

LOCK FACTORY ROMANCE.

Young Couple Taken in Hand By Police For Elopement.

New York, April 15.—The romance of a lock factory, in which Theresa Ferraro, 16 years old, of 258 Bond street, Brooklyn, and Tony Falado, the same age, of 202, Elizabeth street, Manhattan, were the chief participants, and which culminated in the elopement of the couple to Newark, N. J., on last Tuesday, came to a sad ending yesterday, when the pair were taken into custody by the police of Newark, charged with truancy, preferred by the girl's sister-in-law, who has been searching for the couple ever since their disappearance.

Theresa and Tony worked side by side in a lock factory at De Kalb and Kent avenues for some months past. Theresa's work was very hard, and she would have been unable to stand it if it was not for the many acts of kindness, tender words and loving glances which Tony showered on her. She grew to like Tony very much and one day during lunch hour she told Tony that she loved him, and suggested that they run away and get married. This seemed to please Tony and last Tuesday morning they packed their clothes and took a train for Newark. On their arrival at that city they engaged rooms of Mrs. Mary Kline, at 107 Springfield avenue. The wedding was planned for the following day but when the time came it was discovered that Tony was shy the money necessary to purchase the wedding rings. This made Theresa angry and she threatened to go home to mother. But Tony succeeded in pointing out the bright side of things in store for them, and she determined to stay until he could earn the price of the ring. Tony was thus engaged when he was arrested.

Theresa was brought home last evening by her sister-in-law, and shortly after her arrival talked with press representative at her home.

What Shall We Have for Dessert?

This question arises in the family every day. Let us answer it to-day. Try a delicious and healthful dessert. Prepared in two minutes. No boiling! no baking! add boiling water and set to cool. Flavors:—Lemon, Orange, Raspberry and Strawberry. Get a package at your grocers to-day. 10 cts.

Several of her girl friends were present. Theresa is a very pretty girl, with large dark eyes, a beautiful complexion, and possessed with an abundance of brown hair, which she rolls high on top of her head. She is very intelligent, and her views of married life will be very interesting to Brooklyn girls. This is what she says of married life:

"Any girl that gets married is foolish. I had four days of it, and it seemed to me like four years. The first day was very pleasant, but the succeeding days were awful. Tony wanted to be waited on, and if everything didn't go just right he got up on his car and wouldn't speak to me. I found out that I didn't love him, and I am very glad to get home. You can tell the girls in Brooklyn the best thing they can do is to stay single, for they will never have any peace after they are married."

Theresa's mother and father sat in the corner of the dimly lighted little room and bowed assent to everything she said. They were both glad to have their daughter home, and say that it will do her all the good in the world.

Tony, the much-abused would-be husband, is still locked up at Newark awaiting the arrival of his parents.

Dewey and the River.

Joe Reardon, a big strapping young Irishman, has the reputation of being the best diver in the United States naval service. He has earned it by doing stunts below the surface of nearly every sea on which Uncle Sam's war vessels have sailed. Neither depth nor pressure have terrors for him and therefore he is in constant demand. The rules of the service give the man the privilege of refusing to don a helmet and suit. He cannot be compelled to dive, and it is to Joe's credit that only once during his long service has he refused to explore the depths. This was at Cavite, shortly after the sinking of the Spanish vessels, when efforts were being made to recover the bodies of the slain and to save what remained of the battered Spanish hulls. Then he refused because the doctor on his ship the Olympia, a stickler for discipline refused him a glass of whiskey.

Reardon had been at work all morning on one of the sunken vessels. He sent up body after body and all sorts of ship's gear and made fast to the wreck numberless ropes and guys for the use of the engineers who were arranging to save the vessels. When finally he came to the surface at noon he was tired out. When the face plate of his helmet was removed he asked for the glass of whiskey he was accustomed to receive and which he had never been refused because it has become an unwritten law that a glass of grog is to be served to divers when they have been at work. The doctor of the ship, who did not believe in unwritten laws and believed in running his department on the ship according to the written code, refused Reardon's request. The diver admitted that he did not need it, but said he had always received it and wanted it as usual. When the doctor persisted Reardon demanded that his suit be taken off.

At 1 o'clock when Admiral Dewey noticed that the wrecking operations had ceased, he sent for the executive officer, the captain and the gunner to learn what was the trouble. He was told and then he sent to Reardon.

"How about this Reardon?" he said, when the bluejacket appeared. "I am surprised that you give up." "I am not giving up sir," said Reardon, "it's the doctor. I want a glass of whiskey because I am in the habit of getting it and he refuses to give it to me because it is against the rules of the service."

"Hump," said Dewey, "he happens to be right." Then he dismissed the officers, but told Reardon to remain. Inside of ten minutes the sailor was again donning his rubber suit. Just as the face plate on the helmet was being screwed on he grinned at the diving crew, smacked his lips and with a grin said: "The old man's stuff skins the doctor's and he gives it to one in larger doses."

A Monarch Ostracised.

There seems to be a disposition on the part of Old World sovereigns just at present to avoid King Leopold. A short time ago it was officially given out at Brussels that, while Prince and Princess Albert were likely to visit the St. Louis exhibition, it would be impossible for the king to cross the Atlantic, owing to the necessity of his remaining at home to welcome, in June, Emperor Francis Joseph to Belgium on the conclusion of that monarch's stay in England. In response to this semi-official and curt announcement has been given out at Vienna to the effect that Francis Joseph has for the present no intention whatsoever of paying a visit to Belgium or to the court of Brussels. Yet Leopold's visit to Vienna last autumn followed closely upon that of King Edward, and since the old emperor is now about to return the Emperor's call, Leopold may be excused for expecting that Francis Joseph would pay him a similar compliment on his way back to Austria. That this courtesy should be withheld must, under the circumstances be looked upon as an intentional slight placed upon Leopold indicative of the emperor's displeasure. The Belgian ruler was equally unsuccessful in his efforts at Paris to induce the king and queen of Italy to stop over at Brussels on their return from staying with Edward VII at Windsor last autumn, and it will have been noticed that, although Leopold made elaborate preparations to welcome Emperor William at Antwerp on the occasion of the latter's trip from Bremen to the Mediterranean, yet the kaiser passed by without touching at any Belgian port. Nor has King Edward visited the court of Brussels since his accession, although Leopold is a former friend and a very near relative, as which, indeed, he attended in person the obsequies of Queen Victoria.

Chinese Getting Good.

St. Petersburg, April 15.—A dispatch to the Vestnik from Harbin dated yesterday says that the Pekin government is showing a more conciliatory spirit and that the local Chinese authorities are posting neutrality proclamations daily.

The rich Chinese, the dispatch continues, fear the approach of the Japanese. The price of food in Harbin is rising and the value of the rouble is falling.

Human Dandruff Germs Denude a Rabbit

CONVINCING EXPERIMENT by DR. SABOURAUD of the PASTEUR INSTITUTE.

This experiment proves that dandruff is a contagious disease due to the presence of a microbic growth in the sebaceous glands of the scalp. It also proves that unless the formation of dandruff is stopped—by destroying the germs—it will lead to falling hair and incurable baldness. Prof. Unna, Europe's noted dermatologist (ask your doctor about him) was the first to discover the microbic nature of dandruff and baldness. His discovery was later verified by Dr. Sabouraud, at the Pasteur Institute, Paris, France. The doctor inoculated a rabbit with human dandruff germs and in due time the rabbit began to lose its fur. "In between five and six weeks," says the official report of the Pasteur Institute, "the rabbit was completely denuded, in fact, it had become entirely bald."

Dandruff is annoying. Falling hair is an injury. Baldness is a calamity.

If you are indifferent about your hair and let it "take care of itself," you should not grumble when it is gone. Careful people now try to save their hair and Newbro's Herpicide enables them to do this in a very pleasing manner. It is the first scientific HAIR-SAVER and it is growing wonderfully in popularity. Everyone should endeavor to protect the scalp against dandruff infection and the surest way is to carefully avoid "exposure" to dandruff germs and to rely upon Newbro's Herpicide as a scalp prophylactic. One of the chief forms of "exposing" the scalp, is to use an unsterilized public hair brush. The hair brush should be as exclusive as the tooth brush. It is important to remember that:

1. Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a microbe.
2. Dandruff is a forerunner of itching scalp, falling hair and baldness.
3. Chronic baldness is incurable.
4. The cause of dandruff can not be washed out of the scalp with soap and water.
5. The only way to cure dandruff and stop falling hair is to kill the germ that causes it.
6. The only safe remedy, so far discovered, that will absolutely kill the dandruff germ is Newbro's Herpicide.

Kill the scalp germs and the hair is bound to grow naturally.

Almost marvelous results follow the use of Newbro's Herpicide. It contains no oil, grease, sediment or dye. It delights the ladies by keeping their hair light and fluffy and by giving it a silken gloss.
