AT LEAST ONCE A WEEK

You might as well bathe in the river as in an old wooden tub, but there is no occasion for doing either so long as up-to-date bath tubs can be had reasonably. Talk with us about the matter.

Drivers Walk Out.
St. Louis, Jan. 20.—Pursuant to an order issued at a meeting held last night by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, 800 hack and carriage drivers went on a strike today to enforce their demands for $12.50 per week pay, a 12-hour day, 25 cents an hour for overtime and recognition of the union. A small proportion of their number are men working in East St. Louis. The strike is directed against the St. Louis Livermen's and Undertakers' Association.

NOT TRAIN BUT HUME

Famous Globe Trotter Not First Man to Suggest the Can Salmon.

WILLIAM HUME THE PIONEER

Canned Salmon Years Before "Citizen" Train Ever Saw the Columbia River—Error Righted.

"M. W. M." writing to the Oregonian, credits the late George Francis Train with having first suggested the salmon canning process. The writer quotes an old-time Portland steamboat man with reference to the visit of Mr. Train to The Dalles in 1868. Mr. Train went down the river to watch the Indians catch salmon with dipnets, and when he himself undertook to catch fish he fell into the boiling water and was carried to the rapids, from which the Indians rescued him with much difficulty. However, he was hauled from the water but declined to return to The Dalles until he succeeded in catching some of the fish. In all he landed 110.

"It is my intention to address the people of The Dalles tonight," said Mr. Train, "and I am going to decorate the platform with these fish."

"I argued with him that this was an old story with us," continued the steamboat man quoted by the Oregonian correspondent, "that we were not interested in salmon—that the Indians caught millions of them, etc., but he persisted and when he delivered his lecture he made the suggestion to the Oregon people that they can these salmon. He said:

"You can talk about the gold your streams bring down from the mountains, but there is more wealth going by your doors up stream every day than you have ever dreamed of. Why don't you can these countless fish? Can them and send them all over the world. They will make your territory known in every corner of the universe."

This suggestion is said by the writer to have been the first ever made that Columbia river salmon should be packed.

The error thus made by the writer is rather a glaring one, for in that very year, 1868, the Hume cannery was being operated at Eagle Cliff. It had been established in 1866 by George W. Hume and the late William Hume. The first salmon packed on the Columbia river was canned in 1866, two years prior to the visit of Mr. Train to The Dalles, and the idea originated not with the globe trotter, but with William Hume, who operated the first cannery on the Pacific coast at the town of Washington, Yolo county, Cal., in 1852. The first salmon canned on the American continent was put up at a lobster cannery on the bay of Chaleur, an arm of the sea which divides the province of Quebec from that of New Brunswick. This information comes reliably from R. D. Hume, one of the well-known salmon canning brothers, in an article in the annual number of the Pacific Fisherman.

Marion and Graham are after Abercrombie and Stockton, the Commercial Club champion handball players, and vow they will wrest the title from their antagonists when they meet tonight. Last night Marion and Graham defeated Gibson and Allen handily in three straight games, the scores being 21-9, 21-10 and 21-11. McEwan and Osborn defeated Wright and Jones in two straight games, the scores being 21-7 and 21-19. Tonight interest will center in the games between Marion and Graham and Abercrombie and Stockton, although the contest between Gammal and Painter and Regan and Wilson also promises to be exciting.

District Attorney Manning, of Multnomah, has determined to go after the gamblers. Ever since one of August Erickson's employes told him to go to hell when asked that Mrs. Fishbeck's $165 be returned he has been planning prosecution of the case. Mr. Manning explains that he has heretofore been content to permit the municipal authorities to deal with the gambling problem, but that he must act when appealed to. Mr. Manning says: "I shall not let the matter drop with the Fishbeck case. The district attorney has the power to take the initiative in cases against the gamblers and I shall exercise that power. I have always stood ready to take up any case that is brought to me in good faith, and have never refused to issue a warrant under these circumstances. I have no desire to interfere with the policy of the city in the regulation of gambling, as it is up to the city to control that as they see fit. However, when a woman is deprived of her money and comes to me to help her recover it, and the owner of the gambling house tells me to tell her to go to hell, I could not take a back seat and let the matter pass over. It has been customary in cases of this kind for proprietors of gambling houses to make good money lost. I have since learned that Erickson was drinking and probably not responsible for what he said. They can all roast me as much as they please, but Erickson will not open his club rooms until the woman is paid, that is if I can find any way to keep him closed."
