The Alaska-Portland Packing Company's steamer North King is again in the water after being on the ways in Portland for an overhauling. She is expected in Astoria on Tuesday and will go north in command of Captain Bernt Olsen.

Persons are arriving here daily from all over the country and looking around with the view of locating. Many of them do not let their business here be generally known, as they have an idea that there are sharks watching for newcomers. But there is every evidence that the immigration of the coming year will be unusually large.

The pesthouse selected by the city health authorities is about a mile from town on the Youngs Bay road, and the patient has been removed there and receiving good attention. Mayor Suprenant states that it is only a temporary place, however, as the emergency required that one be selected at once and this was the best that could be done for the time.

Charles Schroder, a lad employed at the Clasp Mills, while working at the edge yesterday afternoon, accidentally struck his thumb against the saw, almost getting it severed from the hand. Dr. Tuttle, who dressed the wound, thinks the boy will not lose his thumb, although the wound is a painful one, and it will be some time before he will be able to use his hand.

W. W. Whipple received a letter yesterday from the state of Illinois from a person making inquiry about the resources of this country stating that besides himself there were 10 families interested in this country and would move here if the prospects were as represented. As the half has not been told it is safe to say that when these inquiries learn the truth about the country they will come.

Cars will be running on the street car line extensions by the first day of May. On the eastern end the road bed will be finished the entire distance to the limit at Forty-fifth street in a few days. The rails are now laid to Forty-third. On the western extension the rails are in place as far as Second street, and the excavating is nearly completed. The line will extend to the present end of Bond street, near A. V. Allen's branch store.

The Jarvi trial was on yesterday morning and several witnesses were examined. The only new evidence developed in the case was that of one of the Bault boys, who stated that Mat Jarvi had told him prior to the murder of his father, that if the old man did not quit coming home drunk he would have to be killed. On account of today being an election day the case was postponed until tomorrow morning, when the examination will be continued.

One of the busiest places in the city is the Astoria Iron Works. About seventy-five men are employed and every department of the shops is full of work. The usual large orders for machinery for Alaska canneries embrace this year 2000 can coolers, 15 of the new Forney can toppers, worth $500 each, 15 upright crimpers of new design, 3 can washers, and 25 improved cooking retorts. Five new canneries are being outfitted, besides numerous additions to other plants.

The funeral of the late John M. Young was held yesterday at 1 o'clock from Grace Episcopal church, the services being conducted by Rev. Wm. S. Short. The funeral was largely attended by the many friends of the deceased, and the floral offerings were profuse. It was under the auspices of Quinlan lodge, No. 180, B. P. O. E., the members attending in a body. The pallbearers were: W. T. Chutter, C. V. Brown, C. W. Loughery, R. G. Vael and J. E. Graike. The interment was in Greenwood cemetery and the services at the grave were private.

"Camille" was produced at Fishers' der by Miss Shirley and her company to a large and well-pleased audience. Miss Shirley surprised even her most ardent admirers by her portrayal of Dumas' heroine. It is a long step from the gayety and comedy of "Nell Gwynne" to such a character as "Camille," but Miss Shirley took that step last night in a manner which proved her to be a thorough mistress of her art. Her death scene in the last act was one of the cleverest pieces of acting ever seen in Astoria. George McRuarie was good as "Armand Duval," and the supporting company was excellent. Tonight "The Two Orphans," a play which will last forever, will be the attraction.

A report got abroad last night that a new case of smallpox had developed in the city. Dr. Cordier was aroused at 2:30 this morning and denied the statement.

Dr. Finch, who returned from Knappa last evening, says that he vaccinated 80 persons at Knappa yesterday, and that there are no new cases at Knappa, except that there is one case which is suffering from varioloid from vaccination. He states that the Bagleys relatives of the Bagley who is confined in the local pesthouse with the disease, refused to be vaccinated.

The steamer Anna Barron, being built by the Astoria Iron Works for the Thimble Packing Company, is to be launched on May 5. She is 85 feet long and of 19-foot beam. Every part of this vessel is being built in Astoria. The engines and boiler are of unusual size and power for a boat of her dimensions.

The watchman at the Astor House was notified last evening that an inmate of the house, who was quarantined, was seeking his escape through the back way. A little girl living in the neighborhood made the discovery and said the man had a valise with him. It is reported that he made good his escape, and it is also reported that he kept going, shading the dust of the city from his feet. It is hoped at least, that he did. There was only one watchman and he could only watch the front way, which he could not leave for fear others might escape. The watchman stated, however, that he had no authority to stop any one by force or to make arrests, and all he could do was to request those under the quarantine to remain in the house and other persons not to enter the premises. The watchman has taken no oath of office or qualified in any other way to act officially in the matter.

REGATTA DISCUSSED

OUR CITIZENS TALK ABOUT THE MATTER.

All Acknowledge that It is a Good Thing But Some Would Postpone It.

The action of the Push Club Wednesday evening on the subject of the Astoria annual regatta having caused considerable discussion on the part of the public yesterday the Astorian sent out a reporter who interviewed several prominent citizens on the subject. While it is thought to be rather early to begin agitating the matter, yet it is considered well to come to an understanding so that if the regatta is to be held this year, work may begin in time to make it a success.

In the discussion before the Push Club the fact developed that there was considerable difference of opinion as to whether it would be for the best interests of the city to hold a regatta this season or not, there being even some advocates of dropping the institution for good. There are very few of these, however, and while a large majority are in favor of a regatta, there are a number in favor of postponing it for a time until other matters, of what they call a more substantial nature, are developed in the city. While some are in favor of this, others say that the regatta is needed as a sort of recreation, and that it is good for the city and should be kept up, as nothing is ever lost and all is a clear gain.

One of the first men encountered was Mayor Suprenant. "We want the regatta," said the mayor. "The regatta is all right," said Sheriff Lavinie. "We do not want to encumber it with too many side shows, however," continued the sheriff. "Last season we tried to do too much. We kept the visitors busy day and night, attending the entertainments. When it was not the regatta it was the street fair. What we want is to give them time to see our natural resources and have time to mix up with our business men. Our business men put up the money and they should have an opportunity to get some of the patronage from the visitors. Too much show is detrimental to the business interests." "Put me down for $500—oh, you are not taking subscriptions," said Merchant P. A. Stokes. "Yes, I am heartily in favor of the regatta."

C. J. Trenchard: "The regatta is a good thing, but the people have been taxed pretty heavily this year and it might be well to let the regatta lie over for one season. It is really a state institution—that is, it is looked to all over the state, and if it were postponed for one season the disappointment would possibly be such that we would be enabled to get assistance from the outside—that is, more interest taken from the outside. It is one of the best institutions in the state and should become a permanent one, and the whole state should not only be interested in it from a standpoint of pleasure, but should contribute to making it a greater success."

W. L. Robb: "I am heartily in favor of the regatta." Martin Foard: "It is a good thing, if sufficient money can be raised to make it a success, let it take place by all means." Hon. John Fox: "Keep it up by all means. We need it for pleasure and for a sort of recreation after our year's work. We have begun it and it is worth keeping." W. W. Whipple: "While I will do all I can for the regatta if the people desire it, yet I believe that the money spent for a regatta could be spent in a more beneficial way. I want to see a good payroll here. A payroll is permanent the year round and means a permanent benefit. I believe in more business and less pleasure. I would reap as much benefit from the regatta, personally, as any other, but for the best interests of the city I think it well to drop the regatta for the time. Let us devote our energy to more substantial things."

Herman Wise: "A regatta, street fair, or exposition is to a city what a newspaper ad is to a store. You want people to know that you are wide awake, that you have something in your shop or city that they ought to see, and that after they have come they will be glad of it, or if they neglect to come they will regret it. In addition to the financial benefits, the regatta keeps our own people from getting stale. It's all right to get enterprises—we sorely need them, but all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. It is so with a community. It is good for the people to see their town and one another in holiday attire, and hear the music of the bands and the songs of the 'spielers.' By all means give us the regatta."
