WORKS ARE WELL MADE

Correspondents Taken on Tour Through Japanese Works by Officials of the Mikado.

ARE CAREFULLY PLANNED

Newspaper Men Say the Browns Are in the Fight to Win and Are Making Preparations.

General Kuroki's Headquarters in the Field Via Fusan June 26.—(Delayed in Transmission.)—A party of 18 correspondents and military attaches has been conducted on a tour of the main Japanese works beyond headquarters: That the greatest care has been taken in building them the attaches remarked the temporary defenses having been constructed with more pains than most European armies would take under similar circumstances. At Liao Yang, where it was hitherto thought the first meeting between the two armies in force would occur, the Russians have guns in position mounted on the city wall and trenches on the plain south of the city extending over an arc of 180 degrees. These trenches are so constructed that they can be flooded during the rainy season. Recent rains indicate the beginning of the wet season when military movements upon a large scale will be greatly handicapped and perhaps rendered impossible for months or more.

The Japanese are completing arrangements for the transportation whereby facilities for the supply of the army will be assured regardless of weather conditions.

Koreans are bringing in many stories of Cossack outrages in north-eastern Korea. According to these reports the natives have been forced to furnish supplies to the marauders who have in return burned the houses of the villagers and ill-treated their women.

In justice to the Russians it must be said that the Chinese hereabouts have been liberally paid for work and supplies during the Russian occupancy. A few buildings were burned along the line of their retreat, but the towns were left mostly undamaged. Within the Japanese lines the country is enjoying its usual prosperity except that the merchants suffer from the stoppage of traffic with the interior. Farmers find a good market for their products and coolies get unusual prices for their labor. In most of the towns the local magistrates continue their jurisdiction under Japanese supervision.

SCALP HUMOURS

Itching, Scaly and Crusted With Loss of Hair

Speedily Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment

When Every Other Remedy and Physicians Fail

Warm shampoos with Cuticura Soap and light dressings of Cuticura, the great skin cure, at once stop falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, soothe irritated, itching surfaces, destroy hair parasites, stimulate the hair follicles, loosen the scalp skin, supply the roots with energy and nourishment, and make the hair grow upon a sweet, healthy scalp when all else fails.

Millions of the world's best people use Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings and chafings, for annoying irritations and inflammations, or too free or offensive perspiration, for ulcerative weaknesses, and many antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery.

Complete treatment for every humour, consisting of Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the skin, Cuticura Ointment, to heal the skin, and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, to cool and cleanse the blood, may now be had for one dollar. A single set is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning and scaly humours, eczemas, rashes and irritations, from infancy to age, when all else fails.

HAD BAD EYES.

Peculiar Case in Juvenile Court of Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, June 27.—Svengali's bulging optics would have popped clear out of his head in a burst of rage and amazement had he heard the tales that were told in Magistrate Toughill's court of the astounding hypnotic powers lurking in the grayish eyes of 10-year-old Larry McNabb, whose home is at 903 South Camac street.

Little Larry didn't look like a rival of Svengali as he faced the magistrate. When he first entered the court room his eyes appeared to emit nothing but the twinkle that comes hereditarily to a bearer of such a name as McNabb, and while he was being exploited as a youthful hypnotizer the tears that coursed down his cheeks didn't appear to justify a number of youngsters who stood around him in shielding their eyes from his with their hands.

But though his eyes seemed to testify in his favor, the words of his playmates and of his mother pictured him in a different light.

Fearful as they were to look into Larry's eyes, his playmates were not at all averse to picturing him as a hypnotic terror. One and all they accused him of making passes at them and putting them under the "influence," and one and all told the magistrate that Larry was practically responsible for causing them to do all the mischief of which they have been guilty in the last month or so.

They admitted, of course, that they had consented to be subjects and that they had made efforts to imitate Larry—but then they argued he was the one to start it.

Eddie Lawrence, who lives in the same street with the McNabb family, told most of the story. Every time one lad saw another in the neighborhood, he declared, they waved their fingers in mystic passes to see which could get the "control," but none, he said, could ever put Larry to sleep. Larry, everybody admitted, was the "arch-hypnotizer," for he was the only boy who could put 7-year-old Michael Holden under.

Larry, it appeared, had marvelous control over Michael. He could make him believe that cherries were growing on hitching posts and that the water in a gutter was the Delaware river. So strong was Larry's influence that Michael had plunged repeatedly into the gutters calling out "Come on in fellows; the water's fine." This, too, he had done when dressed in his best Sunday clothes.

Mrs. McNabb, who is a widow, said that Larry would neither go to school nor work. Every day she was afraid that he would be brought in dead to her as he did little beside reading books on mesmerism or on the lives of bandits, and in riding on coal trains. She said that he spent every cent he could get on "hypnotizing books."

She asked Magistrate Toughill to send the boy to the house of reform until he was a little older and had sense enough to go to work and try and support himself. Larry promised to drop hypnotism forever if the magistrate would let him go. But his mother was obdurate.

"He has been planning to go west," said Mrs. McNabb, "and dazzle the Indians by his power. He thinks it would be a grand thing to make the Indians believe he had supernatural gifts, as they might then make him chief or something of that sort. The mother of one of the boys was telling me that he had his whole career planned with her son whom he tried to get to run away with him."

The magistrate said he did not see that Larry did any grievous wrong in hypnotizing his chums, but said he would commit him for jumping on coal trains.
