Bulletins On Pope's Health Not Relied upon by Many In Rome.

PASSES PEACEFUL SATURDAY

Cardinals Assert That Life Is Sustained Only By Use Of Powerful Stimulants.

Rome, July 12, 12:10 a. m.—"I think he will live to be 100," said an Italian priest in the court yard of the vatican last night as he read the last bulletin regarding the Pope's condition. "I don't believe bulletin," said another. "I don't either," chimed in a third, "but it does not do to say so here."

These expressions accurately represent the differences of opinions exhibited by those who have to rely for information regarding the pontiff's illness in an official bulletin. Cardinal Satoll, in conversation with a representative of the Associated Press, said that life was only kept in the tired body of the pontiff by constant use of powerful stimulants, and other persons equally reliable who saw the pope yesterday and who had seen him in previous days of his illness, agree with Cardinal Satoll, in saying that death has made all its ravages, save the separation of soul and body. Yet the doctors announce to the public that Pope Leo's general condition is satisfactory. An explanation of the apparent contradictions lies in the fact that the doctors expect his illness to die long before this, and now are exercising in their bulletins an excess of caution and a comparative method of expression which is incomprehensible to the lay mind. Moreover, the extraordinary vitality of their patient has, so to speak, annihilated every medical theory held by the doctors in Italy. In private the doctors only disagree as to the number of days the struggle will last.

Though science still may be unable to save the pope in his present illness it has at least afforded him a practically painless day. Since Saturday morning his holiness included in his pontifical routine a peaceful sleep the duration of which gave rise to some alarm and several visits from his doctors and audience with four or five cardinals. For a man of his age in perfect health, this Saturday would not have been an idle one.

WAS ONCE GREAT CHIEF.

Bones and Relics Found in Shallow Grave in East End.

Agood Indian was found yesterday by men in the employ of Contractor Goodin in the east end. This estimable red man has been good for many years, longer, perhaps, than he was bad before.

The remnants, and several relics were discovered about two feet from the surface in a lot owned by Mrs. H. H. Anderson. The men were removing dirt to fill up the alleyway adjoining Cedar street when a skull, a few decayed bones, an Indian pipe, two muskets, a knife, several Mexican dollars and a few American half dollars, were brought to light. The pipe has a face engraved upon it that bears a striking likeness to Captain Merril Lewis. The half dollars are dated 1850, and the barrels of the once trusty muskets are rusted nearly through. If the Indian received a Christian burial, there is no sign of coffin or other marks to prove it. He was very likely a great chief, however, as his personal property would indicate considerable wealth for an aborigine.

Considering the shallowness of the grave, it is deemed remarkable that it remained for so long a time undisturbed. The bones and relics are now at the home of Mr. Goodin, who will endeavor to discover some clue as to their origin.

Negro Fiend Suffers Hundred Deaths At Hands Of Enraged Citizens.

LITERALLY PLAYED ALIVE

Tongue Cut Out Before Death And Throbbing Heart Torn From His Body.

Wheeling, W. Va., July 11.—A special to the Register from Bluefields says:

The little town of Devon, Mingo county, was the scene yesterday of the assaulting of a little 14 year old girl by a negro, followed by his subsequent lynching by a mob numbering 200 men.

The little girl was caught by the negro and carried to a neighboring wood where her body was tied to a tree, bound and gagged. Her absence was noticed by neighbors who immediately formed themselves into searching parties. She was found in an almost dying condition, but was able to tell her story. It was decided to lie in wait for the fiend. In a short time he appeared and was just approaching the helpless child when the entire mob of concealed searchers emerged and made for him. The negro was dragged to the village common and bound to a tree.

His clothing was torn from his body and pins, tacks, pen knives and every conceivable weapon of torture, was stuck into his skin as he struggled, vainly pleading for his life.

He was allowed to suffer a hundred deaths with his body bleeding in a thousand places. The almost lifeless form of his little victim was then placed before the glaring eyes of the brute, while willing hands cut his tongue from his swollen mouth. His cries became incoherent and before the enraged citizens could be checked his skin was literally cut from the body and distributed among the villagers. He died with his eyes on the little girl whose life he had ruined. His heart was then cut out with a jack knife, and his ears and fingers were chopped off and carried away as mementos.

His bloody, mangled form was then soaked with kerosene and fired.

Crowds Sleep in New York Parks on the Grass.

New York, July 11.—Thousands of persons slept peacefully in the parks of Greater New York during the night despite the heat, secure in the knowledge that no policeman would awaken them back to their oven-like tenements. One of the most rigid police rules was ordered suspended and the officers in all boroughs were notified to see that no orderly person availing himself of the privilege was disturbed. The suspension of the rule will continue during the heated term. It had become almost imperative that some such relief measures should be taken by the city officials as men and boys had been sleeping for two nights on benches and lawns all over the city.

RACE WAR IN CALIFORNIA.

Mexicans Make Trouble For The Aggressive Japanese.

New York, July 11.—A bloody battle between 150 Japanese and the same number of Mexicans has been raging for five days on the desert between Harstow and Victorville, according to a Tribune dispatch from Los Angeles. Four are reported dead and about 50 wounded and the end of the struggle is not in sight. The combatants are all employed by the Santa Fe Railroad, laying new rails, and the company has been forced to suspend operations in that section.

The Japanese and Mexicans had been working peaceably side by side for some time, but on Monday a Japanese made an insulting remark about a Mexican and the fight began. When the two workmen came to blows sides were quickly formed and lines drawn. Tools used in railroad building and boulders from the bottoms of the Mojave river were the weapons and in a few minutes many heads were cracked. The Japanese were finally driven across the river amid showers of stones, almost as effective as bullets, their leader remaining in the front to the last. Both sides entrenched behind piles of sand and many sallies have been made since. The attacking force has invariably been repulsed. Two men were killed Friday when the Japanese earthworks were stormed by the Mexicans. The foreman is making every effort to patch up a truce, but the men seem determined to fight while any are left, and it may be necessary to call out the state troops to quell the fighters.

Mexicans all over the section are developing a fierce hatred of the Japanese because the latter are supplanting the Mexicans in many kinds of work, demanding less wages as usual, but giving better satisfaction.
