sgement it has met with no opposition. It is simply the failure of any one to some foeward with the substantial enoursement in the way of a g od subscription that leads the committee to fear that the regatta will fall through. It takes money to run such 16.06 an institution and it is useless to unertake it without money. All of the work in the world will not give Astoria a regarta. It is said that "money talks," and this is one of the occas-

While the committee is thoroughly discouraged, and doubtless has a right to be, for it is composed of men that do not lay down without cause, it is yet hoped that the regalta will not fall through. Many claim that the political excitement just now is absorbing all of the interests of the people and that they have not the time to think of regultar and other public matters of general interest to the city; that as soon as the campaign is over it matters not who is elected, the people will begin to think about Astoria again, and they will waken to the importance of the regatta and get in and put it through. The work of organizing and making a successful regatta is no child's play, as all who have taken an active part in former reguttas can testify, and when the committee cails on you, you should not hesitate, or wait for others to act. Make up your mind what you can do and do it. Every business man in Astoria can do something for the regatta, for he is certain to get his money back in the end, and he should help it without hesitation.

The committee is now ready to report adversely on the regatta. The report is already written and signed by all but one of the committee. The good people of Astoria should not permit this report to be made, election or no election. Go to the committee. request it to hold the report, and let the people get in action and prepare for the regatta.

The committee consists of the following well-known gentlemen: Herman Wise, P. A. Stokes, O. I. Peterson, John N. Griffin, H. G. Van Dusen and M. S. Copeland See all, or either of these gentlemen at once, if you desire
