Next Monday evening, at Fisher's opera house, comes the season's laughing success, "The Queen of Hayti," the only real colored farce-comedy company traveling. It is a big musical comedy, a combination of comic opera, vaudeville and burlesque. The action of the play takes place on the Isle of Hayti, during the French war. The company presenting the play is the strongest colored organization in existence. Seat sale opens next Monday at Griffin & Reed's.

Several district school clerks yesterday filed with County Clerk Wherry reports of tax levies made for the ensuing year. No. 14 (Vine-maple) has levied 5 mills; No. 8 (Jewell) has levied 7 mills; No. 15 (Ertle) and No. 13 (McVilvie) have each levied 2 mills; No. 27 (Knapka) has made no levy, as its percentage of the general county levy of 5 mills will be sufficient to conduct the school there.

The coasters who were injured in the bobbed accident Sunday night were resumed yesterday to be getting along as well as could be expected. The Hansen lad who suffered a compound fracture of the right leg below the knee will probably lose the limb but the others who were hurt will only be temporarily confined to their homes. The accident has had the effect of making other coasters more cautious and since Sunday night no broken limbs have been reported.

The dispatches yesterday announced the death of J. H. Brooke, editor of the Japan Herald at Yokohama. Mr. Brooke was the father of Oliver Brooke, who was in Astoria about six years ago, and fished on the Columbia river for two seasons after which he went to Yokohama and accepted the position of superintendent of the mail dock in that city. While thus engaged he contributed a series of articles to the Astorian. Mr. Brooke recently came to California, in which state he now resides.

The determination of the Chamber of Commerce to urge an additional appropriation of $35,000 for the Astoria quarantine station is commendable. The matter will be referred to the surgeon-general at Washington and it is believed he will recommend the necessary appropriation. The station was not fully completed under the appropriation first made and is hardly up to the standard of quarantine stations on the Sound. The growth of shipping demands ample facilities for preventing spread of disease and it is hoped locally that the Columbia station will be completed.

Dalton, one of the Morrow murderers, is quite sick, and fears are entertained that his illness may develop into pneumonia. The doctor is in attendance and hopes to bring him around within a day. Dalton spent a restless night Monday and slept but little of the time. His temperature and pulse were unusually high yesterday morning and the county physician, who is looking after him, does not like the condition in which he found his patient. There seems to be no great cause for alarm, although if pneumonia should develop it is hard to tell what would happen.

A young woman employed at the Rucker House met with a peculiar accident Sunday morning, and is now nursing a broken wrist. During the previous night the water pipes froze at the Rucker, and when a plumber was called Sunday morning he found that a fire had been started in the stove and that the boiler was carrying fully 200 pounds of steam. Already the top of the boiler had been started and an explosion that might have wrecked a few rooms was imminent. The plumber immediately undertook to relieve the pressure, with the result that the kitchen was soon filled with steam. The young woman tried to open a kitchen window to allow the steam to escape, and in hurrying across the room slipped and fell, breaking the wrist. The injury is a very painful one.

A Democratic politician who has recently been in Portland, states that the effort to start a state Democratic daily paper in the metropolis has not been abandoned. "The gentlemen who were interested in the enterprise have decided to return and start the paper without any guaranteed circulation," he says, "and it is reported the paper will be published in time to take part in the coming state election. When the promoters first broached the subject they asked that 10,000 subscribers be secured for them, but the committee having the matter in charge was able to secure only about 6000 names. These lists have been preserved, however, so the new daily will have quite a start. The promoters are reported to have announced that they will not ask any inducement in the way of subscribers, believing that the paper will be a financial success from the start. I understand that arrangements for the necessary machines and press are now being made."

The cold weather has had a disastrous effect on Astoria's water supply, and the water commission will shut off the supply entirely if consumers are not more careful hereafter. During the cold nights faucets have been left open, and the consumption of water has been greater than the supply, notwithstanding that the supply is great enough for a city of 10,000 inhabitants. Yesterday the fire and water committee of the council ordered out all the old steam engines formerly in use, fearing that a conflagration would find the hose wagons without the usual supply. The hose wagons depend upon the hydrants, while the engines pump water from the river. The shortage of water is said to be due in part to the bursting of mains. In today's Astorian the commission gives notice of its intention to shut off the water unless consumers are more careful, and the threat, it might be stated, is not an idle one. All the private water mains in East Astoria have burst during the past few days and residents are compelled to carry water from springs.

The ways and means committee will submit its report at the regular meeting of the council this evening on the petition of the Clatsop Mill Company asking that the foot of Twenty-seventh street, which intersects petitioner's property, be vacated. A report will also be submitted on the petition of the Astoria Box Company asking for the vacation of a portion of Twenty-third street. The report will recommend that the petition of the Clatsop Mill Company be granted on condition that the company rebuild its plant during the present year. The report on the petition of the Astoria Box Company is also favorable. It recommends that the petition be granted on condition that the company improve the crossings of Twenty-eighth and Commercial streets to the alleyway. It is probable that both reports will be adopted by the council, since the majority of the members feel that, while the charter does not permit them to lease the streets, some provision should be made to allow the mills to increase their capacity. The improvements to be made, the committee thinks, will more than repay the city for the property given up.

Improvement of the Columbia river from its mouth to Celilo was the chief topic of discussion at the meeting of the board of trustees of the Portland Chamber of Commerce yesterday. President Mears said that he had practically secured the promise of two prominent citizens that they would go to Washington to urge the appropriation for the improvement of the river, and the Inland Empire will be expected to arrange for representatives with the same object in view. The navigation committee submitted a lengthy report on the condition of pilotage and towage on the Columbia river bar, but owing to the late hour action on this report was deferred until this morning, when a special meeting will be held. The report sets out in plain words the alleged unsatisfactory condition of the pilotage and towage systems now in vogue, and in conclusion offers a series of recommendations. It is the intention of the trustees to meet with the pilot commission and discuss the matter set out in the report, with a view of devising some remedy. The committee is fully prepared to explain to the pilot commission the necessity of employing additional pilots, and it will also show that the tugboat service is deficient. President Mears reported that he had received a letter from Pilot Commissioner Sylvester Parrot stating the commission's willingness to meet with the chamber to see what can be done for the betterment of the service referred to.—Yesterday's Telegram.
