Gentlemen! Call and see the latest creations of Knox hats; arrived today, at C. H. Cooper's.

The steamer Columbia arrived in from San Francisco yesterday at 8 a. m. and left for Portland at 11 o'clock. The vessel was crowded with passengers, and before leaving up the river unloaded a large amount of freight for local merchants.

Those merry parties still continue to regale at the Eleventh street resort because the toothsome delicacies served at the Toku Point Oyster house make it the most popular place in the town. Fresh Toku Point oysters and other shell fish always on hand.

The Sons of Herman will give a picnic on Youngs river today, at which they have invited a few of their friends. The day will be spent at Joe Bomgartner's place, just below the forks. Music for the occasion will be furnished by the Mandolin club.

Yesterday marriage licenses were granted to the following couples: Charles Matlin and Kate Jackson, August Hambl and Annie Kukka, and Lulu Radich and Winnie Getulich. Mr. Radich is a resident of Clifton. The others live in the city.

The fire department was called out yesterday afternoon in response to a call from Astor street, between Fifth and Sixth. Hill's bath houses had gotten afire, but the blaze was extinguished with two buckets of water before a hose could be brought into action.

A dance which was well attended was given at the home of Jack Ryan, on the Little Wallucki, last night.

The street committee of the council and interested property owners are to hold a meeting for the purpose of discussing the manner of draining Thirtieth street, which is now being improved.

Owing to the rush of business the Astoria Hat Company will remain at the old stand until September 10th. Now is the time to attend to that old hat. Bring it in. 464 Commercial street.

Astoria generally are not aware of the large quantities of berries that grow in the vicinity of the city. One lady alone picked and canned over 60 quarts of huckleberries and blackberries. Several young people have, during the summer, made good money by disposing of the berries to the local markets.

For the Elks' Carnival and Street Fair to be held at Portland from September 1st to 13th, inclusive, the A. & C. R. R. will make a rate of $2 for the round trip between Astoria and Portland on the following dates: For the evening train of September 23, morning train September 24th, evening train September 25th, all trains of September 26th, and morning train of September 27th. These tickets will be good to return until September 14th.

Warfield, the young son of James Hare, accompanied Sloop and Jeffers' milk wagon to Lewis and Clark yesterday afternoon and on the return trip fell from the side step on which he was standing and was run over by the vehicle, one of the hind wheels passing completely over his body. He was brought hurriedly to town and Dr. Cordiner was summoned. Luckily the little fellow did not sustain any serious injury, though at the time considerable alarm was felt. He was resting very easily last night and it is thought he will soon be around again.

Sheriff Linville returned yesterday from San Francisco on board the Columbia. The officer brought with him the two Greeks, E. Moro and A. Demetris, suspected of having stolen $300 from George Elco, on Bond street. While there is no doubt in the minds of those associated with the case that the men are either guilty of the theft or implicated in its commission, it is thought that it will be hard to prove a case against them. The prisoners who are taking their case in the county jail, are pretty rough looking characters and both stolidly insist that they know nothing about the money. They will be given a preliminary hearing on next Monday forenoon before Justice of the Peace Goodman.

Here is some alleged humor from the West Coast and Puget Sound Lumbermen that ought to be apologized for: "One point in Oregon is well named. It is called Tongue Point. The point is that there has been more tongue than point for a number of years. Now a mill is to be erected and that point will supercede the tongue. Hereafter the tongue has wagged the point, but now the point is doing the wagging. At one time the tongue was mightier than the point, but hereafter it won't be by a long point. It might throw some light on this point to say that Lewis and Clark are supposed to have camped there in 1805 and served salmon tongue. That is the first point; the last point is the sawmill."

It is not at all unlikely that another big mill will be secured for Astoria within a short time. Some days ago representatives of the Ohio Hardwood Lumber Company, of Cincinnati, were in Astoria and looked over the available sites here. They were favorably impressed with this location and so expressed themselves. Mayor Suprenant, who had charge of the visitors, has secured an option on the Eagle cannery site, in the East End, and has acquainted the Cincinnati people with the terms under which they may acquire the land. An early reply is expected. The price put on the property is a very reasonable one and it is believed the mill will be located here. The company has a large establishment in the East, but it has been compelled to suspend operations on account of the failure of the timber supply. Similar conditions exist in nearly all Eastern lumbering districts, and it is probable there will soon be a big demand for mill sites in this vicinity.

The remains of the late Silas B. Smith will be laid away today in Clatsop cemetery. The funeral services will be held in the Presbyterian church on Clatsop plains and will be conducted by the Rev. Mr. McCormack. The funeral will be under the auspices of the Oregon Pioneer and Historical Society, members of which will attend in a body. The cortege will leave the city on the 11:30 train.

It has been recently stated by D. K. Warren and C. F. Lester that a large mill and box factory will be put in in Warrenton before the coming winter is over. The question of instituting these institutions across the bay has been so often brought up and so often frustrated that Warrentonians have about lost interest in the proposition, but the information now at hand comes from such reliable sources, that the project is again a live one.

The railroad depot presented a busy appearance at 6 last evening. The Portland-bound train carried several hundred returning seafarers, who had come over from Seaside and Long Beach during the afternoon, while the down train, arriving at 8, brought several hundred passengers who were bound for Astoria and the beaches. The number of seafarers passing through Astoria this summer has exceeded that of any previous year, and the trains and boats have done a land-office business.

The will of the late Mrs. Theresa O'Brien was filed for probate in Judge Trenehard's court yesterday afternoon. The estate which is valued at $12,000, is divided equally among the five children of the deceased—John H. Koch, William Humbel, Laura Humbel, Henry Humbel and Anna Betts. John H. Koch and John P. Betts are named as executors, without bonds. The will, which is dated July 2, 1901, expresses the wish that none of the real estate be sold until five years after the death of the testator.

The recent efforts to secure extension of the water mains to the eastern and western boundaries of the city will probably fail, at least for this year. The water commissioners, at a meeting Friday night, considered the proposal of enacting an expert engineer to prepare plans for a main that would supply the East End, but decided that it would not be advisable to incur the expense at this time. The great difficulty with the proposed West End extension is that there is no improved street beyond the point that is already supplied, and no other practicable route can be found except over some improved street. Should a street be extended to the Point, the commission would probably extend the water system to that end of town and supply the new factories, which have recently been located there.

DEATH OF AN OLD RESIDENT.

Whose Earnest Laboring Has Benefited Clatsop County.

In the death of Silas B. Smith, Clatsop county loses its oldest living resident and Oregon one of its stalwart sons. He was a representative pioneer, a type of that sturdy class of men who lived in such strenuous times; who braved all dangers, overcame all obstacles and made this country what it is—peaceful and inhabitable.

Silas Bryant Smith was born near where Newberg now stands, in Yamhill county, in 1825. His father, Solomon H. Smith, was a New Englander, who settled in the Willamette valley in the summer of 1834. After first filling an engagement as teacher at Pt. Vancouver. He married Collie Cobaway, a daughter of a Clatsop chief. She was afterwards known as Mrs. Helen Smith. Solomon H. Smith moved to Clatsop while Silas Bryant was yet a babe, and from that time until his death Clatsop county has been his home. After he had grown to be a young man he studied law under Senator Blair of New Hampshire, and was admitted to the bar in that state, but returned to Astoria and practiced his profession. He eventually removed to his farm on the West Side, south of Skipanon, and has since resided there. He has been a sufferer from consumption for some time, and this was the immediate cause of his death.

Mr. Smith was a man of good education, a learned lawyer and a successful orator. He was identified with the different pioneer societies of the state, and was a recognized authority on early day achievements. He was a man of rare moral fibre, a strong exponent of the cause of temperance and a hater of sham and deceit. He loved humanity for humanity's sake and battled for its good.

Mr. Smith is survived by a wife and five children, three daughters and two sons, and a sister, Mrs. John Effler, of Skipanon.

PERSONAL MENTION.

R. J. Abbott was over from Warrenton yesterday attending to business.

J. C. Hayter, publisher of the Polk County Observer, arrived in the city last evening.

Harry Sale came in from his home on Youngs river yesterday to meet his sister, Mrs. Lena Turley, who has been in Portland.

Miss Mabel Jeffers has been appointed teacher of the Green Mountain school and leaves today to assume her duties. The term will be four months. P. F. Halferty will visit Hoquiam and Aberdeen this week. Mr. Halferty has not yet decided exactly where he will locate his business when he removes from Warrenton, but one of the above towns will be his choice.

CONVENT OF THE HOLY NAMES.

The Convent of the Holy Names, boarding and day school for young ladies reopens Tuesday, September 2d. Thorough scientific grammar and primary courses, commercial course, physical culture and music. Instruction in plain sewing and physical culture given gratis to attending pupils. Should the number justify, Miss Ethel Webb, of the Toronto School of Oratory, will organize an elocution class here, and also give private lessons to those who are desirous of receiving instructions in this art. Applications should be made before the 15th of September.
