

SENATOR FORAKER MAKES GOOD STAND FOR ROOSEVELT

Asserts That He Believes in the Man and His Administration and Once Nominated His Election Is Certain.

Cincinnati, Jan. 19.—Senator Foraker, when asked here today about Geo. B. Cox's announcement of his candidacy for delegate at large from Ohio to the Chicago convention, said: "I do not care to discuss it beyond saying that nobody will question Cox's right to become a candidate for any honor he may desire at the hands of the republican party of Ohio."

"Do you think he will have any opposition?" "It there should be a contest over the nomination of a candidate for the presidency."

OBSTINATE COUNCILORS HOLD LEGISLATURE IN DEADLOCK

Seattle, Jan. 19.—A special from Dawson to the Post-Intelligencer says:

For more than a week the Yukon council, the legislature of the British Yukon, has been in a deadlock. The governor so utterly despaired of accomplishing anything with the strong odds against him that before Christmas he adjourned the council until the first week in January. He may not attempt to assemble it even at the time fixed.

The deadlock is caused by the refusal of the two elective members of the Dawson district to sit in the council unless certain privileges are conceded them. A large number of the councilors are absent. Joseph Andrew Clarke and Dr. Alfred Thompson, members from the Dawson district, are the men who are holding out against the government forces, thereby causing the deadlock.

Thompson and Clarke are fighters from the ground up, and have made many a stubborn battle in the council in bold opposition to the attitude of the governor and the government members. Their present fight is to get a memorial through to Ottawa for certain reforms desired by the territory. The most important clause they wish to place in the memorial is the one for the making of the Yukon council, or legislature, wholly elective at the hands of the qualified voters in the territory. The government, a year or so ago, promised that such concession would be granted about this time, but is not taking any visible steps to provide such a privilege.

Gov. Fred T. Congdon and five other government officials in the territory are appointive members on the council today. Five members are elected from among the people by districts. The appointive members, including the governor, are all against allowing the memorial promulgated by Clarke and Thompson to come before the council. Clarke and Thompson therefore refuse to take their seats, and, most of the members being out of the territory or at distant points indefinitely, the governor is unable to proceed with special business for which the present special session was called.

If the governor should allow the memorials to come before the council, the government forces would refuse to adopt the memorials as Clarke and Thompson want them, and would report adversely at Ottawa, but this would not prevent Clarke and Thompson from sending a minority report to Ottawa.

Whatever the outcome may be in the coming attempted sittings, Clarke and Thompson have put the government forces on record as not allowing the desired memorials to come before the council. During the several sessions of the last year Clarke and Thompson attempted to get similar memorials through, but the documents were always hung up in committee or otherwise sidetracked.

The special session was called to make an appropriation of $150,000 for the public works department in the Yukon. The money is granted by Ottawa, but must be officially appropriated for local uses by the Yukon council. Clarke and Thompson, by refusing to sit in the council, prevent the making of the appropriations and employes of the department and firms furnishing supplies cannot get their money in the meantime.

LARGE LONDON AUDIENCE HEARS JOE CHAMBERLAIN

London, Jan. 19.—The Guild Hall was packed to suffocation today to hear Joseph Chamberlain speak. Mr. Chamberlain received a great ovation. He began by declaring that the provincial centers of commerce of the United Kingdom had been heard from in regard to his tariff proposals, but the views of the citizens of London were not yet known. He desired to ascertain how the city men felt on the subject of his scheme before the opening of parliament, but he regretted that owing to its nonpolitical character the meeting would not have the opportunity of voting directly for or against him.

Mr. Chamberlain, who said he believed the same arguments he used in the provinces would appeal equally to imperialistic London, then proceeded to reiterate his well-known fiscal views. He pointed out that while London is now the collecting house of the world he doubted if that position could be maintained if the ancient fiscal superstition is to be upheld. Before it is too late, a lesson should be learned from the fate of Venice, Holland and other states, whose greatness vanished because they had no productive and creative energy behind them. London will no longer be the world's clearing house of Great Britain's present relations with her colonies and the great neutral countries of the world are disturbed by a diminution in the multiplicity of the extent of the transactions which hitherto have been creating new wealth. His opponents claim, he said, that the recent board of trade returns destroy his contentions, but he intended to base his future arguments on these returns, as they prove that the growth of foreign exportations to the British colonies has greatly exceeded the growth of exportations from the motherland.

The position of Great Britain is deteriorating, he declared, and though he anticipated no immediate catastrophe, the situation calls loudly for some remedy. The lessons of the past must be applied and the framework of a new empire must be built up under new conditions, by adopting the protective policy adopted by every civilized nation and creating new bonds of union with the colonies.

Although no vote of confidence was permitted, the extraordinary enthusiasm of the Stock Exchange members, who escorted Mr. Chamberlain's carriage to the Guild Hall, the cheers which punctuated his speech and the vociferous applause at the close of his remarks must have assured the former colonial secretary that he had the full sympathy of his audience.

PERSONAL MENTION

J. D. McGowan is over from McGowan.

Deputy Collector McCue is in Portland for a few days.

T. Thompson, of Portland, was in the city yesterday.

J. A. Moreland, a well known resident of Nahcotta, is in the city.

Henry Fleckenstein, a well known Portland business man, was in the city yesterday.

John Kiernan, the Portland salmon packer, is in the city, looking after local interests.

C. B. Harradan, manager of Ross, Higgins & Co., at Skagway, is visiting in the city for a few days.

Captain C. H. Dunbar, of the dredge Chinook, returned last night from Portland, where he has been preparing for repairs to the vessel.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Carmichael, Mrs. M. M. Hawkins and Miss M. V. B. Misner, of Ilwaco, returned last night from Portland and will leave for home today.

Karl Gronstadt, of the lighthouse tender Heather, had an interesting experience with an amateur highwayman at the foot of East Washington street, Portland, Monday night. The thug feigned drunkenness, and as he staggered up to his intended victim ordered his hands up. While the thief was searching Gronstadt's pockets the latter dealt him a well-directed blow on the jaw, and before he secured anything the thug ran away and disappeared in the darkness.

Fully six inches of snow fell early yesterday morning. On the down town streets, where there is more heat than on the hills, the snow did not exceed three inches in depth, but hillside residents who measured the beautiful found that it covered the earth to the depth first named. Last night the sleighs were out in numbers and the merry jingle of the sleigh bells was heard for the first time. Coasting was also indulged in.

CHICAGO THEATERS CLOSED FOR REMAINDER OF SEASON

Chicago, Jan. 19.—The city council tonight took an action that will, in all probability, result in the closing of nearly all the theaters in Chicago for the remainder of the present theatrical season. It convened tonight to consider the passage of an act that would allow theaters to operate for the remainder of this season without being compelled to fulfill all the requirements of the ordinance passed last night. Managers of theaters declared tonight it would be impossible for them to meet the demands of the enabling act in sufficient time to do business during the remainder of the season, and several of them declared they had no intention of trying to re-open their doors.

Save Your Daughter

No. 145 West 96th Street, New York City, N. Y., April 3, 1903.

Wife of Gardui has been a blessing to my home. I have often found that it was a great relief when I was weary or in pain, but I am especially grateful for what it did for our daughter and only child. I noticed that her menses were tardy and she suffered with headaches and giddiness, heaviness in the abdomen and about the loins. This seriously interfered with her studies and she had to discontinue several of them.

A visitor calling on me and discussing the matter suggested that I give her a course of your Wine of Gardui as it had relieved her daughter of a similar trouble. After my daughter had used it for five weeks I found a great improvement in her looks, health and behavior, in fact she was a different girl. The flow became regular and we have not had any difficulty since.

WINE OF GARDUI

Here the menstrual function had not been properly started and the unnatural condition was making the young girl an invalid. The headaches and giddiness, indicated something more than a mere temporary ailment. They were symptoms of a functional weakness which would become more and more aggravated as years went by. But Mrs. Thompson was ready to take advice for her daughter's welfare and she gave the little sufferer Wine of Gardui and now she is a well young woman.

If your daughter is sickly and frequently ailing the letter of this good mother contains the best advice you can follow.

Wine of Gardui is the menstrual regulator that cures nine cases out of every ten. Young girls, mothers and aged women find this tonic indispensable. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles Wine of Gardui.
