We think that poor goods are never cheap, at any price. It pays to buy good goods when they can be obtained at the right price. Johnson Bros.

Having finished his inspection of the new customs service launch under construction at Leathers' boat yards, Capt. O. C. Hamlett of the United States revenue cutter service, left for San Francisco on the steamer Elder yesterday.

An attempt to organize a tailors' union in Astoria has been unsuccessful. It is necessary that seven subscribe their names to the petition for a charter, but only six could be persuaded that in union there is strength, and there will be no union of tailors in this city until an affable organizer comes this way and convinces the seventh member that union means uniform prices all around.

The sanctuary of St. Mary's was appropriately decorated in memory of the late pontiff yesterday, the color scheme being black with a slight sprinkling of the papal colors, yellow and white. Solemn high mass will be sung at 9 o'clock this morning, and Rev. Father Waters will pronounce a eulogy on the venerable dead. The church will remain draped until after the funeral of the pope.

John C. McCue yesterday began to take the official measurements of the new customs launch, the boat for the new Hume mill and the launch for Capt. John Reid, all at Leathers' ship yard. The engines for the latter are due to reach Astoria on Saturday. Capt. Reid has not yet settled upon a name for his new craft, but the odds are that it will be called from the imaginary land inhabited by coquettish little fairies.

Sheriff Linville has devised a brand new scheme for guessing people's exact weight, no matter how ponderous they may be, and he is seriously considering the advisability of applying for letters of patent on it. The solution of the mathematical problem is acquired by a difficult feat of balancing in mid air the person desiring to save himself the expense of putting a nickel in the slot to ascertain his weight; once suspended at an appropriate angle, a cane held in the hands of a humorous assistant, is brought down heavily on the back of the weigher, and the correct weight is ascertained by comparing the manner in which the joke is received with the manner in which it ought to be. For further particulars see Charles Halderman or Contractor Palmberg.

A. D. Fairchild, who had been an agent for the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company, is wanted at St. Helens for obtaining money on checks, where he had no deposits. Fairchild was there a little over a week ago, and represented himself to be a traveling agent of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company. He remained two or three days, apparently soliciting business. He gave N. A. Perry, the Houlton postmaster, a check on the Ladd & Tilton bank, in Portland, for $15, which was cashed. The check was returned to Mr. Perry dishonored. At Scappoose Fairchild negotiated a draft with Watts & Price for a similar amount. The draft was returned from Sherman & Harmon, the general agent of the Penn Mutual, at Portland, stating that Fairchild had not been in their employ for a couple of weeks. A warrant has been prepared for his arrest.

BUS FOR PAINTING

Astoria, Oregon, July 17, 1903. Bids will be received at the office of the School Clerk from the date hereof, until August 1, 1903, for the painting of the Alderbrook school house and for the painting of the Adair school house, two coats each, the work to be done in a good and workmanlike manner, and to the satisfaction of the Board of Directors, the work to be fully completed by September 20, 1903. All material to be furnished by the Board. Bids for painting the roofs of said buildings, to be for one coat work, the Directors reserve the right to reject any and all bids. By order of the Board of School District No. 1.

By E. Z. FERGUSON, Clerk of School District No. 1.

If you want the purest and best ice cream you'll have to see Tagg. 15 cents a pint.

The building occupied by the Chinese Labor association on Bond street is undergoing much needed repairs. The shack is about ready to topple over, just as many other buildings of the ramshackle architecture in the same neighborhood are ready to do.

Aside from a general creeping up there is no noticeable change in the vote for Regatta queen, up to date. The result as it appeared when the committee counted the votes yesterday noon is here given: Mrs. Ridehalgh, 3025; Miss Thomas, 2709; Miss Lemon, 2153; Miss Nellie Lidwell, 1931; Miss Birdie Gunderson, 829; Miss Maja Fredrickson, 558; Miss Madge Sovey, 529.

One by one the remnants of reminders of the Smith perjury trial are being lost in the shuffle of daily routine. Deputy Sheriff Thompson and E. L. Perkins, of Contra Costa county, Cal., and E. W. Lues of San Francisco, left for their respective homes yesterday; the two prisoners were also taken to the penitentiary, and the judgment obtained by Bock against the city of Astoria in the sum of $2,500 is rendered invalid.

Andrew Klaser, the aged man who was brought from Seaside and taken to the hospital on Tuesday was reported as being indisposed yesterday. William Black, the Iwaco saloon keeper who was shot in the abdomen as he was closing his saloon on Monday night, is getting along nicely. "Doc" Winfield, one of the men whom Mr. Black accused of being implicated in the shooting, was arrested at Iwaco but released on establishing an alibi. He proved that he was not in the city that night.

The most striking feature of the fish situation reported yesterday was the news of a new run at the mouth of the river, one man bringing in 3400 pounds for which he realized $120; other large catches were also reported. S. Schmidt & Co. received a telephone message advising them to be prepared to receive fish in large quantities. Reports from the gillnetters and seiners were not based on hearsay altogether, as in comparison to the last few days fish were very plentiful yesterday. This was more true of this side than of the north shore, where an unusual run was not remarked. However, this was due, it is believed, to the heavy wind that prevailed in the lower harbor, which prevented the trawls from being lifted. McGowan's canneries are doing little in consequence. Preparations are under way to handle a large supply when the wind abates. Astoria packing houses and cold storages are being kept busy. Fishermen yesterday brought in as much as a ton, while the average boat measured up to 300 pounds. Many of them had 600 and 700 pounds. This is thought to be the beginning of the end, the final big run.

In the presence of a large congregation assembled in Grace Episcopal church last night, Rev. W. E. Potwine, of Pendleton, dedicated the new lectern, a memorial to the late Mrs. William Seymour Short, the gift of St. Agnes guild and other friends, including many from the Holy Innocents' chapel in the east end. Mr. Potwine delivered an appropriate address in which he referred to the peculiar fitness of the Bible stand as a memorial to one who had striven in life to show forth the beautiful truths and lights of scripture. The ceremony represented a most comforting hour in the life of the rector, one that time cannot efface from the memory. The choir boys sang a number of beautiful hymns, and at the conclusion of the service the congregation inspected the handsome new piece of ecclesiastical furniture and held an informal reception. The new lectern adds dignity and charm to the appearance of the pretty little church, and combines beauty and utility.

Senator C. W. Fulton returned from Portland last night, where he went to represent the defendant in the suit brought by Leroy S. Davidson against the Astoria and Columbia River railroad. The plaintiff was consulted on the grounds that the defendant, under the city ordinance, is not required to keep in repair its right of way more than three feet beyond its rails on either side, and that it is not required to improve the street crossing when ordered so to do by the city council until such time as the city shall have improved up to the crossing. Street Superintendent James Kearney, Engineer Woodin and John Wirt witnesses in the case, returned from Portland yesterday. Davidson claimed to have fallen through a hole on Sixth street last September, injuring the left shoulder, head and body. He sued the railroad because the place where he fell is part of its right of way. The question of sobriety was raised at the trial on Tuesday and the defendant admitted having indulged in a few drinks but not enough to render him intoxicated. Senator C. W. Fulton represented the defendant, and the case was tried without a jury.

Contractor CL Houston has returned home from Portland, where he has just completed the construction of a factory and warehouse for the American Can Co. He states that the work of driving piles for the new span over the Lewis and Clark will be finished in about five days. If the delivery of iron from the East is prompt the new bridge will be ready for traffic in about two months, he says.

Mrs. W. H. Barker entertained at her home yesterday afternoon at a tea. Progressive tops were played, three prizes being awarded. The ladies who won were Mrs. H. F. Prael, Mrs. Tallant, and Mrs. Trenchard. There were 50 guests present. The house was elaborately decorated, the parlor being in white and green, the sitting room was lavishly bedecked with sweet peas and the hall was made beautiful with crimson rambling roses. Mrs. Barker was assisted in receiving and entertaining by her daughter Miss Nellie Barker.

It is said that the local gambling fraternity has waged a successful war against the transient green baize man, and hereafter any new gambling houses established in Astoria will be required to pay for police protection six months in advance, which means an outlay of $150, representing the monthly fine of $25 per month which is assessed against each gambler for the privilege of violating the state law with impunity. The resident gamblers will continue to pay tribute as usual, monthly in advance. It is probable that further developments will result as not all of the gamblers are satisfied with the so-called scheme of protection.

A copy of the Morning Oregonian dated Tuesday, March 12, 1872, has reached the Astorian, and is well worth comment. The paper is a four-pager, seven columns, three columns of the front page being devoted to advertising. Perhaps the most noticeable part of the paper is that it contains no "dear heads," and gives only a brief digest of the day's telegraphic dispatches, under very staid headlines, to-wit: "Last night's dispatches; miscellaneous news; New York news; Washington City." One of the dispatches tells of the precarious condition in which Brigham Young lies at his home. There is a scathing denunciation of one Legate, of Kansas, a would-be governor of Washington territory, and a report of a tilt in the senate between Senators Edmunds and Blair on the proofs of the charges against Generals Wade Hampton, Butler and Kershaw. The local news is crowded into about a column of space, but the editorial page, then, as now, is a gem of terse English and forceful, enterprising ideas. Hon. George H. Williams was then prominent in city and state affairs. The resolutions adopted by the Clackamas county republican convention are printed in full, in which the reelection of President Grant is favored. The advertising patronage was most generous. The Oregonian was in its twelfth volume in 1872. It has grown since that time, however, and the news columns have developed into something more than a dry record of local events. Today it features its news, and were the editorial "we" to creep into its news columns there would be a vacancy on the local staff. It has grown with the city, but instead of keeping up with the city it has always kept ahead. Thus do all newspapers that are published to further the interests of the community succeed in their mission.

Attention of contractors is called to the change in date for receiving bids for painting Astoria school houses from September 1 to August 1.

Once again will the Unique theater surpass all its previous records for presenting high class vaudeville to the theater goers of Astoria. The program which began Monday night, July 20, is headed by the famous Unique Burlesque Minstrel show and Black Four Hundred. The show promises to be the best yet at this place, and the management has left nothing undone to make it a success. All the performers will give an entire new monologue as black face artists. They have no superior. Their dancing is excellent and their dancing is of the highest order of merit. During the week they will give their prize wing dances. Illustrated songs will be added to the entertainment and particularly will this part of the program be a winner, for there are hundreds who prefer illustrated songs to any other attraction in a show. The moving pictures on the vitagraph are all new and no better have been seen in Astoria. All in all there will be a great number of attractions at the Unique theatre this week beginning last night and judging from the popularity of the place it is safe to say that early comers will secure the best seats.
