Weather Observer Johnson last night received word from Forecast Official Beals, of Portland, that a stiff northeaster was blowing off the northern coast of California, and that it would reach this vicinity some time today. The storm will bring an off-shore wind and will not be severely felt in this neighborhood.

There has been no improvement in the work of the Commercial Club bowling team, and the Irving Club players will doubtless experience little difficulty in beating them. Last evening the alleged championship aggregation was defeated by the picked team, which latter crowd secured the best flat total. The team average was about 35.

The filing of the suit against County Clerk Wherity to compel him to remit the sum of nearly $300, the balance remaining in the estates of James Davis and Fred Beerman, who died intestate, to the state treasurer recalls that the state law in this respect is somewhat unjust. In cases of this kind, it is contended, the money should go to the county, and not to the state.

The case of Mrs. Ella Scott against the A. & C. R. E. occupied all of the time of the circuit court yesterday afternoon. The jury visited the scene of the wreck during the morning. It was the intention to continue the trial last evening, but Juror Fred Sherman was attacked with heart failure, and it was necessary to postpone the taking of evidence. Sherman is reported to be quite ill, but it is believed he will recover.

City Surveyor Tee yesterday made a survey of the property donated to the school district for a school house site. The property consists of lots from 9 to 16, block 20, in Taylor's Astoria, and is located about 190 feet west of the church recently erected in West Astoria. The school board will take steps to have the building erected so as to be ready for occupancy when the fall term opens.

Two sailors brought from San Francisco by the steam schooner Acme to make up the crew of the barkentine Addenda were put ashore at Knappa. The men at once took to the woods, and on their return injured when the next boat left for Astoria. The men were given passage by Captain Burkholder, of the steamer Jordan, but instead of bringing the sailors to Astoria, the Jordan steamed down to the lower harbor and placed the men on board the Addenda before they realized what had happened.

Road Supervisor Foster and a force of men are engaged in making an alteration in the county road leading south, so that connection will be made with the new road. The alteration is being made a short distance southeast of the reservoir and the work will necessitate a big change in the grade of the old road, which will cut down 12 or 15 feet at that point. It is probable the work will close the present road to travel for a day or two. At the scene of operations the new road connects with that portion of the old road which will hereafter be used.

An order was placed with the Astoria Box Company yesterday by Superintendent Coolidge, of the Astoria Electric Company, for lumber to make extensions to the street-car system and a force of men was put to work building the line from Thirty-eighth street east. The line will be constructed along the alleyway between Bond and Commercial streets as far as Forty-second street and thence along Bond street to the Alderbrook line. The extension of the line will be a great convenience to people living in the East End.

A movement was started in this city yesterday in aid of the Boer cause in South Africa. Many of the leading citizens have signified their willingness to aid the project financially, and it is the intention to raise a sum of money for the relief of the widows and orphans confined in the concentration camps in South Africa. Similar movements have been started in cities all over the United States, and locally it is felt that something should be done to aid a brave people struggling for freedom. A committee has been formed to carry out the project, consisting of the following: Charles Verschuren, Hon. John H. Smith, George Kabothe, County Judge J. H. D. Gray, Alex. Gilbert, French vice-consul; Hon. John Hahn and Hon. John E. Gratke. Mr. Hahn has been appointed treasurer, and within a few days lists will be circulated so that persons who desire to contribute to this worthy cause will have an opportunity to do so. All contributions will be strictly accounted for and forwarded to the proper parties.

Messrs. Libke, Ingalls and Heckard, of the Lewis and Clark road committee, came into the city yesterday and consulted with County Judge Gray about the proposed new highway. The committee is anxious to raise between $1400 and $1500 to assist in planking the road, but to date has collected only about $300. Some of the persons interested have not subscribed very liberally, while others have declined thus far to lend any financial support to the movement. The committee does not feel like assuming responsibility for the entire amount necessary, and wishes to have another week in which to solicit funds. Accordingly, Judge Gray wired to Portland instructing the firm there to keep the new engine in the metropolis for another week. The engine was to have been shipped this morning, so that it could be delivered on the Lewis and Clark tomorrow. It is expected that the committee will finish its work before the expiration of the coming week. In all two and one-half miles of road must be planked, and between $1500 and $1800 will, it is thought, be required to do the work.

One hundred and seventy years ago today, near Bridges Creek, Westmoreland county, Va., there first saw the light of day a man whose name has since been the especial pride of the American people. In early life Washington distinguished himself by declining to lie to his poor old father, and even Police Judge Nelson admires him for his bravery on the occasion in question. "It was so different with my father," says the police judge. "Now, had I acknowledged that I had cut down a cherry tree or any other old tree, my father would have whaled the stuffing out of me, and when still quite a youth I learned that it was best at times to lie to the old gentleman. I believe we should honor George more for the bravery that manifested itself in the orchard that afternoon than for his somewhat interesting and pertinent connection with the war of the rebellion. A brave man, or a brave boy, makes a hit with me, and I'm going to close my office tomorrow and keep it closed." Judge Nelson's example will be generally followed, and only the burglar will be enabled to get into the banks. The business houses will not be closed, though this is a legal holiday.

Margret Durphy, one of the ex-wives of Bigamist B. F. Durphy, recently filed in the circuit court a motion asking that the case for divorce instituted by Durphy be reopened. Durphy, it will be remembered, secured a divorce from this wife in Clatsop county. In the motion it is set up that Durphy resorted to sharp practice, in that he did not cause Mrs. Durphy's Chicago address to be made known, and that she was not enabled to appear and fight the case because of this neglect on his part. In asking that the case be reopened Mrs. Durphy was actuated by a desire to herself secure the divorce and get relief. C. M. Idelman, of Portland, appeared for Durphy and argued against the motion. Attorney Durham, also of Portland, who filed Mrs. Durphy's motion, was not present in court, and Judge McBride denied the motion. Durphy has been convicted in Multnomah county of the bigamy charge brought against him, but the case is now before the supreme court on appeal.

All the meetings and services of the Swedish Lutheran Columbia conference have been very well attended. Last evening the pastor, Rev. Oscar Ostrom, was installed, all the ministers participating in the service. Rev. M. L. Larson, of Seattle, delivered the sermon. Yesterday afternoon a devotional program was carried out. Several members from Youngs River were in attendance. The chief business doings of the conference have been the adopting of a new constitution, and a thorough discussion of the mission work of the conference, which covers all of Oregon, Washington and Idaho. The visiting delegates were entertained at dinner on Thursday at Mr. Andrew Asp's, and yesterday at Mr. M. Nyland's, on Seventh street. Tonight a young people's service will be held, partaking largely of a George Washington day celebration. Pastors Nelson and Frisk will be the speakers. The service will be in English. Tomorrow forenoon holy communion will be observed, Rev. L. A. Hoaner preaching the sermon. In the evening there will be addresses by several of the pastors. The sessions of the conference will be conducted with a farewell service on Monday evening. Part of today will be given to sight-seeing.
