John H. Berglund, of this city, died Friday night in Portland at St. Vincent's hospital, where he had been taken for treatment. The body was brought into the city on last night's train and is being cared for by Coroner Pohl. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, the services to be conducted under the auspices of the Knights of the Maccabees.

A sad drowning accident occurred in East Astoria last evening, the unfortunate lad being the 9 year old son of Andrew West, an employe of the Astoria Box company. In company with another boy, the West lad had gone to the old George & Barker dock to fish for tomcod, and fell into the water. Before assistance could reach him, he drowned. The body was not recovered last night.

From information given out yesterday by members of the joint manufacturing committee of the commercial organizations, another new industry is practically assured for the city. The committee has offered to provide a site for the new concern at a very low figure, and it is expected the negotiations will be successful. The promoters will invest about $100,000 and their enterprise will afford employment for 65 or 70 men.

"Young man, why don't you go into partners with me?" said Marcus Suman, the cattle king, yesterday to a reporter who happened along. "Well, I hadn't thought of it," said the reporter. "But why do you ask?" "Because I am a money maker," replied Suman. "This morning I bought 40 cents' worth of tomcod, sold 50 cents' worth, and look what I have left!" Sure enough, Mr. Suman is a money maker, for in his cart were enough fish to net another dollar.

Today's big football game at Ilwaco will be witnessed by a large crowd from Astoria. The boat is scheduled to depart at 8 o'clock, an unearthly hour when it is considered that play will not begin until 2:30 but the enthusiasts will make the trip just the same. Great interest is being taken in the outcome for the reason that the present season promises to be most successful for football and some idea of the strength of the Astoria eleven and its chances of success against the prominent state teams can be gained.

A principal in one of the local schools is charged by an irate father with having unmercifully beaten his little boy and asserts that the matter will be brought to the immediate attention of the school board. The boy is accredited by the teacher with having smoked about the school premises and the youth stoutly denies having committed the offense and states that he finally confessed only to avoid further punishment. Whether guilty or not, the father believes the punishment inflicted to have been entirely too severe. Two physicians have examined the boy's wounds.

Hon. John Hahn is in receipt of a letter from George Allen, a New York friend, in which some interesting facts regarding the coal strike are set forth. Mr. Allen states that there was no coal in the market when he wrote, and with winter coming on, the people were at a loss to know what they would do. The family used eight tons last winter, and at the current price, $20 per ton, the fuel item presented to be a very heavy one. Even at that figure, there was little coal to be had, the yards being empty. Many people were soaking bricks in oil, the letter says, and using them for fuel. Many families had bought oil stoves for cooking purposes, using gas for heat. Fortunately, the settlement came before the extreme cold weather, and the threatened suffering will not materialize.

Proposals for water and sewer systems, grading, roads and sidewalks, at Fort Columbia, Wash.: Constructing Quartermaster's Office, Astoria, Ore., October 17, 1902.—Sealed proposals in triplicate will be received here until 10 o'clock a. m. November 15, 1902, and then opened, for the construction of water and sewer systems, grading, roads and sidewalks at Fort Columbia, Wash., and additional specifications can be seen at office Depot Quartermaster, Portland, Ore., and plans and specifications and further information will be afforded, at this office, and office of superintendent of construction, Fort Columbia, Wash. Right is reserved to accept or reject any or all proposals. Envelopes containing proposals should be marked "Proposals for Water and Sewer Systems, Grading, Roads and Sidewalks at Fort Columbia, Wash.," and addressed to Geo. L. Goodale, Captain and Quartermaster U. S. Army.

At a special meeting of the Push club held last evening the question of paying for the book just issued was taken up and discussed. The amount in the treasury was $100 short of that required to settle the Push club's share of the cost, and the enterprising members present contributed the balance in a few minutes. The Push club workers take great pride in all their undertakings and are to be commended for their commercial enthusiasm. They have decided that their 2500 copies of the book shall be distributed largely by individuals, the edition being entirely too small to give the Harriman lines the number desired by the agents of that system. However, several hundred copies will be placed at the disposal of the railroad company for distribution. The Push club last night expressed its favor of keeping the club's at commercial headquarters, and to require a receipt of any person who borrowed them.

The East Astoria Juniors yesterday met defeat at the hands of the High School eleven in an interesting game of football, the first played in Astoria this season. Within 10 minutes after play was commenced the High School aggregation had scored a touchdown, Murphy making a 60-yard run to do the trick. The goal was kicked. In the last 10 minutes of the second half Flavel scored another touchdown but the goal was not kicked. The score was 11-0. The teams lined up as follows: High School—Jeldness, center; Stina, left guard; Mayo, right guard; Hill left tackle; Mathena, right tackle; Murphy, left end; Cohen, right end; Thomas, left half; Brooks, right half; Flavel, fullback; Rober, quarterback. East Astoria Juniors—Kimball, center; Simen, left guard; H. Peterson, right guard; S. Peterson, left tackle; Wright right tackle; Norman, left end; Setten, right end; W. Barker, left half; Wood, right half; Olson and Mercurio, fullback; T. Barker, quarterback. Referee, Cleveland; time of halves, 20 minutes.

C. A. May has returned from the Grand Army encampment held at Washington, D. C. In the civil war Mr. May served with the Eleventh New York cavalry, known as Scott's 900, and so during his stay at the capital was mustered with the remnant of that once unimpeachable military force. The marvelous changes that have taken place in and about Washington since the war are well illustrated by one circumstance. From the time of his enlistment, in 1861, until his removal to New Orleans, in the latter part of '63, Mr. May served as a courier and it was his business to ride about Washington conditionally carrying messages and delivering orders. So the city became an open book to him. He was familiar with every nook and corner and he was equally well acquainted with the suburbs and the outlying country. But it was a strange city that was now revisited. Where a country road ran an asphalt street with electric cars passing back and forth and lined with massive buildings, now is. On what was in '62 called the Washington Commons a wild tract of land, over which mounted regiments drilled and charged unhindered, there are now to be seen great brick buildings, some of them so old that they are crumbling to ruin. The entire visit was to the veteran a continuous joy-feast, and he feels greatly repaid for having made the journey. Old friends were met and new ones made. Before leaving for the East Mr. May was not enjoying the best of health, but is now greatly improved.

MISSIONARY SOCIETIES MEET. The ladies of the Presbyterian church entertained the missionary societies of the different churches yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. A. Rannells, corner Eighth and Duane streets. The particular subject that received the attention of the ladies was Persia, and many valuable ideas were advanced and suggestions offered as to the best methods for bettering the condition of things in that far-away country. Besides papers, recitations, music and readings, a most profitable afternoon was spent socially. Following is the program: Paper.....Flash in History. Miss Garner. Address.....Map Talk. Mrs. William Ross. Paper.....Home Life and Customs of the Persians. Mrs. Gerding. Vocal Solo.....The Hills of God (by George B. Nevil). Miss Grace Rannells. Talk.....Babians. Rev. Henry Marcotte. Recitation.....Heather Enough at Home. Miss Annie Olsen. Address.....Practical Missions. Mrs. Campbell. After partaking of choice refreshments the ladies departed, all voting the gathering to have been pleasant and instructive.
