No action has yet been taken by the bar tug engineers who are expected to go out in sympathy with the Portland strikers, but it is thought the order will come in a day or two. The statement was made last night that one of the tugs might be tied up, but that the other could not be put out of commission by the strikers.

The Gatzert did not arrive down until midnight, and Captain Crang is not quite sure whether he is running a night boat or morning boat out of Astoria. Agent Taylor states that the rush of business is unprecedented for this season of the year, the volume of way traffic being exceptionally large. There is much salmon moving and that adds to the amount of traffic.

It is pretty generally acknowledged that the fire last Monday morning was started by a fire bug and the police department is on the still hunt after the guilty party with good assurance that he will be apprehended. A sailor is now incarcerated in the city jail, arrested upon suspicion of having committed the offense. But as the statements, which led to his arrest, were made by him during a period of intoxication, not much reliance is placed in them. Nevertheless his case will be thoroughly aired before Judge Goodman before he is allowed to go at liberty.

H. B. Gist, known to his friends as "King Edward," on account of his unusual resemblance to the British ruler, is again in the city, having escaped from Portland on yesterday morning's train. Mr. Gist is the representative of the California Saw Works Company and will go to Tillamook today to supply the mills there. During his last visit to Astoria he was attacked by a savage cow while making a visit to the Universal sash and door factory in the West End but managed to escape injury. On his next trip to this factory he will be accompanied by the poundmaster. Mr. Gist is very much pleased to note the rapid development of the lumbering industry here, and states that the industry will make Astoria a large city.

But for the timely appearance of two fishermen there would have been serious conflagration in Uppertown Thursday night, and this city would have been visited by two disastrous fires in one week, both possibly of incendiary origin. The old Devil cany is occupied by two fishermen who discovered upon entering the building Thursday night, that some miscreant had soaked a piece of net in lacquer and setting fire to it had thrown the blazing mass through a window. When one of the men extinguished the flames the other took after a suspicious looking character running up the dock. The man escaped, but yesterday morning Sheriff Linville arrested G. Mitchell, who lives near the cannery, as a suspect. The man is now lodged in the county jail awaiting a hearing. There are circumstances attending the case which point to his guilt, but nothing positively is known. that both families live together, notice was given that the house was needed. The plaintiff did not seem in a hurry to move and while the incident was pending the newly married couple moved into a hunting scow at the landing. There was considerable dispute constantly going on relative to the respective rights of the parties concerned, but a climax was reached a few days ago. Two of the plaintiff's children, a boy and a girl, went near the scow for the purpose of digging potatoes when, it is alleged, Mrs. Burnside made her appearance with a gun and, leveling the weapon at the children, threatened to blow their heads off if they did not leave. Mrs. Burnside claims the gun was not loaded and that she made no such threat as claimed. There is no knowledge attainable as to what the decision will be, but it is generally conceded that Mrs. Burnside will not receive a life sentence.

The proposal advanced by members of the county court that a new courthouse was a pressing need that should be supplied has caused much interest among taxpayers, who, with few exceptions, heartily favor the plan. Sentiment favors the construction of a fine building that could be used both as courthouse and city hall. The present headquarters of the city are as much an eyesore as those of the county. In view of the fact that the city constitutes the greater portion of the county, the erection of a structure that could be used as the seat of government of both is favored. Judge Trenchard states that the matter was brought up by the court that there might be free discussion. He says he has heard few complaints, while scores of taxpayers have expressed their approval of the plan. The question of a tax levy for the purpose will soon be taken up by the court.

Several very bad boys have been annoying the people living in the neighborhood of McClure school for some time past, and last night matters reached a climax, many complaints of their depredations being received at this office. The boys resorted to the favorite prank of placing a large club against the door of some unsuspecting resident, then ringing the door-bell, or throwing mud at houses and otherwise misbehaving themselves. Officer Thompson was sent to the scene of the trouble but no arrests were made last night. School Director Higgins, who was one of the complainants, states that he knows the names of several of the boys, and that he will cause their arrest if the depredations continue. Actuated by consideration for the feelings of the parents, Mr. Higgins refrained from making any arrests last night, but a recurrence of the annoyance will involve the boys in serious difficulty.

A 50-game bowling try-out is in progress at the Commercial club alleys, and more than 50 men are entered. The try-out will end about November 1. The Irving alleys will shortly be thronged again with bowlers, and the outlook for the coming season is bright. There is some talk of an all-Astoria team inviting the Portland teams down during the winter, and the proposal meets with favor. Whether or not another Commercial Irving tournament will be held this year is problematical, but it is expected a contest will be arranged. Captain Astbury, of Irving's 1901 team, is very anxious that the tournament be inaugurated, as it always creates much interest in the sport. The Commercial team will doubtless participate in the inter-state tournament this season, and expects to make a good showing.

Until the bodies of the two sailors, Fergusson and Hudson, who were drowned while attempting to escape from the Austrasia, are found, Coroner Pohl will be unable to continue his investigation. When the bodies are washed ashore however, the coroner will conduct a careful inquiry into the manner in which they came to their death, and all the facts will doubtless be brought to light. The statement of the West Astoria fishermen that men from the ship warned them away from the drowning men at the point of rifles will give the investigation a touch of sensationalism. These fishermen are accredited with the statement that they could have saved the sailors had not the ship's men interfered. Coroner Pohl says he has not yet interviewed the fishermen, but that he has located them and will cite them to appear as witnesses at the investigation should the bodies be found. He has already taken the testimony of the officers and men of the vessel.

Senator Fulton returned to the city yesterday after an absence of about two weeks. The senator looks very well, but he has been suffering with a severe cold and his voice is husky. "Sort of campaign voice you're wearing, senator," suggested a reporter. "Well, it does sound that way, but it's merely a bad cold," replied the Astoria statesman. While away Mr. Fulton made a trip through the Willamette valley, where he spent several days with friends. His trip proved an enjoyable one. When the subject of politics was broached, the senator declined to talk. He said he did not care to discuss the situation, as the legislative session was altogether too far off. His friends, however, seem well satisfied with the outlook and predict the election of Mr. Fulton to the United States senate. The announcement that H. W. Scott had jumped into the fray, while not authoritative, has excited much interest in the approaching legislative session. It is believed in this city that Mr. Scott will not develop nearly as much strength as Mr. Fulton.
