists and professional labor agitators: We say that your days in Tampa are at an end. We cannot and will not permit you to destroy this prosperous city. If you have regard for your safety you will shake us dust from your feet. In conclusion, we notify the manufacturers that this movement of citizens is not in your interest, but in the interest of the entire community."

It has been suggested by a prominent canneryman that if Fish Warden Van Dusen hopes to obtain any definite results from his hatcheries above The Dalles and Celis it would be an excellent thing to close the upper river against fall fishing. The fish that are passing up the river now and those that will be in the river when the present season closes next week will not be able to get above The Dalles until the fall rise in the river. They will remain in the deep holes until fall and unless some measures are taken will be caught by the lip river fishermen before having an opportunity to ascend to the natural spawning grounds. Under the provisions of the Hume fishery law the fish commissioner can declare any stream in the state closed to fishing by giving thirty days' notice of such location. The fish warden has announced that the provisions of the closed season will be vigorously enforced and it will be little avail to prevent the fish being taken here when they will certainly be caught in the upper river before being allowed to spawn.

A dispatch to the Victoria Colonist from Vancouver dated Friday says: The salmon run on the Fraser river last night averaged several hundred to the boat. Several boats came in with over 1000. As the limit of 500 to the boat was still on, the number of fish thrown overboard to rot along the shore was appalling. A member of the executive of the Cannery's Association was asked by the Colonist correspondent this morning why the cannery could not handle more than 500 pounds to the boat. This informant stated that it was owing to the scarcity of inside labor. During the strike the Indians and the squaws in the north were warned not to make their annual trip down owing to the strike. As a result the Indians waited so long that they became disgusted and decided not to come at all. If labor had been plentiful, the cannery could have taken 300 or over to the boat. As it is, a great deal of the labor has gone to the Sound, apparently in defiance of the Allen Labor law. At the present time a large number of British Columbia Indians are said to be working in the Puget sound cannery Indians contracted for on this side of the line.

The sale of delinquent property under the new law is still the object of considerable discussion, and particularly on the recent declaration of Multnomah county officials, which County Judge Gray interprets as meaning that only property bought in by the city and school board prior to 1893 will be sold. "Until 1893 each city and school district was empowered to buy in delinquent property on their respective lists," said Judge Gray yesterday. "In 1893 a law was passed by the legislature authorizing the counties to buy in delinquent property for the city and other public corporations, and keep separate accounts for each department of the government. As I understand it Multnomah county proposes to sell only such property as was bought in previous to the passage of the law of 1893. If this can be done it will be an excellent arrangement for the counties as it will not affect the county books. It does not seem just to property owners who have paid their taxes promptly to have delinquents of from eight to ten years standing redeem their property without interest, costs or penalties. While excessive penalties should, perhaps be remitted in a great many cases the county will stand to lose a large sum that should be paid in. To remit all costs would seem to give tax-shirkers a decidedly unfair advantage."

SPORTING MEN THE WORLD OVER HEARD WITH REGRET OF PETER JACKSON'S DEATH IN AN AUSTRALIAN HOSPITAL ABOUT A MONTH AGO. When pugilism was at its highest point of popularity in this country Jackson gave promise of becoming a champion among the heavyweights. But an excessive devotion to disipation ruined his health, and later he developed muscular consumption and death soon followed.

Although the death occurred nearly a month ago it is not until now that the thousands who were once glad to call themselves his friends and admirers, were apprised of it. Even in Australia, where it occurred, and where he came from to endeavor to take the heavy weight championship from America, the event caused little comment. All the papers in Brisbane, a copy of which was received by the Moina, had to say, was "Peter Jackson, ex-champion heavyweight boxer, died last night at a private sanitarium at Roma, from consumption. He was in his fortieth year. Although the death was not altogether unexpected, the news will be received with regret in all sporting circles." The funeral took place at Brisbane.

Jackson arrived in San Francisco 16 years ago from Australia, and as he made a good showing against some of the coming men of the period and had a splendid knowledge of boxing, he was appointed instructor of the California Athletic club. Corbett was instructor of the Olympic club at the same time, and a match was arranged between the two men. It lasted 78 rounds, and ended in a draw. Corbett at that time had no record, while Jackson had been fighting for years in Australia for small purses. His friends claimed that he had a sore leg at the time of the fight, and this accounted for the poor showing he made against Corbett. His next fight of any importance was with Sheriff "the Prussian," who had fought a draw with Kilrain, a fight which he won in the eighteenth round. Shortly afterwards he went to England and there defeated Shavin. He was boozed by the smart sporting set and this was the cause of his undoing, although he had started on the downward road in San Francisco. When he returned to America he was virtually broken down, and his only fights afterwards were with men of poor standing.

STREET FAIR PLANS.

Booths Will Be Ready for the Merchants Within a Short Time.

The triumphant arch at the entrance of the Street Fair is beginning to assume shape and proportion and sufficient will have been done to it by Monday evening to permit Artist Swepe to exercise his decorative art upon it by Tuesday next.

Many of the merchants have already signified their intention of taking one or more spaces at the Street Fair and work upon these booths will be started early in the week. The committee is building the booths as far as the carpenter work is concerned and each renter chooses and carries out his own decorative designs. The effect will be exceedingly artistic and a view of the booths on the opening day of the Fair will show a result that can only be appreciated by those who have already seen what can be accomplished at a comparatively slight expense in such places as Portland and Pendleton and The Dalles, where the Street Fair has been carried out successfully by the enterprise of the citizens.

Should its remainder of the merchants who have not as yet been interviewed by the agent appointed by Director-General Fulton respond in the same manner as the very great majority of those already seen there can be no doubt but that the success of the first Astoria Fair will be at least equal to some cities which are commonly reported to have better advantages.

The Street Fair held its last day at Vancouver, B. C., yesterday and is now going on to Tacoma, whence it comes here at the beginning of the week after next. So there is not much time to do all that remains to be done and Director Fulton and his coadjutors will have their hands full to get through with their duties efficiently. They declare that if the merchants decorate their booths promptly the rest of the program will fit in naturally.

The new features to the regatta added by the Street Fair should do much towards drawing an even larger crowd of visitors than has heretofore been in the habit of visiting the city and every effort will be made to convince the strangers within our gates that Astoria is a real live town, fully worthy of the honor of being one of the first ports of the Pacific coast.

Tenders are invited for the exclusive privilege of selling fruit, cakes, confectionery, confeit, pulled candy, tobacco and cigars, rubber balls, balloons, badges, programs, soft drinks, beer, popcorn, peanuts, ice cream, tea and coffee, during the Street Fair between August 25 and 31. All tenders to be sent sealed and accompanied by check to the amount of 25 per cent of the bid to G. C. Fulton and must be in by noon on Saturday, August 17.
