THE LAND OF PLENTY.

The Oregonian heartily indorses the efforts of the local commercial bodies to bring homeseekers to Clatsop councountry will be those who come here to permanently reside. The Oregonian has done admirable work in the past by constantly keeping before the public the advantages offered in Oregon to men of moderate means, and it will encourage any effort made to settle the unoccupied dairying and farming lands of the state. The following expression from the Portland paper is of especial significance just at this time, when so much work is being done locally to show Eastern farmers where they may make a living without working 18 hours a day:

Clatsop county's best advertisement, remarks the Astorian, "will come from those who, having found homes here, write back to their friends about this land of plenty." No other form of expioitation has ever been found comparable with it. Its special advantage is that it selects its material-that is, it invites only persons who are likely to be pleased with the country, and therefore likely to succeed in it. It provides, too, for their reception and guidance upon their arrival, and reasonably safeguards them against the malady of homesickness which attacks all comers into a new country and which, in fact, carries a large proportion of those who come to this coast back to their old homes before a twelvementh. Those who come in response to the solicitations of friends or relatives who have come on before them find in most instances some arrangement awaiting them for profitaward reconciling them to new conditions and surroundings.

A very large part of our effort to promote immigration on the wholesale the disease-breeding accumulations ing, for several reasons. First, there that the city is full of old delapidated has been no attempt to select people buildings, which can never again be with reference to special situations, or to establish them in ways suitable to their taste or experience. And the result has been that many of those who have come with by Dr. Henderson, whose subject will the purpose of making their homes probably be "Health as an Asset of here have failed to find just what they wanted, for the lack of a little friendly attention, or have grown desperately homesick from the lack of fa- rians are subjected because of the loose miliar faces, and have turned their manner in which sewers are built; of backs upon the country. newcomers-to find out in individual of just such unsightly structures all cases what they are looking for, and o direct them to the places suited to their special purposes. This will help, but it will not do the thing which the Astorian so highly and reasonably commends. There is no immigration agent like the man who has found what he wants, and who writes back to his friends and relatives in his old home to come and join him. He naturally selects those who are likely to find what will suit them here, and who will suit what they find here. And when, as a consequence of his efforts, they come on, he will meet them at the station, give them the cordial greeting which goes so far to make one feel at home under strange conditions, and assist them in the thousand ways which help immigrants to get a foothold in a new country.

The Oregonian has faithfully pointed out our failing. Even the railroads have erred in their emigration schemes, for, having reduced fares for they have made no effort to properly sont them to remote corners of the state, where, cut off from communi they have become disgusted and returned to the East. It is one thing to get new people here, and quite another to keep them. We have yet to learn this latter lesson.

CLEAN THE CITY.

around again the efforts of the Woman's Club and the Push Club will have resulted in the start for a cleaner city. The agitation for a crematory is lost on many Astorians who do not appreciate the full value of the undertaking of the two clubs, but be their property and the streets in front of it just as clean as possible.

About a month hence there will be a joint meeting of the two clubs, and the committee in charge of the meetman's Club will relate the difficulties experienced by them in their singlehanded effort to have vile-smelling garbage piles removed; how they personally saw to it that rubbish was gathered in piles, and proposed to deble work and they are sure of finding fire to the rubbish, and how they the sympathies which go so far to- sneaked out of their homes at an unseemly hour of the morning and, in defiance of "law," touched matches to plan in times past has come to noth- from backyards. The health problem is one of the greatest questions of the age, and we who are blessed with every possible advantage of nature should see to it Astoria is known as a healthy city, but it is only the ocean winds that make it so. If we depended on our own before the public such primary facts sanitary precautions for our good about the country, its industries and health, every mother's son of us would be down with typhoid, scarlet or some other terrible affliction. This is not an It is noted that the Harriman syna exaggeration, as many will think, but

There are a great many other things that must be taken up to beautify the ppearance of the city. For instance, lawmakers, for the very wording of the ordinance indicated a determination to compel decency. The ordin-

There is plenty of law to back the esent an inviting appearance before the year is over. There is no disposition to resort the legal tactics, and t is for this reason the clubs will endeavor to inculcate the spirit of cleanliness by holding meetings. Doubtless there will be found the usual belligompelled to do so, and for these the machinery of the law will be set in In the meantime good citizens will not wait for the club meetings, but start in at once to improve the appearance of their property.
