The Astorian guarantees to its advertisers the largest circulation of any newspaper published on the Columbia river.

A THIRD SHAMROCK.

Few men have ever wanted anything more than Sir Thomas Linton wants the America's cup. But it is a worthy ambition, and the report that the irrepressible owner of two defeated Shamrocks has ordered a third to be ready for the summer of 1903 will increase American admiration of his pluck.

It will be of especial interest to yachtsmen everywhere to learn that Linton has decided to place the order for his third Shamrock with Pile who built the first, but that Pile will have the valuable advice of Watson, who designed the second. That is undoubtedly a strong combination which will command the profound respect of all yachting experts in this country.

It will be generally assumed at once that Herreshoff will be called on to produce a new defender, and in spite of his faller last year to improve upon his latest masterpiece.

The Oregonian seems to think it strange that papers published in different communities in the Columbian basin should disagree as to whether the mouth of the river or the upper river should first be improved.

From information given out at Washington, it appears that a deeper channel at the mouth of the river is regarded by the committee as the most necessary thing.

Columbia basin seem to think it is, for if vessels of sufficient draft for our trade cannot safely and quickly pass in and out of the river, improvement of its upper reaches will avail little.

by intelligent extension of the jetty the Astorian will join in the demand for an "open river" from Lewiston to the sea. It is not difficult to understand the reason that prompts the Tribune to demand an appropriation that will benefit its section.

The retirement of Richard Croker from the leadership of Tammany hall would have produced a similar sensation if it had been his first performance of the act, says the New York Tribune.

The affinity between fish and glue may be strengthened by the utilization of salmon skins in its manufacture.

A remarkable example of cunning has been unearthed in one of our large prisons. A convict had perfected a die and was making silver dollars.
