CASSIUS M. CLAY

IN the passing of General Cassius M. Clay the world loses a type of American soldier, diplomat and statesman that will be hard to duplicate.

Clay was one of the old school of southern chivalry; a conspicuous figure of the days that were. Perhaps the best index to his character is given in an editorial in the Boston Globe, which places the sage of White Hall next to Abraham Lincoln as being the most picturesque figure in American History.

In the Metropolitan museum of art in New York City, there hangs a massive painting of the court of Russia at the time when he was the representative of this republic there.

Clay was a grand old hero despite all his eccentricities. THE mayor of Astoria has consulted with able lawyers on the status of the police commission and has been advised that under the charter that body is a coordinate branch of the city government but a distinct branch so far as the control and authority of the police force are concerned.

EVERY business man and worker in the city is with The Morning Astorian in agitating a police commission that remains at home. They appreciate the fact that the police commissioners were elected to perform a duty, not to go traveling in South America, or "spend the winter in Montana."

LET Astoria be bedecked in gala attire for the regatta. Decorate every nook and cranny; hoist the stars and stripes; bring out the patriotic bunting, and let the city be a blaze of light by night.

right of way is now being solved. This consists of a 60-foot strip from Tillamook to the summit of the coast range of mountains by way of the Wilson river, the shortest route, 52-1/2 miles to Portland.

UNDER a headline so large that all who sprint may read, the San Francisco Bulletin publishes nearly a column of matter relating to the Astoria regatta. "Events galore at the Astoria regatta; carnival at the famous salmon fishing town promises to be of particular importance; oarsmen to journey North" is the way we are advertised in San Francisco.

MRS. Carrie Nation, upon arriving at McKeesport, Penn., recently to lecture at a nearby park, started to argue with the ticket agent because he was smoking. While she was arguing some one pasted "whisky labels" advertising a special brand, over her baggage in liberal quantities.

IF all the police commission went sojourning on the continent the control of the department would revert to the chief of police, and he could defy the mayor and city council if he so desired. At least there is always the danger of his flaunting the city charter in the face of the municipal officials and telling them to "go way back and sit down."

EVERY business man and worker in the city is with The Morning Astorian in agitating a police commission that remains at home. They appreciate the fact that the police commissioners were elected to perform a duty, not to go traveling in South America, or "spend the winter in Montana."

NOW that the regatta committee has appointed an admiral it is high time the contest for queen assumed lively proportions. The staff will be named later, after which the maids of honor will be announced.

SSS

To be tired out from hard work or bodily exercise is natural and rest is the remedy, but there is an exhaustion without physical exertion and a tired, never-rested feeling—a weariness without work that is unnatural and shows some serious disorder is threatening the health.

For over four years I suffered with general debility, causing a thorough breaking down of my system. My cousin, who had been benefited by S. S. S., told me about it. I tried it and it cured me. I heartily recommend S. S. S. to all who may feel the need of a thoroughly good blood tonic.
