NINTH ANNUAL REGATTA

Astoria's annual regatta opens at f o'clock this morning. No previous regatta ever opened under more auspiclous circumstances. The weather promises perfection. The best racing crews ever assembled in the Northwest are here. Visiting carnival queens in triumphial robes, are here from the interior. Dignitaries from civil anr military life are present. A part of the North Pacific naval squadron, under Commander Perkins, lies in the harbor and officers and men will participate in the festivities. The committee has provided an excellent program. A large crowd is already on the ground and every train and every boat brings more people. The queen, in all her lovliness, and the richest robes ever displayd in the Northwest, is in readiness for coronation and will do honor to the ocshould be a gala season in the city founded by John Jacob Astor. Its a cut is a fruitful topic. There will time to put away care and breathe the be delegates in the convention to conspirit of the occasion. Its a season to revel in the atmosphere of recreation ber is practically inexhaustible, and and sociability. Its time to look that speculation on probable exhauspleasant and be pleasant letting the contagion of good cheer take hold of with figures to show in just how many others. If the facts were known concerning Mr. Eddy's political intentions, they would appear something like this: If I get into a scap over the office of Joint Representative and fall in the nomination or the election my name forevermors is just "Pants!" and there's all there is to it, but if I "lielow" and there is much of a light on Hermann next year I may make it, as the other fellows had their try this year and failed. And barring this chance, there's going to be an awful mixup in the next legislature over Senator Mitcheff's seat-Joe Simon is training his "dogs of war" and Senator Mitchell is reorganizing his forces and entrenchleg himself behind the federal officeholders-and it may resolve lisely into a "Killkeny" affair, and where would they go to look for a more "compromising" and accommodating candidate than B. IRISH PROSPECTS

s promising of better times for the Emerald Isle.

John E. Redmond, one of the foremost of the Irish nationalists, says of the bill: "If it works, and it is confidently hoped it will, there is no question but that it will effect a revolution in the condition of Ireland."

The Buffalo Courier, in commenting upon the measure, rightly declares that the fact that "the bill has expeditiously gone through the traditionally conservative House of Lords, in which many large Irish land holders have seats, is an enlivening demonstration that the world moves. The same body strenuoasly antagonized and defeated Mr. Gladstone's efforts in aid of the unhappy island. Now the spectacle has been witnessed of a measure more liberal than any proposed, introduced by a government composed of Conservatives and Liberal Unionists, and passed with the prompt assistance of peers formerly irreconcilable to any advanced policy of Irish administration. But the lords have learned the value of discretion, and no longer dare hold public opinion in contempt."

Verily the world does move most potently, as is evidenced by the revolution of feeling manifested in the House of egates from the deforested states of Lords regarding the plain duty of the
