It is reported that the Columbia r.v. lightship will be withdrawn from her station on May 25th for repairs. The repairing will be done at Astoria and will require about three days' time, after which she will be returned.

At a late hour last evening a portly gentleman with a beautiful young lady passed down Eleventh street, and followed several other couples into the Toke Point Oyster House, where they all enjoyed the best the earth affords. Nothing is too good for your sweetheart.

The steamer Nahotta, which has been at Portland for repairs the past two weeks, is expected down today or tomorrow to take up her old run between Astoria and Ilwaco. The Captain will be tied up here as a quarrel boat ready to put on the run in case of an emergency.

Notice is given that the bell buoy marking Fauntleroy Rock, Crescent City Harbor, California, which recently parted its moorings and went ashore, was replaced May 9 near its old position, in 2 1/2 feet of water, 175 feet SE. by E. from Fauntleroy Rock. This buoy must be passed close to on port hand going in to avoid a two-foot rock on the east side of the channel.

Colonel William H. Huer, chief engineer of the Pacific Coast division, who was in the city last Saturday in company with Captain W. C. Langfitt, was an old-time friend of Judge Gray. He was here for the purpose of inspecting the lighthouses about this port, but found time to spend an hour or so visiting with the Judge at his residence on Grand avenue. It was the second time they had met in the last 25 years.

The new horses for the hose cart of station No. 1 were put in active service yesterday morning. After their first day's training they would take their places in front of the engine at the sound of the bell and return to their stalls when told to do so. The readiness with which they understand goes a long way toward convincing Chief Stockton that they will fill the bill.

County Judge Gray, who has been reported to be confined to his bed with some lingering disease that has a severe hold of his system, wishes it to be said that his complaint is but a slight attack of the grippe. His physician has advised him to be as quiet as possible, and in accordance with these instructions he refrains from coming down town only on important business. He may be seen at his home by any one wishing to meet him on business.

Ole Nelson, an 18-year-old boy of West Astoria, was brought before the Justice Court yesterday afternoon to answer to the charge of destroying a fence on the Sisters' property south of St. Mary's Hospital. The hearing of his case was postponed until Monday, May 19th, on condition that he enlist in the navy in the meantime. Nelson has availed himself of this opportunity of evading the stern hand of the law, so the charge against him will undoubtedly be dismissed.

The ladies of the Thursday Afternoon Club held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. A. A. Finch.

The Republicans held a meeting at Chadwell last evening, the steamer Eclipse taking a number of candidates and their friends from this city. The school house was filled by an enthusiastic and appreciative audience. The meeting was called to order by W. J. Ingalls, and Hon. C. J. Curtis was introduced. He discussed the issues and local politics. G. C. Fulton was the next speaker and made a forcible argument in favor of Republican principles. Sheriff Linville was the orator of the evening and made a good impression. J. C. Clinton and W. J. Ingalls spoke briefly of county affairs. The meeting was the largest and most enthusiastic ever held at Chadwell.

Yesterday evening finished up the registration for the coming election, and although 30 voters were recorded the last day the total only amounted to 2202, or a shortage of 263 of what it was in 1900. The following gives the correct number of voters in each of the 26 precincts of Clatsop county:

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT.

Portland is bestirring herself for the improvement of the city in the proper way as the following from the Oregonian will show:

The Lewis and Clark Civic Improvement Association rally at the Marquam last evening was one of the biggest and most enthusiastic public gatherings ever held in the city, and those who attended were pleased with the excellent program. The Lewis and Clark Civic Improvement Association is an organization of progressive, public-spirited citizens, and in addition to its large list of active members includes a number of sub-associations, which are doing good work in different quarters of the city.

President F. B. Gibson acted as chairman, and in his opening remarks dwelt at length upon the opportunities for civic improvement in Portland, which he considers one of Nature's garden spots. He told of the good work done by the various civic improvement associations in the East and Middle West and urged his hearers to ally themselves with the association, which he said must have the support of citizens generally before any great results can be looked for.

At the conclusion of his address Mr. Gibson announced that Mrs. Helen Ladd-Corbett had just sent in her card of membership, and with it a check for $25, a gift to the association. The announcement, as well as the whole speech of Mr. Gibson, was heartily cheered.

The second number on the program was an amusing recitation by Miss Luse, after which Dr. W. A. Cumming sang "Hybris Creton," graciously responding to an encore. His daughter, Miss Inez Cumming, played the accompaniment. A quartet of darkies, ambling along with wheelbarrows and supposed to represent the street cleaning department, then appeared on the stage, singing a number of beautiful Southern melodies.

The next number was an illustrated stereopticon lecture by G. M. Hyland, one of the enthusiastic members of the association. He spoke for half an hour, telling of the work of the improvement societies and push clubs of Eastern cities, and illustrating each topic with excellent views. The last one being President Roosevelt's portrait, he being an ardent worker for civic improvement.

Mrs. Albert Sheldon then sang "Love's Sacred Trust," and responded to loud demands for an encore. The last number was a selection by the quartette. After the meeting some 75 new members joined the association.

BASKET BALL.

An interesting game of basket ball was played at the old A. F. C. club this afternoon between the High School girls and the Uppertown girls. At the end of the first half the Uppertown girls appeared to have the game well in hand, but the second half the High School girls played to better advantage and after an up-hill fight on their part finally won out by a score of 19 to 6.

The line-up was: High school—Misses Maude Van Dusen, Elsie Elmore, Mary Warfield, Elen Nowlin, Virginia Nowlin, Florence Ross; Uppertown—Misses Bertha Morton, Grace Morton, Selma Norberg, Ella Painter, Laura Fastabend, Ida Painter.

PEOPLE WHO LIVE LONGEST.

From statistics it is learned that the longest-lived people of the world are the Norwegians. They are temperate and simple in their habits and preserve in great vigor their digestive powers which is most necessary in the maintenance of good health. The American usually lives so fast that the stomach is neglected until his health is completely undermined, and he finds himself gradually getting weaker and weaker. If you are one of these sufferers we offer you a medicine that will strengthen your stomach and start you anew on health's pathway, and that is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It will cure flatulency, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, incontinence, chills and malaria, fever and ague. Don't fail to try it. For sale by all druggists.

FOR SALE.

$1100—lot 5, block 32, McClure's; 60x100; on corner, with attractive eight-room cottage; city water; view that cannot be obstructed, and seven minutes walk from postoffice. This property is worth $1500, but I am leaving the city and would rather sell than rent. E. C. LEWIS.

DEMOCRATIC SPEAKING.

Fishers' opera house was well filled last evening with an audience to hear the Democratic candidates for state offices discuss the issues of the campaign.

Hon. John E. Groat acted as chairman and did his duty with grace and ability.

W. A. Wann, candidate for state superintendent of schools, was introduced and made a clever and entertaining speech. He condemned some of the present methods and made some humorous illustrations. His address was enjoyed by the audience. His personal appearance was prepossessing, and it was easy to decide that he was not among the most antiquated of pedagogues.

David Sears, candidate for secretary of state, was then introduced. Mr. Sears could not have appeared at any other point in Oregon at so great a disadvantage. This is the Hon. F. I. Dunbar's home. Every man, irrespective of politics, is his friend, as well as the women and children. However, the people of Astoria gave Mr. Sears a careful hearing and enjoyed his speech. The burden of his talk was high taxes and he seemed convinced that he could remedy the whole matter himself. He would defy the laws if elected and only sign warrants for state indebtedness allowed by constitution. He was a little enthusiastic at times, but, like the other speeches, there was lack of confidence behind it that showed that the speaker was talking more along the lines of duty as a candidate than he was in the sincerity of the cause he espoused.

The chief speaker of the evening, Mr. George E. Chamberlain, candidate for governor, was then introduced. He made a pleasing speech. He is not an orator and does not make a striking appearance before an audience, but he makes a favorable impression. He has a frank manner, both in speech and conduct, and gained the confidence of his hearers at once. He handled the issues of the campaign as well as he could, considering the fact that he admitted that there were no issues.

The editorial in another column covers the subject of Mr. Chamberlain's address and campaign as correctly as the same can be described.

The Democrats have no cause for complaint at the reception their candidates received last evening, and, while their trip to Astoria was a fruitless one from a standpoint of getting more votes, they made many personal friends.

People nowadays can take a friend by the hand and entertain him and all of that, but in casting their votes they look more to the interest of the country.
