MILLS PREDICTS WAR

THINKS MONROE DOCTRINE WILL CAUSE TROUBLE.

Strictures of the Englishman on the "Revised Edition" of the Old-Time Policy.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.-David Mills continues, in the March number of the Empire Review, his restrictions on the foreign policy of the United States as embodied in what he describes as the "revised edition of the Monroe doctrine," says a London dispatch to the Tribune. Het cites passages from the speeches of President Roosevelt and Senator Lodge as proof that American diplomacy regards the Western hemisphere as under the exclusive dominion of the United States, and as excluded from the accomplished doctrines of international law.

He asserts emphatically that all the states of the Western hemisphere stand on a footing of equality and that the United States has no claim in international law greater than Canada's rights. He cites President Cleveland's and Secretary Olney's action on the Venezuelan question and the refusal of the government to allow foreign powers to acquire coaling sta- Mariborough hotel. tions in the West Indies, and argues that the United States will receive of the society, was the last speaker. logy department at the University of once gave the Barbary states, "we popular prefer war to tribute."

A long telergam has been received in this city from him, in which he says:

"I construe the action of the loyal four' members of the National League at their conference at Pittsburg as re-Herating and reaffirming their allegiance to the principle underlying the baseball controversy, an indorsement of the campaign conducted to date on a determination not to dodge the real issue by sacrificing principle to expediency, which action must be approved by all those who have the best interest of the national game at heart.

"It is a good omen for the future of the National League that Freedmanism and Brushism received its death blow at Pittsburg on Washington's birthday. I consider this campaign for the uplifting of baseball, so far as it relates to those baneful 'isms,' as practically over, regardless of litigation."
